Average Intelligence. Counterfeiters Buy. Brachycephalic Mr. White. More About the Dollar.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

DURING THE war conscripted millions were subjected to "intelligence tests," and you learned, with anxiety, that the adult American has an average intelligence of a twelve-year-old child.

Now, to cheer you, the Bureau of Education says that is a mistake. Only about three million adult Americans have twelve-year-old intelligence, not many more than enough to cover all those who think they understand money and know what the government ought to do about it.

At the age of twelve, Newton probably knew more about mathematics, intuitively, than many modern teachers of mathematics know. As for music, Mozart at the age of four played well, at seven he composed, and gave concerts at royal courts.

There is no real intelligence standard, and as we are all only 12,000 years from the late stone age, what we call "highest intelligence" will seem amusingly ignorant a few million years hence.

MR. BRODNAX, of the United States Secret Service, reports great activity among manufacturers of counterfeit money. They sell imitation money at forty to twenty cents on the dollar, and many are distributing it. Detectives even found one lady with counterfeit bills hidden in her shoe.

An intelligent counterfeiter, selling dollars at forty to twenty cents, should hurry, and get rid of his stock before Uncle Sam begins selling real dollars cheaper than the counterfeiter can manufacture and distribute them.

ROY BARTON WHITE, the brachycephalic head of the Western Union Company and its 50,000 employes, says:

"There can no longer be any doubt that the United States is on the upgrade. Business is coming back with a bang."

That is cheerful.

More important to young men who would like to get along in the world is the fact that Mr. White, only a few years ago, was a high school boy, wondering what he was going to do.

When he had time, he "hung around the railroad station" in Dana, Ind., not idly watching trains but watching the telegraph operator, C. H. Peters, who let him come in and learn.

WHEN HE left high school, the boy became a real operator, in a gravel pit at Montezuma, with his own "sign." Then, he became a roadmaster, then general superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and, last spring, president of the Western Union Company.

Young gentlemen will observe that Mr. White as a boy did not watch baseball scores, or racing results. He made himself master of a trade, and the trade made him.

ENGLAND IS worried about the President's gold plan. One London newspaper carries the big heading:

"Washington Gold Grabbers."

Another London heading reads:

"Gigantic Money Decision by Roosevelt."

The President asks Congress to let him knock forty or fifty cents from the value of the dollar, and declare all gold in the country government property. Those that had gold were compelled long ago to give it up, and got twenty dollars an ounce for what is soaring now in the government's hands toward forty dollars.

There is something in the constitution about confiscation, but that probably does not apply to gold.

Will the government, as its next step, declare all unmined gold, under ground, government property? Some governments do that. It would discourage mining.

THE AMERICAN dollar is on its way to somewhere, but not to stabilization, for the present. Washington alone needs one thousand millions of those dollars every month.

You cannot stabilize THAT, and if government insists on issuing interest-bearing bonds to get its new money, squeezing the money for interest and principal out of taxpayers, instead of issuing new, clean money, free of interest charges, as boldly as it buys Europe's gold, there is going to be trouble, when the nation stops hiring everybody. And it MUST stop some day.

A temporary spending fit, based on good intentions, relieving distress, need not cause permanent trouble, if the government were content to fix a certain sum to be spent, print that much new money, no more, and redeem it without interest, at leisure.

LOADING ONTO future generations of taxpayers an interest load of another thousand million dollars a year might make recovery as remote as the visit of the Angel Gabriel, with his trumpet.

One thousand million dollars is worth considering, although it has become our national petty cash unit. Not long ago, it cost only five hundred millions to run the whole nation, for a year, and Tom Reed, of Maine, thought it was too much.

DR. WYNEKOOP 'VERY SICK' IN COURT

Gruesome Testimony Heard as Woman Physician Sinks

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop was "very sick" today, her attorneys said, as she listened to gruesome testimony about the death of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, on an operating table in the doctor's basement surgery. Attorney Frank Tyrrell said:

"She's very sick. Her condition is extremely poor.

Tyrrell said her condition was the poorest since the trial started five days ago.

His comment on the defendant's condition was not made in open court.

DEATH HOUSE LIGHTS

The lights which glowed in the Wynekoop home on the afternoon Rheta was slain were described by John Brennock, a telegraph company mesenger, who had attempted to deliver the much discussed telegram sent from Peoria by Earle Wynekoop, son of the defendant and husband of Rheta. Brennock related:

"I arrived at the Wynekoop home at 4:27 p. m., November 21, with a message. I went to the first-floor entrance and rang the doorbell. When there was no answer I went to the basement door, found it locked and rang the bell. There were lights burning in both the first floor and the basement. I then went upstairs, rang again and left a notice on the door knob."

The operating table which was the death bed of Rheta was trundled into court again today.

Panama Blasted, Ships Lost, Jap Story Relates

Herewith the Sun-Telegraph publishes the second installment of the violently suggestive and semi-official "Narrative of the Japanese-United States Future War," of which 1,250 copies were seized at Honolulu, Hawaii, before they could be distributed to the people there.

The books were held as seditious and inflammatory.

The Sun-Telegraph published the first installment of this first comprehensive translation of the handbook of sabotage disguised as a "novel," yesterday. In that installment the war is begun by a Japanese naval lieutenant, Eitara Maki, firing two torpedoes from his destroyer, the Nara, into the U. S. S. Houston, flagship of our Asiatic fleet.

Maki is tried by court martial and sentenced to be shot, but after the firing squad misses him three times, is released and honored by the Japanese as a sort of god. Meanwhile the governments of the two countries fall, and war is declared by the new administrations. From Dairen, on the continent of Asia, hurries a radio repairman who once deserted his ship in the Japanese navy, but now wants to re-enlist.

(Translation Copyright, 1934, by the Washington Herald and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

After he left the home of the radio owner, the Japanese repair man in Dairen rushed home to tell his wife the news. He decides, knowing what he knows, that since war is inevitable, he is going back to Tokio. He reveals to her that he was once a first-class sailor in the very ship that torpedoed the Houston.

When the ship, the Nara, was tied up at Yokosuga, years before, he told his wife, he received news that his aged mother was ill. He asked for

FAY ACCUSES RUDY AND NEW GIRL

Visit to New Castle Listed in Complaint Over Alice Faye

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—A mysterious Los Angeles woman—"Jane Doe No. 3"—entered the marital dispute between Fay Webb Vallee and her crooning husband, Rudy Valley, today.

In an amendment to her separate maintenance suit, in which Mrs. Vallee has already accused Rudy of misconduct with Alice Faye, blues singer, and Jane Doe No. 1 and Jane Doe No. 2, she charged that on January 4 last, in Los Angeles, Rudy associated with Jane Doe No. 3.

The amendment also listed 12 asserted acts of misconduct between Vallee and Miss Faye in cities along the Atlantic seaboard in 1932 and 1933. One of these occurred in New Castle, Penn., on April 2, 1933, according to the amendment.

The amendment was filed shortly before Mrs. Vallee's plea for $7,450 monthly alimony was scheduled to be heard in Superior Judge Dudley Valentine's court.

SURPRISE MOTION

The filing of the amendment came as a surprise. In it, Vallee was accused of misconduct with Jane Doe No. 3 in Los Angeles on January 4, last, when he was here appearing in the screen version of George White's "Scandals."

The amendment then went on to accuse Vallee of misconduct with Miss Faye, who was a singer in his Connecticut Yankees troupe, on the following occasions and places: January 26, 1933, Jacksonville, Fla.; January 28, 1933, St. Petersburg, Fla.; between January 28 and February 10, 1933, Tampa, Fla.; February 9, 1933, Winston-Salem, N. C.; during February, 1933, Columbia, S. C.; February 11, 1933, Atlanta, Ga.; February 14, 1933, Memphis, Tenn.; February 18, 1933, Charlotte, N. C.; February 19, 1933, Greensburg, N. YEAR'S TRIAL URGED BY COUNSEL

Report Tells Mayor Reasons for Plight Of Railways

Mayor McNair and his private counsel, Attorney Andrew G. Smith, went into training today for their battle with the Pittsburgh Railways Company to establish a 5-cent trolley fare.

The Mayor received from Smith a recommendation that the low fare be given a trial period of one year.

Also that more cars be used in the rush hours.

Smith, who has been studying the railways' and the public's plight for months, told the Mayor the company's problem would be solved by selling "a better article at low cost."

Smith's recommendations were contained in a brief which will likely guide the Mayor in the pending negotiations with the railways company over renewal of a contract which, among other items, creates the Pittsburgh Traction Conference Board.

EXTENSION HELD UP

A two-year extension of the board, which arbitrates differences between the city, the railways company and the various boroughs of Allegheny County, at the expense of the railways company, was approved by the last Council but held up by the Public Service Commission at McNair's request.

McNair was at that time running for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. Smith was his attorney.

McNair asked the commission to hold up renewal of the contract until he was Mayor, and the commission assented.

But the city must soon conclude some kind of a contract with the Pittsburgh Railways Company to simplify the settlement of disputes. Council already has asked the Pittsburgh Railways Company to submit its plans—if any—for lowering its fares and improving its service. The report is due by mid-February.

SMITH'S PROGRAM

So Smith today reported to the Mayor, saying:

"The answer is, forget about the corporate investment puzzle and face about to walk in the inspiration of the New Deal.

"The security and profits of private investments depend upon the well-being of the public.

"We are overcharged and underserved. As business conditions improve, more people will afford other and better means of travel unless the company reduces fare and improves service.

"The remedy—a five-cent fare for all one-fare hauls and more cars for rush hours. If, after a fair trial—say one year, to get the reaction from the four seasons—it should appear that certain lines are operated at heavy loss, such lines should be discontinued in favor of bus service.

"We are informed that adequate bus service could be supplied at a cost of $10,000,000."

GRILLING FACES MAE WEST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Mae West, actress, was up for more cross-examination today.

But she had done no wrong. She was a witness in the trial of Edward Friedman, accused of robbing her of jewels and cash, and spent most of Tuesday on the witness stand.

Despite the crowds and the scurrying of guards about her, Miss West took the proceedings for what they were, a trial, and not a show.

There was little for the packed courtroom to laugh at as she told details of how a robber shoved a revolver in her side, extracted $3,400 from her purse and snatched $12,000 worth of jewels from her hands, arms and neck on Septmber 28, 1932.

She testified Friedman had much the appearance of the hold-up man and related that after his capture he was brought before her by police officers, told her he was sorry for what he had done and implicated Harry Voiler, in whose automobile she was robbed.

"How'm I doing, boys?"

Jail Rum Violator Under New State Law

First conviction under the new state liquor law was made here today when Philip McCrea, of 54 South Eighth street, South Side, was sentenced by Judge George V. Moore to six months in jail and a $300 fine.

McCrea was convicted of possession of liquor and failure to have tax stamps.

WEIR IN PARLEY AT WHITE HOUSE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he had discussed with E. T. Weir the case of the Weirton Steel Company, which refused to allow the national labor board to supervise employes' elections under the collective bargaining provision of the NRA.

Mr. Roosevelt asked the steel company to cooperate in finding a solution for the dispute.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson said the Weirton case is now wholly in the hands of the President.

He said the board has failed in its mediation, arbitration and conciliation methods in the case of the E. G. Budd Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, which is similar to that of the Weirton company, and the matter has been submitted to his national compliance director to decide the "question of what action should be taken to enforce this collective bargaining law."

Johnson said he "believed an agreement had been reached" on the proposed aluminum code. The independents and labor have complained that the industry would be dominated by the Aluminum Company of America, controlled by the Mellon interests, which represents about 95 per cent of the industry.

$3,306,000 Bonds Sold by County

Bids at par on $3,306,000 county bonds on roads, parks and delinquent taxes, were accepted by the Allegheny County Commissioners today. The balance of the $6,806,000 was taken by the County Sinking Fund Commission.

The $3,306,000 was taken by Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co., of Philadelphia. A bid for only $1,680,000 worth made yesterday was withdrawn and the new bid entered in a telephone conversation with Commissioner C. M. Barr.

ALUMINUM CO. FILES TAX SUIT

The Aluminum Company of America today filed suit in Federal Court to recover $269,319 from the federal government. The company alleges the amount is due as over-payment of income and excess profit taxes for 1920.

It was set forth that the company filed a joint return for itself and 28 affiliated companies in 1920 and paid $801,967. Later the government imposed additional taxes of $761,332 which were paid.

The company charges that of the latter figure, $169,908 represents over-payment. Interest brings the total claim to $269,319.

Indict Pittsburgher In Ex-Mayor's Death

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—First-degree murder indictments charging Frank Romano, 30, of Pittsburgh, and Thomas Viola, 32, of Follansbee, W. Va., with the slaying of former Mayor Benjamin Oliver, of Yorkville, were returned today by the Jefferson County grand jury.

5 JAPS FREED IN SPY SCARE

International News Service.

KEARNY, N. J., Jan. 17.—Kearney's Japanese "spy scare" collapsed this afternoon when the authorities released five Japanese who had been taken in custory afear a zealous CWA worker had reported seeing them taking photographs of Pulaski Skyway, the overhead highway between Jersey City and Newark.

Capt. John Hensley, chief of Kearny detectives, said there was no evidence the aJpanese had committed any crime and that no formal charges would be lodged against them.

Release of the men followed examination of their passports, which were found to be in order, by Thomas P. Galvin, of the legal department of the United States Immigration Service.

A technical charge of driving an automobile without a license against Kuraji Takahash, secretary of the Japanese Tourist Bureau in New York City, was "indefinitely postponed," which, in Kearny police procedure, means it will not again be brought up."

Slap on Back Kills 'Iron Man' Clarke

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Gilding Clarke, "iron man" of the famous Old Vic Theatrical Company, who collapsed when given a friendly slap on the back during a rehearsal of "Orpheus" yesterday, died in a hospital today.

Friends said they believed the unexpected slap caused a shock affecting the actor's heart. A man of great strength, Clarke weighed more than 250 pounds.

Chicago Stock Broker Drowns in Bath Tub

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Police were called to the home of Edward A. Nelson, 45, La Salle street broker, today after he was found drowned in his bath tub with an iron weight tied about his neck. The body was discovered by his wife.

Bridgeville Ousts Trooper as Chief

The Borough Council last night voted to replace Fink with John Maioli, patrolman. Maioli will be succeeded by William J. Flood, former chief.

DEADLINE SPURS GOLD FLOW

Gold coins and certificates were flowing into Pittsburgh banks today as holders took the last opportunity to convert them into usable currency.

After midnight tonight no gold money may legally be held by anyone, under an order of the Treasury Department in pursuance of the President's money program.

A representative of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company said the gold receipts today were heavy. The Mellon Bank stated that most of the gold had already been turned in.

AIR MAIL FIRES LINK GLOVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—R. L. John, formerly personal secretary to W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General in the Hoover administration, told Senate investigators today that all Glover's air mail files were destroyed in January, 1933, on Glover's order.

John said that Glover also had destroyed all correspondence taken from Glover's records from 1921 to 1925, when he was Third Assistant. This was gathered up with the later correspondence, he said.

Shortly after the investigation started, a postoffice department stenographer told the committee he had burned some of the official correspondence of former Postmoster General Walter F. Brown at the order of Brown's secretary.

Glover's correspondence was destroyed "in the usual way," John said.

John said that much of the correspondence was of a personal nature, and that none of it "had anything to do with actual mail contracts," although they related to mail routes.

Uncensored War Views Awe Notables Here

The horror, the misery and the suffering of war were indelibly impressed today upon the minds of those prominent Pittsburghers who have been shown the series of war pictures whose publication will begin in the next Sunday Sun Telegraph.

Those uncensored pictures have been taken from "The Picture Story of the World War," the amazing volume compiled by Laurence Stallings, himself a war veteran, and author of "What Price Glory."

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh public schools, described:

"No literature which has come to my hand shows the horrors of war in such a vivid way as do these striking and terrible pictures. I should hesitate to place them in the hands of very young children, but there is no doubt that children of high school age should be shown this other side of war because at that age they are most impressed by the glamour of war."

From Miss H. Marie Dermitt, secretary of the Civic Club:

"These pictures are very sad, but the horrors of war ought to be brought home to us as facts and dealt with realistically, as they are in these pictures."

Dr. Marion McKay, professor of economics at Pitt:

"There is no better way to portray war's horrors than by means of such pictures as will be reproduced in the Sun-Telegraph next Sunday."

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, former public welfare director:

Three Firemen Ordered To Guard Mayview

Three city firemen today were ordered to permanent duty at Mayview to lessen the fire hazards at the city home and hospital.

Welfare Director Southard Hay, in addition to assigning the firemen to duty there and ordering the institution's fire truck repaired, was collecting material for an estimate on what it will cost to make the buildings fireproof.

City Council asked Hay to submit the estimate after he submitted a report of Assistant Fire Chief Louis J. Conley citing Mayview as a fire trap.

Conley said, concerning the Kline Infirmary annex, remodeled from a barn, that 21 inmates who sleep on a balcony probably would perish in event of fire. One hundred persons are quartered in the building. The buildings for tubercular patients are unsafe and fire equipment is dangerously obsolete, he added.

M'Nair to Aid New Taxi Firm Here

Mayor William Nissley McNair today was willing to serve as counsel for the Zone Cab Corporation of Cleveland in its attempt to obtain a Public Service Commission license to operate here in competition with the Parmalee System.

Signifying his approval of the application, he said:

"You tell them I'm willing to use my prestige as an attorney and as Mayor of Pittsburgh and sit with them before the Commission."

The Cleveland company would charge five cents for the first one-third mile and five cents for each third thereafter, whereas the Parmalee Company charges 4 cents for the first mile and 2 cents for each mile thereafter.

CUBAN ARMY CHIEF DENIES PLOT, SUPPORTS HEVIA

U. S. GOODWILL FIRST AIM OF NEW RULE

By RICHARD ARMSTRONG
International News Service.

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—Amidst a storm of rumors he was preparing a military coup to seize control of the Cuban government, Col. Fulgencio Batista, commander-in-chief of the army, today pledged his full support to the newly-installed president, Carlos Hevia.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, Col. Batista denied dissension existed between the army and the navy, saying they were "united as one and ready for all emergencies."

He revealed that one of President Hevia's first objectives will be to win United States recognition, and with this in mind will immediately attempt to settle the trouble arising from government seizure of the $200,000,000 properties of the American-owned Cuban Electric Company.

HAVANA STILL TENSE

In pledging his support to Hevia, Col. Batista spiked rumors he was plotting a coup as a result of a feud with Antonio Guiteras, former cabinet minister who, having the support of the navy, was Hevia's chief backer for the presidency.

Havana still was tense today in anticipation of a possible civil war between the army and navy groups. Despite Col. Batista's assertions, there was uneasiness in some circles lest trouble break out which he would be unable to suppress.

After declaring the army and navy were "united as one," Col. Batista continued:

"I am supporting Carlos Hevia in the presidency. I feel that this government stands a good chance of gaining the recognition of the United States.

"Rumors that I am backing Alejandro Viergara (student leader and former Mayor of Havana) for the presidency are untrue.

SEEKS U. S. GOOD WILL

"My support was first given to Carlos Mendieta (Nationalist leader) when his name was mentioned along with that of Hevia for the presidency, but in view of his declining, I changed my support to Hevia.

"Time may change the political outlook, but Hevia appears to be the man to guide Cuba until the constitutional assembly convenes. Hevia told me he is extremely interested in obtaining the good will of the United States, and consequently the Cuban Electric Company problem will be one of the first matters he will attempt to regulate."

Hevia, formally sworn into office only yesterday, already faced grave labor troubles. Workers in various industries, both in Havana and some of the provinces, threatened to go on strike unless their varied demands were met.

In addition to this, many small political groups aggravated the situation by demonstrating against the Hevia regime, a fact which made the real political situation difficult to discern. Organizations were changing their affiliations almost hourly.

BAKERY STRIKE CONTINUES

Bakers and drivers of the Ward Baking Company at 3100 Liberty avenue and Baur Brothers bakery at 6448 Penn avenue began the fourth day of their strike today.

Fighting has sent one man to a hospital and has caused the arrest of two others.

Strikers said they walked out because their union had not been recognized. A spokesman for the employers said the men had agreed not to strike pending settlement of differences by the National Labor Board.

The strikers estimated that 470 men, or more than 90 per cent, were out at both plants, which are operated by one management. The plant spokesman estimated the walkout at 50 per cent.

Two others reported being attacked, John ologie, of Woolslayer street, and John L. Boyle, of Ridgeville street. They filed charges against Lawrence Doyle, of Kincaid street, who works at the Ward plant, and Fred Benz, of the Baur plant.

Injured Starling Given Home By Undertaker

A young starling, found injured at Ross and Diamond streets, today has a Springdale home after local humane agencies suggested it be chloroformed.

The bird, suffering internal injuries, was found yesterday morning by Policeman Edward Winterhalter. He took it to the morgue where Deputy Coroner W. M. Jackson called for the coroner's physician, Dr. James W. McMeans. It rested on a bed in the morgue operating room during the day while morgue attaches, hesitant to end its life, sought a means to nurse it to health.

Allen (Barney) Clowes, a Springdale undertaker, happened along, heard of the poor bird's plight and adopted it with hopes of making it a pet.

Women in Trial Hold Mdivanis' Fate

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The two romance-provoking princes who did not live "happily ever after" their marriages to princesses of the cinema and the opera, found women aplenty today as the second day of their grand theft trial opened.

Serge and David Mdivani faced 10 women in the jury trying them. On the witness stand was Miss Rose Adler, former bookkeeper, secretary and director of the oil concern from which they are charged with having unlawfully taken some $30,000. And beside them was Edna Covert Plummer, one of their attorneys.

GERMANY SHUNS SAAR VOTE

GENEVA, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The German government today refused to join the League of Nations Council in a discussion of preperations for a plebiscite in the Saar Basin.

The statement of refusal voiced an appreciation of the point of view as expressed by the council, but said the government regretted it was unable to participate in the discussions.

Earlier League of Nations circles today expresed the opinion that it may be advisable to mobilize an international force of police or troops to asure a free plebescite in the Saar Basin, where voters are to decide next year whether that area will be German, French, or remain under the League's control.

Code Authority Told Of Competition By Wagon Mines

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—More than 1,500 "snowbirds," truck mines supplying domestic coal in the Pittsburgh district, present a menace to the mining industry, the NRA code authority in Washington was told by members of the National Bituminous Industrial Board today.

Possibility of a price and wage war was cited as the most serious threat against labor and the unionized industry, board members declared. Throughout the Western Pennsylvania field the independent wagon mine operator has been a problem for a long time. Usually the mine is operated by the owner himself, who in many cases hires relatives on a share basis to do the actual mining.

These mines, employing anywhere from one to a dozen men, supply more than half a million tons of domestic coal in the Pittsburgh district alone, it is estimated.

The coal board met with Donald R. Richberg, general NRA counsel, in Washington and discussed plans to force the small operators to comply with the code provisions. J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Coal Control Association of Western Pennsylvania, is attending the meeting.

STRIKERS WAIT PLEA BY PRIEST

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Striking hard coal miners meet tomorrow to decide whether they will agree to end their walkout if the National Labor Board replaces the Anthracite Conciliation Board by a representative body for investigation of mine problems.

The plan is that of Monsignor J. J. Curran, Wilkes-Barre priest, who won permission from leaders of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania to present it to a district convention. The strike was called by this new union in its fight for recognition.

Entering its third day, the strike roll showed little difference from that of the first. Strikers claimed gains at some collieries and operators pointed to returning men at others. Of 25,000 regularly employed men, about 20,000 are estimated to be working.

Meanwhile the United Anthracite Miners' president is in the Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia. Rinaldo Cappellini, fiery leader of the strikers, was recommitted as a parole violator yesterday. He served nine months in 1931 on a charge of arson and will have to complete a two to five-year sentence as a result of his conviction for a disturbance at the home of his former wife Sunday.

Guardsmen Burned In Erie Plant Dies

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Godfrey Springer, 32, National Guard sergeant, died today of burns suffered a few hours earlier in the plant of the Union Iron Works.

Springer was first sergeant of Company G, 112th Infantry. A military funeral will be held Saturday.

FAY ACCUSES RUDY AND NEW GIRL

Vallee Scorns Idea Of Punching Dancer

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee, crooner, came back to town from Hollywood today with his marital troubles pressing heavy against his lawyer's mind.

Nor were the troubles so far from Rudy's. Both of them sat in the singer's office and went over the whole controversy between him and Fay Webb Vallee, his wife.

Vallee sighed:

"My marriage cost me a lot of money."

The lawyer, Hyman Bushel, said:

"Didn't I tell you, the whole thing's a big stick-up."

Apprised of the fact that his wife had amended her petition in Los Angeles to accuse him of misconduct with a "Jane Doe No. 3," Rudy left Bushel answer. The lawyer cried:

"It's—it's—utterly ridiculous."

Vallee mentioned Gary Leon, adagio dancer, and said he would have much, much more to say about him when the courts got around to hearing about it. Just offhand somebody said:

"Why didn't you punch him in the nose?"

Valle stopped toying with a papercutter and said:

"Lay off the baiting, now. We aren't schoolboys. A husband would be a fool to go out and poke a man."

WINDOW LEAP HINTED

The man who mentioned it said he was sorry, and the singer regained his aplomb with the papercutter, and Lawyer Bushel went on to explain that somebody would jump out of the window if records of certain telephone conversations between Leon and Mrs. Vallee ever were made public. Valle echoed somberly:

"God forbid that it ever be printed. Somebody would jump out of the window."

It was revealed in the interview that the crooner didn't really "get mad" until he returned from an engagement in Delaware on March 31, 1933—"the day before All Fools' Day"—and was informed that his wife had spent two hours in a dressing room with Leon while "The Sign of the Cross" flickered on the silver screen. Rudy declared:

"It was the straw that broke the camel's back. Then, I called her father (the Chief of Police at Santa Monica, Cal.) and told him to come and help us reach a separation agreement."

Thanks to the skill of Dr. Walter B. Dandy, of Johns Hopkins, the obstruction that threatened her life was removed from the baby's brain, and she is back in Texas with her family, well and happy.

A great combination, a flier like Wedell, an airplane able to go 200 miles an hour, and a surgeon like Dr. Dandy, with courage and science, to operate.

MR. WEDELL will want to know about the report from Langley Field that an airplane has been designed by responsible engineers to travel 544 miles an hour, 120 miles faster than the present speed record. Planes for overcoming air resistance are expected to give the extra speed.

The air offers six hundred times less resistance than water, but at very high speed it is said by pilots to become "hard as wood."

SOMETHING TO worry about, in case you want to worry. In Los Angeles, Capt. Carl Sunderland, retired army officer of the U. S. A., testifies that Communists, planning to overthrow the United States government, will begin by seizing government arsenals on the Pacific Coast. Everything is arranged.

The Communists could hardly hurt Washington, D. C., shooting from arsenals on the Pacific Coast. In any case, Pacific Coast people would not let them take those arsenals.

You can't have a revolution so easily in the United States. If the Northwest happens to want it, which it never would, the Southeast would say no, and if the Southwest wanted it, the Northeast would say no, and, in any case, the Middle West would not let them get at each other.

MISS STELLA SMITH

TYPISTS TRAP AUTO LOOTERS

Miss Stella Smith and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Betty Smith, of 134 Erin street, "baited" their automobile for thieves late yesterday and as a result a Negro boy was held in the Juvenile Detention Home and his companion was being sought by police today.

Thieves broke into the automobile last week and stole a valuable radio. Stella, 23, and Mrs. David Smith, 21, unemployed typists, were determined to halt the epidemic of autmobile thievery in their neighborhood.

Convinced that the thieves prey only on automobiles in which packages and other articles are exposed to view, the sisters-in-law filled their car with decoy packages. After "baiting" it with boxes of candy, they went into their home and watched.

A short time later they saw two Negro boys approach the machine. As the youthful pair attempted to wrench the door handle, Stella and Betty ran out.

They captured one, but the other escaped. His identity was learned by police. The captured boy was turned over to Center avenue police and sent to Juvenile Home.

DR. WYNEKOOP SINKS IN TRIAL FOR MURDER

Gruesome Testimony Heard, Death Table Back in Court

Policeman Walter Kelly described in minute detail the appearance of the slain girl as she was found on the night of November 21.

The defense showed special interest in the position of two pillows which were under the girl's head, and directed Kelly to indicate the exact manner in which they lay.

March yesterday identified the blood-stained undergarments worn by Rheta, blood-stained sheets and blankets, the operating table and described the condition of the operating room in the basement of the Wynekoop home where the body was found.

CLASH WITH JUDGE

Smith asked March:

"Did you get a receipt for the clothing when you turned it in to the Coroner's office?"

March replied:

"Lieut. Peterson and I did."

Smith sarcastically inquired:

"You both reached out and took the receipt, did you?"

Judge Joseph B. David interrupted with a demand that Attorney Smith stop asking foolish questions.

Smith declared:

"I'll ask what I want."

The judge told him:

"You'll ask what I say you can ask."

After several more exchanges, the judge roared an order for the questioning to proceed.

Prior to the opening of court, Martin Ward, Assistant State's Attorney, and attorneys for the defense denied reports that Dr. Wynekoop had made a second confession several hours after signing the statement in which she admitted firing the bullet into Rheta's back, allegedly when the girl was about to die of an overdose of chloroform.

LOOPHOLE SOUGHT

Defense attorneys questioned Policeman Kelly at length in an apparent attempt to uncover variances in his testimony about the appearances of the deathroom in comparison with the testimony of Policeman March.

There were one or two discrepancies. March told of a green smock lying on a chair in the room, and Kelly said it was on the floor. Their memories varied also about the furniture.

The defense then embarked on a line of testimony to show that Dr. Alice aided police in looking over the premises after the crime.

Kelly said Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, daughter of the defendant, escorted him to a rear door of the basement and that he found the door locked.

Further testimony brought out that the lock was of the spring type which automatically locks.

Freedom By February 1 Expected By Dr. Wynekoop

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—The law of compensation in which she devoutly believes is sustaining Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop today in her trial for the murder of her son Earle's wife, Rheta Gardner Wynekoop.

"Pay that you might earn—earn that you might pay."

Dr. Wynekoop is paying now, paying with her strength, her freedom and her peace of heart for whatever of worldly success and comfort has been hers through the almost 63 years of her life.

She expects to earn again by the time that sixty-third birthday rolls around on February 1. For then, according to her daughter, Catherine—a brilliant young physician who is attending her mother in court—she expects to be free and basking in the sunshine of California.

A family reunion for Dr. Wynekoop's birthday has been planned on the Pacific Coast, Catherine revealed; planned jauntily, at the moment of darkest distress, for the aged physician's life is in danger with every minute she sits in the courtroom under strain. The Wynekoop family clings to these plans like swimmers to a raft. Sunshine by February first!

Muriel McCormick Buys Property of Mother

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard came back to her childhood home, the castle-like landmark on Lake Shore Drive, and dominated the auction of the personal property of her mother, the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick from whom she was estranged for many years prior to the latter's death in August, 1932.

The auctioneer's coaxing "what am I bid?" realized an estimated total of $28,180 at the close of the first two sessions, which lasted until after last midnight, and Mrs. Hubbard, the former Muriel McCormick, was the purchaser of nearly a third of the linens, table services and much of the furniture.

The highest bid of the opening day was made by Mrs. Hubbard—a bid of $1,150 for a magnificent Brussels tapestry, once loaned by the late daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., for exhibit in the Chicago Art Institute. In describing it the auctioneer said it originally cost more than $10,000.

The majority of the other articles that commanded the highest prices were also brought by the daughter.

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Clarence Darrow, a trifle grayer, a trifle more stooped than when New York last saw him, leaned comfortably back in his chair today, hooked his thumbs on his exposed suspenders and said fervently, he hoped he wouldn't go to Heaven when he died. Said he:

"Of course, there isn't much danger of it. But, just the same, from all I've heard about Heaven, I'd hate to go there."

Darrow was in the drawing room of the home of Arthur Garfield Hays, Jr., and reporters were ringed around him with the doomed hope of asking him about his debate with Dr. John Haynes Holmes Friday on "Can Civilization Be Saved."

"Mr. Darrow, are you taking the affirmative or negative side?"

"Darned if I know. It doesn't make any difference. There isn't any civilization anyway."

"Ha, ha, ha, young man ain't you been south of the Mason Dixon Line? That's one thing we've always had plenty of."

"Is there any danger of religion break down?"

"I hope so. It's about time. The ignorance that religion breeds is appalling."

GARBO BACK FROM MYSTERY DESERT TRIP STILL UNWED

'HIDE AND SEEK' TOUR BY FILM PAIR ENDS

Plan to Marry Denied By Mamoulian; Star Again Secluded

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—Although the spell of desert mystery and silence still hung about Greta Garbo, the glamorous Swedish motion picture star was back home today single and fancy free after a "hide-and-seek" vacation in Arizona with her favorite director, Rouben Mamoulian.

Mamoulian was the spokesman who denied reports their friendship might have culminated in a trip to the altar during their four-day automobile excursion into remote parts of Arizona.

NO PLANS TO WED

He said:

"No, we are not married."

He was asked:

"Do you plan to be married?"

"I have no plans at all."

Miss Garbo he said had gone to her home upon their return but the walled-in house had remained dark last night and the screen star was not seen to enter. It was regarded probable that she had spent the night with one of her close friends.

The "hide and seek" vacation of Miss Garbo and her director in her latest picture was first revealed when they were chased by a speed policeman soon after they had entered Arizona.

AUTO CHASE 'AMUSING'

Later their identity was detected at Holbrook, Ariz., where they pledged the hotel proprietor to keep silent until they left the city.

The next day they spent three hours at Grand Canyon and then sped across Arizona, dodging reporters at Williams, Kingman and Topock, Ariz., and at Needles, Barstow and other California cities.

KILLERS ELUDE POLICE AFTER PRISON BREAK

Cigar-Smoking Girl Believed Aide of Six Desperadoes

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The phantom trail of Clyde Barrow, machine-gunning desperado, had vanished in the pine forests of East Texas today, after his spectacular delivery of five prisoners from the Eastham State Prison Farm.

Two guards were wounded by gunfire in attempting to halt yesterday's break. One of them, Major Crowson, shot in the abdomen, was said by physicians to have only a slight chance to live. Olan Bozeman, the other guard, was shot in the hip, but his wound was not serious.

One of the escaped convicts was Raymond Hamilton, killer and former companion of Barrow. He had boasted, when he reached the prison last August to start serving sentences totaling 263 years:

"I won't be here long—Clyde Barrow won't let me lie around a prison farm."

'RETURN AND KILL YOU"

To Deputy Sheriff Will Moore he said:

"I'll be out in less than a year and come back here and kill you."

There were unconfirmed reports the automobile in which the group escaped was driven by Bonnie Parker, Barrow's cigar-smoking and reputedly straight-shooting woman companion.

The invasion of the state prison farm was the first bold foray attributed to Barrow and his cigar-smoking "Moll," Bonnie Parker, since November 22, when they shot their way out of a trap laid by Sheriff Smoot Schmid, of Dallas, near Grand Prairie. Officers believed then that one or both of the outlaws had been wounded.

J. B. French, one of the five convicts who escaped, has been recaptured.

Warden W. W. Waid said French was caught near the farm late last night. French is serving 12 years for assault to murder, robbery and automobile theft.

CAPTURED BY HOUNDS

The hounds picked up the trail shortly after the break and followed it all day long as the fugitive twisted and backtracked through the dense underbrush. As the dogs drew closer French made a dash for the Negro's house. Wright threw his shotgun down on the convict and held him until the posse arrived.

He said that when he heard the sound of shooting he ducked into the brush during the excitement and hid there until he had a chance to run for the timber.

Barrow, who wielded a machine gun; Hamilton, and the other convicts, drove away in automobiles.

SAINT-GAUDENS BRANDS ART AS 'INSANE'

Temperamental Genius Likened to Garlic In Salad

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The Contemporary Club, despite the caliber of its talent, has failed to find the answer to the question: "Art, sane or insane?"

"What garlic is to the salad, insanity is to art," explained Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, and a son of the famous sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens. He added:

"My father once said that artists have the same brains as other people, but that they are over at one side of the head, sticking out like a bump."

Becoming more serious, Saint-Gaudens asserted that art is not truly a form of insanity, but is prone to attacks which give observers a misleading impression, adding:

"It all depends on the times. When conditions are happy and serene, so is art; if turmoil and confusion prevail, art seeks to reflect them."

Said Albert Sterner, well-known portrait painter:

"Not so. Art should try to stem the ugly tendencies in social disorders. The artist should strive to express an idea that is clear to the least informed layman."

R. Tait McKenzie, distinguished sculptor, had a kind word for all artists, but Thornton Oakley, professor in the school of the Pennsylvania Museum, covered his eyes to shut out the "horrors of some of the modern exhibitions."

It was too much for the club The members still are pondering the question: "Art, sane or insane?"

INDIA'S QUAKE TOLL 5,000

International News Service.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 17.—Between 5,000 and 7,000 persons were killed in the series of earthquakes which ravaged wide areas of Northern India, according to official estimates today.

Fears were expressed that the death toll would mount, as thousands have been left homeless and at the mercy of floods and bitter cold weather.

Chief damage was reported to have been wrought at Biharorissa, where losses were placed at 10,000,000 rupees (about $3,850,000).

Fliers returning from devastated areas in Northeastern India, in the foothills of the Himalayas, reported more than 1,000 were killed in the town of Muzzafarpur alone. This is a community of 44,000 population where not a single dwelling was left standing.

More than 10,000 head of cattle perished in Bihar Province, where villagers faced threat of famine.

HEIRESS DENIES MDIVANI RIFT

Universal Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 17.—The romance between Princess Mdivani, the former Barbara Hutton, is not off.

"Ridiculous!" stormed the heiress to the Woolworth millions, when questioned upon her arrivel here aboard the Japanese liner Tatsuta Maru from San Francisco, concerning a reported rift with the handsome Georgini nobleman.

Apprised of the rumor that her husband had secretly boarded the Tatsuta Maru she laughed, and said:

"That is funny. I heard nearly every day from him. He is aboard the Hikawa Maru, and told me in one of his radiograms that he would meet me when I arrived in Yokohama. It is going to be nice to be greeted by him when I reach there."

RUM SHIPS RACE TO LAND LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Rum boats—163 of them—were riding the Gulf Stream today toward the Spanish Main, in a race with the law that brought no frowns to the federal government.

The flotilla, bearing around 2,000,000 gallons of liquor, is bound for Belize, British Honduras; the Bahama Islands, and other foreign ports in the South, in an effort to get the liquor consulated for legal shipment into the United States before February 9.

The government announced the movement and made no mention of disapproval, indicating rather that the move would decrease the smuggling menace and increase in the supply of available liquor in this country. Rum Row had lingered long off New York and New England even after repeal.

PULITZER MADE CODE CHIEF

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—Ralph Pulitzer, of New York and St. Louis, today was named deputy administrator in charge of the newspaper code of fair practices and competition.

This code, along with that for the graphic arts industry, is being studied by President Roosevelt before he signs it.

Johnson told Pulitzer, when the latter raised the question, he did not feel his position as trustee of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and his interest pending final payments, in the late New York World, would interfere with his accepting the post.

MARION TALLEY 'SUB' UNAFRAID

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—A demure little wisp of a miss is Rose Marie Brancato who will make her debut in grand opera tonight.

A last-minute refusal by Marion Talley to agree to terms for a second appearance here gave her fellow townswoman her chance, and the 21-year-old coloratura soprano said she was elated.

And despite her evident shyness, youth, and the slightness which accentuates it—she weighs only 112 pounds—the young singer asserted she was not frightened by the prospect of facing 3,500 patrons in the ornate Civic Opera auditorium. The house is sold out for the performance. Miss Brancato said:

"I have been singing since I was 7 years old. I am not a bit frightened and I expect to eat my three regulation meals today.

"But I have one regret about tonight. I had hoped my family would not know about my coming here and that it would be a surprise to them. Now it has been in the papers and they will be so excited. That's not good."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The will of Helen S. Blackton, wife of J. Stuart Blackton, yachtsman and motion picture producer, disposing of an estate valued at $15,000, was admitted to probate in Superior Court here yesterday.

Blackton, who virtually was disinherited, had opposed probate of the will, but it was stated in court a settlement had been effected between him and the California Trust Company, executor of the estate.

Dr. P. J. Henney, Burgess of McKees Rocks, will not permit racketeers driven from Pittsburgh to locate in his borough, he declared when rumors reached him that the racketeers had those intentions.

The Burgess said:

"Chief of Police M. F. Matsey was notified two weeks ago to keep the borough clean. Our Council is controlled by the Miles Bryan faction and they will sanction anything, but I am Burgess here and as long as I am the Burgess there will be no rackets in this borough."

OWNER PENNED BY MINE FALL

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 17.—The mine of Ben Kibler, 55, in Northern Cambria County, today holds the fate of its owner. Trapped by a fall of rock this morning, Kibler may be entombed for 20 hours before rescuers are able to reach him.

In company with his son, Raymond Kibler, 20, the elder Kibler was working in his mone at Hastings, 50 feet from the pit mouth, when the roof collapsed. The son escaped and spread the alarm. More than 150 rescuers are working frantically to reach Kibler.

Miners employed by the Hastings Fuel Company, the Rich Hill Fuel Company and Civil Works Administration employes in Hastings joined in the rescue work.

Liquor Stores Stock Cheaper Whisky, Gin

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—Complying with demands for cheaper whisky, the State Liquor Control Board has purchased 24 carloads of whisky and gin that will sell for $1 and 90 cents a fifth-gallon, respectively, it was revealed here today.

The whisky, a rye blend under the name "Sweepstakes," and gin, known as "Cavalier," will be placed on sale in state liquor stores on Monday, according to the report.

WESTMINSTER EX-HEAD DIES

The Rev. Dr. William Charles Wallace, 59, former president of Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., died today in Mercy Hospital, after a long illness.

He was born in Jamestown, Pa., was graduated from Geneva College and the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. He served as pastor of United Presbyterian churches in Colorado Springs, Col.; Sheraden and Braddock prior to becoming head of Westminster in 1916.

Ill health compelled his resignation in 1930. During his term, several new buildings were erected, including the main college building. He resided at 3504 Sixth avenue, Beaver Falls.

Walker Nephew Held On Girl's Accusation

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—William H. Walker, Jr., nephew of former Mayor James J. Walker, was held for the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate Overton Harris in West Side Court.

Magistrate Harris, announcing his decision, declared that Miss Margaret Shore, who accused Walker of attacking her, had established a prima facie case, "and the crime—if one was committed—was a most brutal one."

JEWELER GRABS GEM THIEF

Center Avenue police today were searching for a Negro who snatched a handful of rings from the jewelry store of Charles Witzel, at 1204 Fifth avenue, and who lost a major portion of the loot when Witzel gave chase and grappled with him late yesterday.

2 STILLS RAIDED IN RANKIN

Two stills and a quantity of liquor ingredients were seized in raids at 46 and 50 Spring street Rankin, today by members of the federal alcohol beverage unit, operatives of the State Department of Revenue and Rankin police.

A 200-gallon still was found at 50 Spring street, but the house was unoccupied, according to the officers. John Malcaney was arrested at the other place and a five-gallon still and supplies were confiscated.

Two other places were raided by Hill police last night. Police arrested Freda Miller, 28, at 1413 Fifth avenue. Merl Casey, of 1508 Clark street, and Julia Beamer, of 138 Crawford street, Negroes, were arrested at the Clark street address.

Mrs. Straus, 74, To Join Africa Expedition

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—At 74 Mrs. Oscar Straus, widow of Theodore Roosevelt's Secretary of Commerce and an aunt of the Ambassador to France, Jesse Isidor Straus, today was looking forward to joining a Field Museum expedition in West Africa.

The expedition was scheduled to leave for New York today by auto and supply truck.

Mrs. Straus, the sponsor, said she would join the party next month at Dakar, French Senegal, and accompany it during the two months of preliminary work and travel.

Actor Weds Girl Who Sued for Balm

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Donald Cook, movie actor, and Maxine Lewis, who recently sued him for $100,000 on charges of breach of promise to marry, were married yesterday in a ceremony performed by a justice of the peace at Beverly Hills.

When they filed their notice of intention to wed, Miss Lewis, 29, said the lawsuit had been forgotten. Cook was married and divorced by Frances Beranger, daughter of Mrs. William C. DeMille, and at one time was engaged to Evelyn Knapp, screen actress.

Haldeman-Julius Answers Wife's Suit

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—E. Haldeman-Julius, Girard, Kan., publisher, and champion of companionate marriage, filed an answer yesterday to his wife's suit for separate maintenance and judgment of $125,000.

The lengthy answer admits that Mrs. Haldeman-Julius at the time of their marriage in 1916 at Cedarville, Ill., possessed property worth $125,000 and that he possessed $2,000, but denies her charge that he paid nothing to the support of the family from May 26, 1931, to March 4, 1933.

Former Bank Clerk Paroled By Court

Andrew Sholtis, 38, of 961 Woods Run avenue, was paroled for two years today by Judge Sylvester J. Snee after pleading guilty to embezzling $659 from the Ohio Valley Bank, where he was a clerk.

Sholtis admitted taking the money last August but testified $200 had been returned. The parole was dependent on complete restitution.

Widow Fights for Note Of Poison Victim

Right of the County Coroner to retain possession of a suicide note for his official files was the basis of a test case in Common Pleas Court today. Possession of a farewell note left by Ben F. Steinman, Squirrel Hill meat market proprietor, who died of poison October 20, is sought by Steinman's widow, of 5844 Alderson street.

She obtained a rule from Judge H. H. Rowand to compel Coroner W. J. McGregor to show cause why he should not return the note to her. It was found in Steinman's clothing after his death. McGregor, who invited the test suit, contended the note should remain in his possession and explained it was customary to give copies of such notes to the families.

According ot the Coroner's records the note reads:

"I just couldn't reconcile myself to losing the insurance. Give Tootsie an education and don't buy anything but government bonds. Goodby. Ben."

A Coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide. Attorney M. L. Avner, representing Mrs. Steinman, said she wanted the note for purely personal reasons. All insurance on Steinman's life had been paid, he said.

2500 Flee Aimee Sermon When Debate Fails

SEATTLE, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Offered their choice of their money back or listening to a sermon by Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, after a scheduled debate had been called off, more than 2,500 persons sought their money last night.

The exodus of about half of the audience followed her announcement from the platform that her debate opponent, Charles Lee Smith, noted atheist, had failed to arrive. She was to debate him on: "There Is No God."

As the time neared for the program to begin, word reached the auditorium that Smith was still in Portland, his plane having been turned back by fog.

Minutes after a hurried consultation with members of her official family, the evangelist appeared on the platform and announced:

"I have bad news for you. Mr. Smith has been unable to reach Seattle. But I'm going to make you a proposition.

"I'm going to preach one of my very best sermons, 'The Second Coming of Christ.' Any of you who do not care to remain may leave and have your money refunded at the box office, while we join in singing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.'"

By the time the final verse was being sung, the aisles were crowded, and soon the lobby was jammed with patrons clustering about the box office.

GLASS GRANTED DOLLAR PLAN CONCESSIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Some slight concessions to Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, the nature of which was withheld for the time, marked the administration's new dollar legislation as it was started today through Congress.

Assured of the constitutionality of the gold-confiscation phase, President Roosevelt discussed his monetary plans briefly with Frank Vanderlip, New York banker; J. H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the Nation, and Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck Company.

REFUSE COMMENT

The callers declined to comment on their talk, but indicated that no new action was in prospect, so far as they knew.

The House Coinage Committee, meanwhile, halted its other inquiry into money questions to speed this latest official bill on its way, possibly with open hearings.

Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking Committee, put the administration measure formally before the Senate, but before the changes made could be ascertained the draft was shot to the printers so plentiful copies could be made available. Senators would not speak of the alterations, said to be mainly of a minor and perfecting nature.

GLASS TART

Tartly, Glass commented to newspapermen off the floor that the bill "made one man (Secretary of the Treasury) a central bank and he not a banker."

The measure authorizes the taking over by the Treasury of all monetary gold stocks, including that of the Federal Reserve banks, permits the President to lower the gold value of the dollar to between 50 and 60 cents, and establishes a stabilization fund of $2,000,000,000 to be taken from the profits from gold revaluation.

President to Push Drive For Higher Prices

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Differences between economists notwithstanding, it remained apparent today that President Roosevelt intends to push his dollar devaluation and other efforts to raise prices on the theory that only through such increases is profit possible and debt bearable.

Many economists object to this theory on the ground that it is disparity in prices, rather than their low level, which causes the trouble.

Meanwhile, federal statisticians today figured that farmers who produce three of the nation's principal crops are potentially $29,604,165 richer now than a week ago as a result of price increases on the Chicago market following President Roosevelt's request for legislation to establish a commodity dollar.

Economists close to the President argue that in the past a period of prosperity has accompanied a period of rising prices, and even the debt created in such time is held by many to be necessary to economic gain. This is because the creation of debt, or credit, is much the same as creating money since loans create bank deposits.

WORLD MONEY HARMONY SEEN

Associated Press.

Harmony on the subject of international currency relations was indicated today by dispatches from Washington, London and Tokio.

United States Treasury officials said they could see no reason that the United States and Great Britain should engage in sharpshooting at each other's currencies in efforts to achieve exchange supremacy.

The British Treasury officials were more reticent, but high financial authorities in London expressed exactly the same opinion as that heard in Washington.

The Britons added that both their own equalization fund, which is intended to keep the pound sterling and the French franc balanced, and the financial power of the United States were too strong to permit of warfare.

In Tokio, the Japanese minister of finance, Korekiyo Takahashi, indicated that his government probably would follow the monetary policies announced by President Roosevelt.

HOUSE WORKS ON TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The House Ways and Means Committee today in executive session began formulating the $270,000,000 general revenue bill but made slow progress due to many proposals for changes.

One of the most important changes proposed was for a restoration of a credit for earned income, for normal income tax purposes only, to the income tax law.

Sponsored by Representative Bacharach (Rep.), of New Jersey, the earned income credit would be in the form of a 12½ per cent deduction of the earned net income instead of the 25 per cent, credit against the tax.

Bacharach said:

"The change is merely a change in the method of computing the credit for the purpose of simplification.

"The credit for earned income shall not apply under my proposal to net incomes in excess of $10,000, and for administrative purposes of the $5,000 of the net income is presumed to be earned."

Roosevelt Message On Debts Delayed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt does not intend to send his promised foreign debt message to Congress for a month yet, he told inquirers at the White House today.

The President touched only briefly on the debts issue in his annual message, saying he would later send a special message.

SEES CANADA PUSH CANALS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Representative Snell, of New York, Republican leader, told the House today that if the United States did not ratify the St. Lawrence waterway treaty at this session of Congress, it may not have an opportunity, for Canada may construct the canals alone.

In lengthy debate on the treaty, which has been sidetracked temporarily i nthe Senate because of opposition to ratification, Snell said:

"Canada already has started on the development of the St. Lawrence waterway and will finish it alone if necessary. Then American ships will pay tolls to operate from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes.

"If you do not accept this opportunity to join with Canada now, you may never have another. It is impossible for the United States to get into the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence alone, but the Canadians can do it alone and they will."

He was preparing to take his views to President Roosevelt.

Arabs held their long expected procession in protest against Jewish immigration, but the demonstration passed quietly.

By GEORGE H. KENNEDY, JR.
International News Service.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 17.—With rock-ribbed Republican Vermont back in the G. O. P. fold by election of Ernest W. Gibson to the United States Senate and Charles A. Plumley to the state's lone seat in the House of Representatives, political observers today drew a striking parallel with the 1932 presidential election.

In the presidential election, it was pointed out, Franklin D. Roosevelt obtained 41 per cent of the Vermont vote in his contest with Herbert Hoover.

Yesterday, the Democratic candidates, Harry W. Witters and Robert W. Ready, running on a platform of support for the President, obtained just 42 per cent of the vote.

In a campaign regarded as the federal administration's first state-wide test at the polls, Gibson and Plumley carried the day with a majority of only 8,000 votes, piled up for them in the rural areas.

The Democrats carried every city of the state except Montpelier, but it was the county districts which decided the issue. However, the voting in the agricultural counties was light, due to one of the heaviest snowfalls in the history of the Weather Bureau here.

Approximately 48,000 votes were cast throughout the state. Returns gave Gibson 28,414 to 20,348 for Witters. Plumley was credited with 28,181 to 20,314 for Ready.

Providence Guides Roosevelt, Says Radio Priest

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, in the opinion of Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, is being guided by Providence.

Approving the President's monetary policy before the House Coinage Committees, he expressed the hope that the President would make no error in his policy.

"Roosevelt is not going to make a mistake because, I think, God Almighty is directing him."

BANKER REPLIES TO COUGHLIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—There is no famine of money, but there is a "maldistribtuion of wealth," James P. Warburg said in a letter today to the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest, in reply to statements made by the priest in an address on Sunday.

Warburg, vice chairman of the Bank of Manhattan Company and former adviser to the American delegation at the London Economic Conference, said:

"We have no famine of money—we have a maldistribution of wealth. Making two dollars out of a dollar will not cure the maldistribution of wealth. It will not enrich the poor any more than calling six inches a foot will make you any taller. You will be 12 feet high instead of six, but you will not be able to reach what is out of your reach now."

House-to-House Tax Canvass Considered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—A house to house canvass by Treasury agents to make certain income tax returns are filed by all who should file them was suggested to Internal Revenue collectors today by Secretary Morgenthau.

In an address to more than 150 agents assembled from every part of the country, Morgenthau set the collection of $200,000,000 as the minimum objective for this year in the Treasury campaign to collect back taxes.

Stock Legislation To Be Ready Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—Legislation for stock exchange regulation and probably changes in railroad regulation may begin to take shape in the next few weeks, it was said at the White House today.

President Roosevelt is awaiting a report from the committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Roper which has been studying the stock market situation. Next week, the President will have a conference with Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad co-ordinator.

Middle Class Called Devaluation Victims

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. S. S. Haubner, professor of industry and commerce at the Wharton school of the University of Pennsylvania, said today "the devaluation of the dollar by President Roosevelt will result in the despoiling of the hard-working middle class of this country."

He added that the devaluation "will not affect investments at all, although it has resulted in a smaller dollar."

Senate Approves Capital Rum Law

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—A new liquor law for the national capital, based upon the private license system, was approved by the Senate today with only 2 hours of debate.

Accepting a house bill to permit sale of liquor under the license system, it rejected, without a record vote, a substitute proposing the dispensary system.

GUARDIAN CASH BROUGHT HERE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Shifting of millions of dollars of class A trust funds of the Union Guardian Trust Company of Detroit among banks outside the state just before the state banking holiday was described to Senate investigators today as "a readjustment of depositories."

Clifford B. Longley, a former president of the company, told the committee investigating the Detroit banking collapse he was not familiar with the purposes of all the transactions but that it was the bank's desire to realign its funds.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, read into the record more than a score of withdrawals of class A funds from the trust company up to the closing of all the banks in the state which were placed in banks in New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Longley testified to the withdrawal of a total of $3,525,069 from the various depositories of the trust company after the state banking holiday was proclaimed last February.

Transferred to the Farmers Deposit Bank of Pittsburgh was $260,000 and to the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh $430,000, Longley said.

ROBINSON FOR JOHNSON CALL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, announced today he would support the Johnson bill, outlawing sale of securities or loans to defaulting debtor nations.

Robinson said the measure would have to be amended to exclude new securities, issues by any defaulting government to replace defaulted bonds. He blocked the bill last week, but said he would have the Senate dispose of it within another week.

Robinson said:

"Plainly the bill is not effective to protect holders of bonds, issued before its passage, in cases where scrip or other new obligations are issued hereafter for service on existing bonds.

"It seems there should be an amendment to take care of these."

Robinson said the bill might have to be amended to safeguard the administration's proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, since the government seeks power to purchase all manner of foreign securities.

RELIEF FUNDS REQUEST NEAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Congress soon now will be asked by the President for the $1,166,000,000 additional funds to complete this year's emergency budget, from which money will be used to continue the Civil Works Administration and other relief agencies through the spring.

This developed today coincident with the regular presidential press conference, the huge figure being the same one as mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt in his budget message early this month.

Administration leaders at the capitol have shown no concern over the possibility of getting the funds. The appropriation bills already have started on their course, and this emergency sum will follow in due time.

Roosevelt Money Plan 'Clever,' Babson Says

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Roger W. Babson, the economist, in a statement here today described President Roosevelt's money program as "a very clever thing" and predicted that the President would finish his present term with a smaller national debt than at the time of his inauguration. Mr. Babson said:

"The monetary move by the President will have no immediate effect on the man in the street because the man in the street still has confidence in the money in his pocket and hence will hang onto it.

"The only way that inflation raises domestic prices is when the man in the street begins to lose faith in his money and hastens to get rid of it. Only when the man in the street loses confidence do domestic prices go up.

"That hasn't occurred as yet."

CLUB OPPOSES TREATY TERMS

The Propeller Club of the United States is not opposed to the St. Lawrence waterway project but is opposing the terms of the treaty paving the way for the improvement, A. J. P. Vandermyn, president of the Pittsburgh Propeller Club and national vice president, said today.

Vandermyn said the club is opposing internationalization of Lake Michigan; terms by which the United States would spend $150,000,000 in Canada for Canadian labor, materials and engineers and contribution by the United States of 65 per cent of the cost of the project.

Whitaker Burgess' Election Sustained

Election of Samuel Hull as Burgess of Whitaker was upheld today by Judge Frank P. Patterson who dismissed the petition of the defeated candidate, Robert Hicks.

NAZI GETS TERM IN BEATING

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—A sentence of seven months in jail today was given a Nazi storm trooper named Friedel, convicted of beating Max Schussler, a Jew, who formerly lived in New York.

Schussler's treatment was protested yesterday by Raymond Geist, United States consul, to the Prussian secret police.

Friedel lived in a house owned by Schussler. The latter claimed the trooper beat him brutally in a quarrel over rent.

The sentence, passed by a summary tribunal—also known as a "speed court"—constitutes the quickest action achieved by the United States diplomats in Berlin on any case affecting American citizens under the Nazi regime.

Geist said that in his opinion the sentence could be regarded as a satisfactory disposal of the incident.

SENATE BATTLE OVER VET FUND CUTS NEAR

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A legislative battle over restoring $80,000,000 in annual benefits to disabled veterans of the World War and their dependents loomed today in the Senate, as Republicans sought Democratic support for liberalizing the national economy act.

Congress appeared ready to authorize a more liberal treatment of the veterans, if President Roosevelt gives his approval or acquiescence. His direct opposition, however, likely will kill the movement, although its proponents have hopes of victory even in the face of presidential disapproval.

REED PROPOSALS

The program, as proposed by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, a World War major of artillery, was:

1—Restoring all disabled veterans to the service connected rolls, who were on the rolls prior to passage of the economy act.

3—Hospitalization for all veterans, not dishonorably discharged, who are unable to pay for their own treatment.

4—Enactment of a $15 monthly compensation for all widows and orphans of veterans.

Reed offered it as an amendment to the independent offices appropriation bill, thus insuring an early vote in the Senate. The Senate Appropriations Committee meanwhile began consideration of the measure. It probably will be reported to the Senate by the end of this week.

LEGION SUGGESTIONS

The Reed plan was drafted originally by the American Legion. Reed said:

"This is not a fight against the President. It is a fight for justice. It is not a partisan issue. Both Democrats and Republicans will support it in the Senate.

"The restorations are reasonable and fair. If it is adopted in the Senate it is certain to pass the House."

Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, representing the attitude of administration leaders, said he had not decided whether to support the plan. He declared:

"I want to restore veterans' benefits at the earliest possible moment. I shall vote for it as soon as it can be done safely to the finances of the government."

RIVER ENGINEER DIES IN FALL

Donald W. Kilmer, 25, an inspector of the United States engineers' office, was dead today, the first fatality on the Montgomery Island dam, under construction in the Ohio River, below Beaver.

Two years and a half ago the young man's father, Capt. William Kilmer, assistant to Col. Jarvis J. Bayne, former United States engineer for the Pittsburgh ditsrict, died here of pneumonia.

The young Kilmer had been on the Montgomery Island project only two days Monday when he fell 42 feet to his death.

He had attended the University of Pittsburgh, prior to his father's death, after which the family moved to Washington.

His mother, who resides in the Schenley Apartments, said she had asked permission to bury her son beside his father in Arlington Cemetery at Washington. Besides his mother he leaves a brother, Norman, also connected with the engineers' office here.

U. S. FRIENDSHIP AND PEACE AIM OF PU-YI

HSINKING (Changchun), Jan. 17. — (AP.) — A frank bid for friendship and recognition by the United States for the new Manchukuoan empire to be created next March was uttered today by Henry Pu-Yi in his first interview since becoming emperor-designate.

Speaking freely and confidently, the former boy emperor of China confided his hopes and plans for his Manchurian reign, and outlined the broad basis of a foreign policy. He said:

POLICY OF PEACE

"During my reign I hope, with Heavenly guidance, to emulate the great Chinese emperors of the Golden Chow dynasty.

"My policy will be peace and security, international amity and the observance of all foreign obligations.

"I will keep open the door of commerce to all nations.

"Whether Washington recognizes Manchukuo or not, Americans will always be welcome in Manchuria. I have many American friends who I like to believe form a bond of amity between the two countries.

"Whatever our political differences, I am sure that the Manchurian Empire and America can work together for the preservation of peace, which is fully as precious to us in the Orient as it is to America."

HOPES TO VISIT U. S.

The youthful emperor-designate said he hoped eventually to visit the United States and Europe. He said that in view of the approaching ceremonies he wished "to convey to the American people through the Associated Press my cordial greetings and whole-hearted friendship."

He looked like a West Pointer, in his new field marshal's uniform of khaki. Embroidered upon his epaulettes were golden orchids and stars. He wore spurred leather boots. His manner was friendly, almost jaunty.

The seriousness and reverence with which he looks forward to his new status were not denied, however, by the jauntiness of his manner. He said:

"The welfare, happiness, peace and progress of the people will be my most devout concern. I shall strive wholeheartedly to answer worthily the divine will and the voice of the people which are calling me to the throne."

Tokio Names Kato To High Navy Post

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Vice Admiral Viscount Takayoshi Kato today was appointed vice chief of the naval general staff—one of the Japanese navy's most strategic posts.

Kato is the adopted son of the late Admiral Viscount Tomosaburu Kato, premier in 1922 and 1923, who was Japan's strongest delegate at the Washington conference and chiefly responsible for Japan's acceptance of the Washington naval treat. The son, however, is considered an opponent of naval treaties.

Jap Army Pushes Mongolian Invasion

PEIPING, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—A force of 1,000 Japanese and Manchukuo troops today occupied the city of Lungmanssu, carrying the Japanese penetration of inner Mongolia one step further and evoking a strong protest from the Nanking government.

Japanese military planes flew over a wide area about the city, dropping leaflets announcing that the area now was a part of the independent state of Manchukuo and no longer was under Chinese rule.

Britain Contracts For Eight Warships

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The admiralty today awarded contracts for eight destroyers to cost $11,250,000 under the normal replacement program of 1933. Like other vessels of the naval replacement program in recent years, the construction of the ships has been long delayed.

Still to be awarded are contracts for the two 9,000-ton cruisers and one 5,200-ton cruiser which the admiralty announced its intention to build several weeks ago.

Russ Cargo Service To U. S. to Commence

MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—The first Soviet cargo service between the U. S. S. R. and the United States will be inaugurated in February, it was announced today.

Early in February the 7,000-ton steamer Kim, with a cargo of manganese, will leave the Black Sea port of Novorossisk bound for New York. Thereafter the Soviet government hopes to maintain a fortnightly service between various Black Sea ports and New York and Baltimore.

Jap Naval Officers Sailing for 'Frisco

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—Seven Japanese naval officers will leave for the United States aboard the liner Asama Maru tomorrow, it was learned today.

The purpose of their mission was not disclosed. The officers plan to visit San Francisco.

State Rum Receipts Mount to $475,669

HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—The state liquor stores fund, representing the receipts from sales at stores and the $10 filing fee for retail liquor applications, neared the half-million dollar mark today.

Transmittal of $123,083 to the fund by the Department of Revenue brought the total to $475,669.

'Is This Made in America, Please?'

MISS ALICE QUINN — WILLIAM WYLAND — MISS LOVUOLA

Miss Quinn and Mr. Wyland, soon to be married, in a Fifth avenue shop after they left the Marriage License Bureau. They pledged themselves to "Buy (only) American" from now on.

'BUY AMERICA' ADOPTED BY NEWLYWEDS

"This is our first step in 'Buying American,' smiles Alice Quinn, 21, of 2425 Charles street, and William J. Wyland, also 21, of 20 Strauss street, as they were sworn in for their marriage at 3:20 p. m. yesterday by Bert Winters of the Marriage License Bureau, in the City-County Building. Alice explained:

"We've been living in the United States; in fact in the North Side of Pittsburgh, all our lives, and when we decided to get married we thought we might as well make our apartment really American by buying only goods made in this country."

Alice and William are childhood sweethearts. They've liked each other since passing-notes days in Latimer Junior High School. For some time now they've been talking of marriage, so they decided to take the initial step yesterday, since William's been working at the Pitt Bakeries long enough to save up sufficient money to get started on.

After getting their license, the young couple started on a brief shopping tour to pick up some necessary "American-made" specials, for the apartment.

During the shopping trip, young Wyland was so happy he almost burst into song as he used to do when under the name of Billy Baxter he crooned to radio listeners at large, and Alice, in particular, over station KQV in Pittsburgh and WNBO in Washington, Pa.

His newest song, a duet with Alice, is:

Pu-Yi Censorship Violated, Japs Seize Papers

OSAKA, Japan, Jan. 17.—(INS.)—Police today seized the 400,000 copies of the popular independent newspaper Mainichi Shimbun for violating the press censorship of news pertaining to the forthcoming coronation of Henry Pu-Yi as emperor of Manchukuo. The paper said:

"The change about to take place will come from God, and not the people. A ruler should not be guided by the people's will."

The statement, purportedly emanating from the Japanese secretary-general of the Manchukuo Executive Committee, seemed strange, since it contradicted the inspired headlines which have been appearing for several weeks saying millions of Manchukuons had signed petitions to make Pu-Yi their sovereign.

Attends Daughter's Golden Wedding Fete

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marie McGlumphy Scott, 85, of Claylick, last night attended the golden wedding anniversary celebration of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Lewis. The son-in-law is 74; the daughter, 65. Two of Mrs. Scott's great grandchildren also attended.

Patrick Wilson Dies; Ex-Hotel Man Here

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 17.—Patrick Wilson, 82, who at one time owned the old Market Hotel in Pittsburgh, died at his home after a long illness. Mr. Wilson came here in 1905 to manage the Union Brewery.

The body will be taken to St. Mary's Cemetery, Pittsburgh, for burial on Friday.

PANAMA BOMBED IN JAP BOOK

Canal's Destruction And Loss of U. S. Ships Described

leave to go to her bedside, but was refused because the ship was about to weigh anchor. The despairing sailor received a second message saying that she was dead when the vessel arrived at Darien. He was so stricken with grief and rage at having been denied a last visit to her that he deserted.

But now that was is declared, he explains, he must go to the colors. In the end, he leaves his wife, and finds himself back aboard the Nara, with Lieut. Maki, where they come to have many great adventures together, and to find a touching connection with each other. But that comes later.

Ships in Atlantic

Fortunately for Japan, when war was declared, the greater portion of the United States battle fleet was in the Atlantic Ocean. (To which the battle fleet is scheduled to return this spring).

There is a revolution on in Cuba and the fleet is doing duty off the Cuban coast to keep American lives and property safe. But when the war is declared, the Army is sent to Cuba and the Navy ordered back to the Pacific.

As the ships form into line off the Atlantic side of the Panama Canal for transfer through to the Pacific side, Capt. Ward, Commander of the flagship Oklahoma, calls his aide to him for a discussion of the coming affairs. They agree that the Japanese submarines supposedly hiding off the coast are not much of a menace, as their guns are too small to do much damage, and everybody is watching out for torpedies.

U. S. planes are aloft to guard against Jap air attacks expected from the hidden forces in Costa Rica, Colombia, and the republic of Panama. The captain and his aides agree that everything seems safe, as they do not believe the Japanese battle fleet can reach the Pacific Coast by the time they can get their own forces through the canal.

Canal Blasted

But the captain reckons without a Negro who is supposed to have deserted the ship in Havana. (United States vessels have Filipino mess boys.) While the captain is discussing his safety with his officers, the Negro slips into his cabin, and reads that the ship will pass through the canal at 10 o'clock in the morning. The Negro smiles, and disappears from view.

The next morning, when the Oklahoma is within the concrete walls of the lock, being towed through to the lake beyond, there is a terrific explosion. The walls crumble and the mountain slides down into the water. Both the ship and the canal are wrecked, and it is months before there is a way through again.

The President of the United States issues an order that no Negro may become a soldier of the United States, thereby cutting down on the forces.

The next scene of war lies in the bay off San Francisco, off Mare Island.

The 16-inch gun ships, Maryland, Colorado and West Virginia, and the 14-inch gun ships, California, Idaho and Tennessee, about half the battle fleet, are lined up waiting turns at the dock for loading oil.

Jap Youths Conspire

The airplane carriers Lexington and Saratoga are tied up just beyond the battleships, and just beyond them is the tender ship Patoaka with the huge dirigible Macon moored at the mast. These things, visible from Golden Gate Park, make an inspiring sight, for three Japanese youths born in America, Frank Kodama, George Takahashi and Henry Baba.

They determine to get rid of the ships, but they are halted for a moment by Henry, who says that Jimmy Takada told him to remember that they are all American citizens and that if they should find anyone plotting against the government they should report it to the police.

They agreed that they should be very careful, and Henry, to show that he was not weak, declared that he was going to help Japan, because he would not stand by and see his parents' country lose. He recalls to his companions the noble work of the Negro at the canal.

Thereupon, Frank and George tell Henry to go and get Charles Axuma, who owns an airplane. They did not really want the plane, but as they did not trust Henry very much, were eager to get rid of him before setting in to the big work of the night.

In the darkness they set out in a rowboat for the Patoaka, which they reached, luckily, and, without being seen, climbed aboard. Up the huge mooring mast the brave boys went, and loosened the great dirigible, the Macon, which soared away into the darkness, out of control.

Lights flashed from the other ships, and sirens screamed. Frank and George were captured. But the Macon was lost in the night, with many men and supplies. It was a great loss to the U. S. Navy.

Is Your Trouble This Morning due to last night's alcohol?

Like too much food, too much exercise or too much of anything, excess of alcohol sets up an acid condition that is responsible for sick headache, sour stomach and the hope that you'll die. But don't despair. Get quick relief by taking BRIOSCHI (pronounced Bree-osky).

Brioschi makes a sparkling, fizzy drink that tastes like a good old-fashioned lemon soda. And in 30 minutes all the bad effects of the alcohol are gone. Brioschi quickly neutralizes the acids you've created in your system, you feel fit as a fiddle again.

Brioschi is a great "pick-me-up". It was discovered in Italy 50 years ago. Italians drink it regularly as we do soda water. Try Brioschi once and you'll always have it handy.

SALE! Famous Heel Huggers

Heel Huggers render a service to feet needing a definite support yet do not surrender any of their smartness. Try on a pair; bend, twist or walk in them. All you'll see is style, all you'll feel is comfort. These are the most highly developed smart arch support shoes, built on full combination lasts. They fit snugly at the heel, too, giving a perfect-fitting grip to the shoe.

Heel Huggers are comfortable from the first minute you put them on—no "breaking in" being necessary. Their built-in patented steel arch supports the arch, causing less strain on the muscles, and therefore preventing foot fatigue.

Straps, Pumps, Oxfords, Lattice effects and open ties. Materials include Black Kid, Glace Kid, Patent Colt, Brown Kid, Suedes and two-tones. Sizes up to 9; widths AAAA to EEE in the group.

It is important to get the Horne system of accurate shoe fitting. Expert shoe fitters take plenty of time to make sure that the shoes you buy will give you shoe comfort in every detail. They consider your posture, your tread, the scientific measurement of your stocking-inged foot and finally select a size best suited to your needs. Remember, too, that not one bit of their smart style has been sacrificed to make these shoes comfortable. No one will ever believe you are wearing an arch-support shoe, until you tell them they are "Heel Huggers."

7 HURT AS BOMB WRECKS HOME

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 17.—A double bombing early today wrecked the home and store of Emanuel Espasanda, 34, at Piney Fork, O., a mining settlement in Jefferson County. Seven persons escaped with minor injuries.

Espasanda, his wife and four small children, Mrs. Irene Wager and Louis Rotokowski were dropped in their beds from the second story into the basement as the floors split apart.

The blast damaged neighboring property and broke windows for a mile.

Sheriff Long said he believed the bombing was in retaliation for evidence given the Jefferson County grand jury Tuesday by Mrs. Espasanda and Rotokowski in the Carlos Ferra murder case at Piney Fork.

Ferra was slain last October in a hi-jacking attempt and the killers escaped.

AUTOISTS FREE IN DEATHS

Chester C. Amick, 303 Kenmont avenue, Mt. Lebanon, was exonerated by a Coroner's jury yesterday in the death of John C. Leslie, 69, of 336 Albert street, January 6.

Leslie had alighted from his car in Ardmore boulevard at Bevington road to obtain the license number of the automobile of two young women with whom he had collided when he was struck by Amick's machine, testimony showed.

John Crowley, 2017 Beaver avenue, was freed in the death of Mrs. Lena Cancelleria, 72, a widow, of 1411 Fulton street. He testified he did not see her until it was too late when she was struck by his car at Liverpool and Fulton streets, January 5. She died the following day.

JUNIOR PATROL

Part of the news the other day, fellows, was that the Cathedral of Learning, the skyscraper which the University of Pittsburgh is building, can be finished soon if people will give the university some more money. And the university has asked all its friends to give some more.

We are all hoping that Pitt will get it, and that the building can be finished soon. Many Pittsburgh school children gave gifts to help build it several years ago and they all want to see it finished, too. Over 1,000 men, paid by the government, are working on it now.

The cathedral is so beautiful that every Pittsburgher is proud of it. It is a tower that symbolizes courage and spirituality—it seems to reach up into the sky.

Now here is another letter from William Rush, of 1025 Rue Grand Vue, Elliott, Pittsburgh. He sends in the names of some of his members who came to his first meeting, but no pledges for them. Send in signed pledges, Bill. Holding a meeting is different in almost every club. Some captains like to have every member recite the pledge promises, and then they sing a club song and discuss old and new business. Often they make plans for the things they want to do. Then they have a program, and play games and have contests.

Here's a fine letter from Evelyn Snyder, of the New Deal Junior Patrol of Laurel Gardens. She has two new members, and says that her patrol is having a good time, and had a fine party recently.

Another new captain today is John Koost, of 6 Riverside Court, Blawnox, Pa. Please write and tell us what you are doing, John.

And say, here's another letter from Laurel Gardens. This one is from Helen Tinnemyer, of Box 94, and she is the captain. She writes:

"The members are working hard and trying their best to make the club a success. We are having a card party this month for the members and also for outside people. The exact date has not been set, but I will let you know."

That's dandy, Helen—lots of luck.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am,
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger,
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Mid-January, usually a newsless time, has a surprise or two. First there was news of the Presidential Ball, to be given on January 30 in the William Penn Hotel. And there've been some engagement announcements to interest the social set, too.

Today brings news of the betrothal of a Sewickley girl who's ever so popular, Ruth Willock. Her older sister, Virginia, is announcing Ruth's engagement to Henry Pearce Wright, son of the J. Merrill Wrights, of Beechwood boulevard.

The young Willock sisters are daughters of the late Frank Scott Willocks, of Academy avenue, Sewickley. Ruth was presented to society a few seasons ago, and is a member of the Junior League.

Maglin Wedding Solemnized at Settlement

At 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, the marriage of Miss Celia Maglin and Jack Lupovitz was solemnized by Rabbi H. Hailperin, of the Tree of Life Synagogue.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Maglin, of McKees Rocks, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of independence blue trimmed with silver metallic cloth with which she wore a matching hat. Her mother wore black satin.

Mrs. Jack Bergad, as her sister's matron of honor, wore black crepe with rhinestone accessories and Mrs. Harry Lupovitz, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore black satin made with a long train.

After a short honeymoon through the east Mr. and Mrs. Lupovitz will reside at the home of the bride's parents, Broadway avenue, McKees Rocks, about January 25.

Ruth Eckhardt Is Married In Chapel

The Rev. Regis P. Krah, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the wedding of Miss Ruth M. Eckhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Eckhardt, of Norwich avenue, South Hills, and Eugene Regis Krah, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Krah, of Forestville, Pa., which took place Monday in the chapel of Our Lady of the Angels, Toner Institute, Pittsburgh.

The Toner Institute boys' choir sang. Raymond Eckhardt, brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Mary Esther Krah, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

A powder blue crepe gown with a grey turban was worn by the bride, and a pink crepe costume by her bridesmaids. They carried roses and carnations. A wedding breakfast in the home of the bride's parents followed. After a honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Krah will be at home in West Euclid avenue, New Castle.

THE CHIC TABLE-TOP DRESS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

COSTUMES TO WEAR for the new rush of daytime hotel dates, those luncheons, cocktails and dinners for two that have been booming since Repeal, are the biggest wardrobe item just now.

Whereas the very bright frock is advocated for casual wear with fur coats, it seems a bit lacking on the sophisticated side for this other purpose. So the black gown with touches of white, aquamarine blue or dusty rose has come in with a clear field.

Drop into any of the smart uptown, mid-town restaurants after five and see the amount of variety and chic that designers can build out of this main color scheme.

Lots of people are wearing daytime artificial flowers lately, with the good old cloth Parma violet seen very often. Hats continue to be more off-the-face than on, and very simple in line, permitting rather elaborate necklines, plus the aforementioned flowers.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

For luncheon, this black wool crepe; the cuffs and bandolier are black moire, the collar and cuffs, white.

Congress Group to Hear Wife of Author of 'Mellon's Millions'

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Mrs. Harvey O'Connor, wife of the author of "Mellon's Millions," will be guest speaker at the literature department luncheon of the Congress of Clubs next Wednesday. 311 Housewives Praise New Washday Trick

A new secret for washday! Recently, 311 housewives tested it, found it works wonders.

Here's what you do. Just use your regular soap and regular washing method, then add two tablespoons or so of Lux. Stir the Lux around in the water and you'll be amazed at how much richer the suds become.

These richer suds work ever so much faster, leave white clothes whiter, keep colors bright. Cut down washing time! And you know how easy Lux is on your hands!

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

LUX

* * *

You've all heard us jabbering 'round about the Mexican influence on our clothes and accessories! Now listen to us warbling away about the new "Mex" jewelry which has come to town. Just a little different than most we've seen . . . and called "Caliente" to boot.

Made of bone, this . . . with gay painted roses (old Mexico loves its roses it seems) and bright stripes! And it makes very alluring earrings, pins, bracelets and clips to wear with dark clothes . . . or the first duds of Spring! $1.00.

* * *

Nothing we like better than dese yere words "only-one-of-a kind" . . . because we know then we've struck something worthy of a lot of neighing on our part . . . and excitement on yours!

And this time, it's men's handkerchiefs of which no male creature can have too many (being as how they invariably are used to wipe windshields, shoes and such!) And these are imported French linen ones with hand-rolled edges . . . in smart colors and combinations. They're all samples . . . hence the one-of-a-kind remark . . . hence the prices—$1 hankies for 59c . . . regular 50c ones for 29c!

* * *

Now . . . about the clothes question (WHAT a question!) We have found some nice, Spring-like frocks for you for $6.95 just at this particular moment! Nice soul-satisfying little jobs they are too . . . with their three styles (a pleated front with a tie, a jabot-tie, and a folded-back front with buttons) We 'specially liked the colors . . . lots of nice wistful gray or beige-pinks . . . tangerines if you feel bolder . . . dark and medium prints (which are unusually good for such a low price) . . . and finally an angelskin in yellow and green diagonal plaid! Sizes are 14 to 20 . . . sleeves are long or elbow-puff . . . and the way these eye-openers are made is a marvel. Pinked seams, deep pleats, and good hems—a miracle in disguise!

* * *

And then we wandered around for a while . . . and saw so many new gadgets you'll like, that we're more or less listing them here just as they come to mind:

For example . . . white enamel cigaret cases made just like the Dunhill ones which cost $10 . . . with a black Scottie poking his snoot up from one corner . . . and the whole thing costing $1.

And speaking of cigs . . . an ashtray, or rather ashtrays! These being 50c each or 2 for 95c (and who doesn't always need one more when guests arrive)! Black glass bases (big, round and sturdy) and chrome birds peering into them, or even a crescent moon grinning at one!

* * *

Next . . . if you've bemoaned the rings hot plates made on your tables, try this set of 4 hot plate protectors for $1. They have felt bases . . . chrome tops . . . and are the size of a butter plate.

* * *

Signing off . . . and with the "piece de resistance" of all—a spunky little cheese knife with a STERLING SILVER HANDLE. All for 50c, and we mean it! One of the best looking ones we've ever seen. And do YOU realize that even silver-plated ones cost far more?

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

Play Will Be Feature Of Uxority Club Meeting

When the Uxority Club's dramatic section meets Monday in Mrs. John Tyndal Loeber's home, Union avenue, a play called "The Fifth Commandment" will be presented. Service to Be Dedicated To 'YW'

Dedicated to the Young Women's Christian Association, a special vesper service will be held Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

The sermon by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr will be based upon the value of the Y. W. C. A.'s work to girls and young women. His topic will be "The Right to the Road." Earl Mitchell, Shadyside organist, has arranged an appropriate program of music for organ and choir.

The quality of leadership of the women behind the Young Women's Christian Association first attracted his interest to it, Dr. Kerr says, pointing out that the association has always had the support of women who have given an unusual amount of time, who have been broad-minded and open-visioned, and who have not followed paths of tradition, but have broken new ground.

A committee representing the "Y" is co-operating in making arrangements for the service. Mrs. Albert P. Burchfield is chairman and members are Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, Jr., Miss Marie Russ, Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie and Miss Esther M. Hawes.

Miss Gillespie is general chairman of the $107,682 budget fund campaign of the "Y" which will open tomorrow.

St. Lawrence P.T.A. Theme 'Home Economics'

The St. Lawrence Parent-Teacher Association will meet tomorrow evening in the school hall, Penn and Atlantic avenues. Miss Jane Bryce, head of the girl's trade school, will speak and the program generally will deal with "Home Economics" and "Development of Character by Thrift."

The St. Lawrence Association is now affiliated with the City Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers as well as with the national organization of Parochial Parent-Teacher Associations.

Mrs. Bowers Again Named New Future Home Head

Mrs. Jesse D. Bowers has been re-elected to a third term as president of the board of the New Future Home. Serving with her are these officers (also re-elected): Mrs. J. H. Fricke, first vice president; Mrs. Garnet E. Cooper, second vice president, and Mrs. W. C. Earnest, secretary-treasurer. Four directors were chosen to serve for three-year terms. They are Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. William Bader, Mrs. Peter Stumpf and Mrs. Edwin Winter. Mrs. Frank O. Graham was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. J. G. Moorhead.

A musicale will be given February 22 in the Evangeline residence, Boulevard of the Allies, for the benefit of the home.

Allegheny Valley Junior Club to Mark Birthday

The Junior Allegheny Valley Woman's Club will celebrate its first anniversary tomorrow evening at a party in the Tarentum Borough Building, with Miss Erma Kuhnert as chairman.

'Inferiority Complex' Is Not A Rare Ailment

He has an "inferiority complex"—or is it an inferiority racket?

Does the big boy get that way because he's a starved and sensitive soul—or just because he's a big cry-baby?

And if so, what's a girl to do about it?

Dear Miss Robinson:

May I ask your advice about a problem that is troubling me? I don't want to ask my folks or my friends. They would only kid me about it.

This Summer I met a young man; he is 30, and I am 20. Before I met him I was told that he didn't pay much attention to girls, seriously I mean, but just took them out for the sake of having a good time. However, I also heard that if he asked a girl out he would show her the best of times and behave properly.

Well, I met him. I like him. He invited me to take a ride and I accepted. He acted like a perfect gentleman and always has. I learned to like him so much that I was afraid I would show it.

Anyway, I found out that he had an inferiority complex. He was always saying how worthless he was, and having to be coaxed out of it. And, of course, I naturally got a terrible fear of hurting his feelings. During all this time I had lovely times, and he took me to the very nicest places.

And here is where the trouble comes in. A few nights ago, I was dancing with someone else, and he resented that. He had already told me that he didn't want me to go out with any of the boys from the beach where we were staying. That wasn't because these boys were "bad," but because he felt that if I went with him, I didn't have to go with anyone else.

DISAGREED WITH HIM

Unfortunately, I didn't feel the same way. I had no certain "understanding" with him. He hadn't asked me to marry him. But now I am sorry I didn't do as he asked me, because I left him with a just a "good-bye," and I feel that he won't call me.

I wonder if it would be correct to get in touch with him, and ask him if there are any hard feelings. I think he does like me. Do you think he might have been serious?

I miss him a lot, and if I can't see him soon I will be very miserable. So, won't you please help me with some good advice?

LYA.

Is he serious? About what? About you? I don't know, sissy.

But it's painfully obvious that he is very very, VERY serious about himself and his own notions.

Nearly all people who confess to having an Inferiority Complex are that way. They talk as if they had a rare and De Luxe Ailment. Actually, they're just selfish humans who have decided to give their own feelings 75 per cent more attention than the law allows—and get mad with you if you don't do likewise.

And that, I suspect, is what ails your friend. He isn't discouraged or heartbroken. He's just peeved. The symptoms seem similar—but they're quite different to live with, youngster, and I'd advise you not to try.

UNREASONABLE TRAITS

But maybe his "Inferiority Complex" tangled him up? Maybe he thought that since you didn't fall right in his arms, there was no use for him to stick around. DON'T KID YOURSELF, SISSY! NO MAN IN LOVE IS GOING TO BE DISCOURAGED THAT EASILY.

AND IF HE IS, HE WOULD NOT BE MUCH USE TO YOU IF YOU GOT HIM. A man too timid to fight for what he wants, wouldn't be worth shucks as a husband.

For remember this. If a man has pesty, unreasonable traits BEFORE marriage, he'll still have those traits AFTER marriage—with all restraints removed. And the same goes for a woman.

However, I suspect that matrimony is the MOST thing this young gentleman isn't intending—and his "hurt feelings" are just a handy alibi to leave while the leaving's good.

So get over him Lya. It will hurt; yes, dear. But not a millionth part as much as being his wife for one day would hurt. So pick yourself a regular man—and here's hoping that the wedding bells ring out before another year!

By FAY KING

Naturally, first in our thoughts and in our hearts is our fellowman in need.

But we must not entirely forget the lesser creatures who also feel hunger, thirst and pain.

Let us be a little thoughtful, too, of the faithful four-footed and feathered friends whose appeal is so eloquent without words.

As you speed along in your car, scatter a morsel along the wintery way for the birds and other hungry little creatures.

And always bear in mind, good friend, that which has life and feeling can never be only an ornament. If you get a pet, learn its needs. Treat it well.

Remember always, it has a heart that beats, and can break, like ours. It also needs your understanding and affection.

Avis Makes Another Attempt to Get Acid

I had tucked Mary into bed just in the nick of time, for I had barely closed the door of the nursery suite when I saw Avis' blonde curls appearing above the stairway. She was looking furtively around, but when she saw me she advanced boldly toward me, a sugary smile parting her lipstick.

"Has Mary gone to bed?" she asked.

"Yes, she has," I said laconically.

"But surely she isn't asleep," she said coaxingly. "I haven't had a chance for a word with her. Where is she? In the room with the girls?"

Just in time I remembered that the excuse I had given Avis for putting her in my room hinged upon the fact that Mary wished to share her room for the last night with Marion.

"She will be there before the night is over," I said mendaciously. "Just now Katherine is taking care of a nervous headache which Mary feels coming on."

"Oh, how horrid!" she exclaimed. "I know how awful nervous headaches are. I have them frequently myself, and I have the most wonderful remedy for them. I'll go get it at once, and I'll be so glad to rub it in for her."

"That is very sweet of you, Avis," I said, hoping the venom that was in my heart for her was not too audible in my voice. "But Mrs. Bickett who, as you know, possesses great professional skill, is perfectly capable of taking care of Mary."

AVIS DISAPPOINTED

Knowing her effrontery and persistence, I fully expected to hear her expatiate further upon the superior efficacy of her headache remedy to anything Katherine could offer. But she must have recognized the finality in my voice, for she quickly switched front with an "Oh, of course!" adding coaxingly:

"But if she should get better soon, and there's a chance to see her, you will manage it for me, won't you, dear Mrs. Graham?"

"Yes, if a chance presents itself, you shall see her," I told her, keeping laughter out of my voice with an effort. "But I very much fear there will be no chance tonight. It's almost bedtime for all of us, you know."

"Not for me," she said with an affected little laugh, in which I heard resolute decision. "We still have over half of that hour you promised us for dancing, and after that I shall get a volume of poetry from your library and settle down to read for an hour or two. I am too excited to sleep."

"I'm sorry to be a martinent, Avis," I said, "or to appear inhospitable, but you simply must come up to my room, when you are through dancing, and go to bed. There is no other place for you to go to sleep except my room, and I have so much on my mind for tomorrow that I must get as much sleep as I can tonight. Therefore, I shall have to ask you to come into my room and get into bed as soon as you are through dancing."

SEEKS BOTTLE

I walked swiftly away upon the last word, partly because I did not wish to give her an opportunity to answer me, partly because I was sure that her real errand upstairs was to recover the bottle that she had secreted above the trapdoor in the bathroom, and I did not want to appear to be watching her.

But my ears, attuned to every noise in the old farm house, knew that it was the door of the bathroom in which Avis had hidden the bottle that I heard closing stealthily a few seconds later.

Immediately after its closing, I heard a faint "Hist!" from the direction of the stairway, and saw Marion peeping around the banisters and frantically beckoning. I walked swiftly over and stood so that I shielded her from observation if Avis should suddenly come out into the hall. "What is it?" I asked, with my eyes fixed upon the door through which Avis had gone.

"We tried to keep her downstairs, but it couldn't be done," Marion said. "I trailed after her, but didn't let her see me. What do you want us to do now?"

"Go back and dance," I told her, smiling. "I think I shall be able to handle her while she's up here, and I'll see that she gets safely down to the living room again. Then I want you all to watch her, as you have been doing, until the dance is over. But don't leave her until you see that I have her in charge again."

"We'll stick!" Marion whispered.

Household Hints

Use a sharp knife when cutting toast to prevent it crumbling.

For taking shine from woollen clothing, men's suits in particular, make a solution of warm water and borax, one tablespoonful to each quart of water. Rub shiny parts with this and then press while damp.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Never clip eyelashes, doesn't make them grow, only makes them stubby. At bedtime dip pads of gauze in witch hazel, place on the eyelids. In the morning bathe eyes first with hot water, then with cold, use more witch hazel.

One way to bring a shiny nose to its senses is to put it to bed under a bit of gauze that has been dipped in witch hazel. Pour a few tablespoons of witch hazel into a saucer, throw in a piece of ice. Dip the pad in the liquid, let rest on the ice for a minute, slap onto the beaming beak. This same treatment is fine for the eyes; it rests them. So, it is just as well to have a large compact, spread it over the eyes and nose. Helpful to make enlarged pores contract.

White haired sisters with delicate complexions look charming in nearly all the pastel tones, except yellow. Pale rose, faint blue, mauve, lavender and orchid impart beauty to the skin and silvered hair. A bit of red can be worn with good effect. Grays, if they have a violet cast, are nearly always becoming. A few can wear black, but it is not generally kind to the older gals; only young things with lovely fresh faces should wear it. Cream-colored collars are more flattering than white ones.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Handicap of Defective Hearing

Not so long ago I told you something about earache. In that article is was pointed out that repeated attacks of earache may be a sign of some serious disturbance. That condition requires immediate attention and if neglected may lead to permanent damage and distressing deafness.

Dr. Copeland

A report printed in a recent number of the New York State Journal of Medicine, states that defective hearing is uncomfortably prevalent among school children. This state of affairs is unfortunate and should be dealt with vigorously.

Though complete deafness is not as common nor as difficult to detect as partial deafness, it is all too common. To prevent it, it is of the greatest importance that defects in hearing be recognized at an early age.

Early recognition of this handicap is exceedingly difficult with the facilities at the command of the public schools. The usual watch-tick test, the use of the tuning fork and the whisper test, are excellent methods of testing the hearing. Unfortunately, these are not very practical when examining a large number of children.

In addition, these tests are not thorough enough to detect partial deafness. I am glad to say that the use of these old-time methods is no longer necessary. A new instrument has been devised. By the use of this device, as many as forty children can be examined in a period of fifteen to twenty minutes. The results of such examinations are more than gratifying. I hope it will be made available to all schools.

I cannot say too much about the importance of early recogtion of impaired hearing in children. Bear in mind that a child who is listless, inattentive or backward in his school work, may be so only because his hearing is impaired.

I believe that all children absent from school because of an ear, nose or throat condition, or because of the after effects of scarlet fever or some other infectious disease, should be taken to the physician for a careful examination of the hearing. This procedure is also advised for children who show marked backwardness in their school work, especially those with faulty speech, and all who are referred to as "problem children."

When teachers, as well as parents, realize the significance of ear disease and are instructed in the means of preventing this disorder, the prevalence of deafness will be greatly diminished. I am more than confident that when proper measures are taken for the relief of ear defects the welfare of our children will be greatly advanced.

Do not overlook the signs of defective hearing. Bear in mind that this, as well as poor vision, is a common cause of backwardness in school. Neglect of such defects is a serious stumbling block to the progress of the afflicted child.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Getting the Most for the Trumps

Mr. John R. Coombs, of Worcester, Mass., has one quality which is admirable in any Bridge player, and that is he appreciates a joke on himself. The hand below is submitted by him as the most amusing hand he ever played, but he says his knowledge of the amusement was gathered from the reactions of his opponents and partner, although at the time the joke did not strike him as being so particularly brilliant.

The hand and bidding were:

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

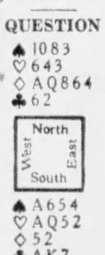
South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding, of course, is distinctly ambitious for vulnerable players. South has an Opening bid and North has a takeout, but somehow or other the brakes should have been put on before such a high contract was reached. Mr. Coombs and his partner, however, were reasonably fortunate in not playing the hand doubled.

West's Opening lead was the Ace of diamonds, after which he shifted to the singleton heart. East won, and returned a heart, and West ruffed. West then led the spade Ace and followed with a small spade when East discarded. East trumped and returned a diamond, which West ruffed and returned another spade, which was trumped by East. East now returned a diamond, South played the King of trumps, and West won with the Ace. One more lead of spades permitted East to cash his last trump, and now the return of a heart made West's trump Knave good. The final result was that Mr. Coombs was down 7 tricks or a total of 1750 points, East and West, with seven trumps, having cashed them all, as well as Aces in three remaining suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION



South is playing a notrump contract. West leads the Knave of hearts. How should South play?

Answer: Four tricks in diamonds, two in hearts, two in clubs and one in spades will give South game. He must, therefore, clear the diamond suit, and, to do so, wins the first heart trick in his own hand and leads a small diamond and plays low from North, no matter what West plays.

On getting in again, he leads another diamond, finesses, and, if successful and the adverse diamonds are equally divided, goes game.

He must not take the diamond finesse until the second round, as North has no entry card.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Addressing Stepmother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly let me know how to address and introduce my new stepmother to my friends? I am 22 years of age and unmarried. L.

First, how you introduce your stepmother depends on what you yourself call her, and your feeling for her. If she has in your affection and devotion achieved the privilege of being called "Mother" by you, you would introduce her by this name. "Mother, this is Miss Allen," "Mother, may I present Mr. Howe," "Mother, this is Florence."

If, as very often is the case, you have adopted the designation of "Aunt" for your stepmother, this is used in your introductions, "Aunt Mary, this is Miss Florence North."

If you use neither of these intimate names, if your stepmother is "Mrs. Lewis" to you (and I hope she is such a gracious and understanding person that she has won more intimacy of name), then you refer to her by this name, or by the rather forbidding name "stepmother"; "My stepmother . . Mr. Howe," or "Miss Allen, this is my stepmother."

Over the Jacket

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When dancing with a girl who is wearing a loose jacket over her dress, does her escort put his arm over it or under it? I think over the jacket looks better regardless of wrinkles . . . don't you? THANK YOU.

I agree with you!

LEIF ERICSON'S DESCENDANT FINDS ISLES

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Once, they say, there was a continent called Atlantis which sank into the sea.

Once there was a great viking, Leif Ericson, son of Eric the Red, who discovered America four to six centuries before Columbus, according to Scandinavian historians.

Ericson sailed down the New England Coast to the Caribbean Sea and charted the "Atolls"—the tops of the mountain peaks of the lost continent.

The secret of the location of these uncharted, unclaimed islands (to modern navigators) has been handed down from father to son through the ancestral line of the Great Lief—

So said Capt. Johannes Larsen Mott, 50-year-old Danish sailor and wanderer, in announcing yesterday he had located the islands of Atlantis.

Capt. Mott, weather-beaten and with a straight look in his blue eyes, has just returned from a voyage of discovery into the Gulf of Mexico.

VOYAGED ALONE

He made his sea sortie alone in a small yawl. For this reason, like the case of Capt. Cook, of Polar fame, his story may arouse controversy. He declared, however:

"But I shall supply proof at the proper time. It is necessary to keep the exact location of the islands secret until our plans have progressed for colonization."

The islands begin about 100 miles from the mouth of the Suwanee River in Florida, the captain said.

The bizarre expedition was marked by death, illness and a terrific battle with the sea.

Capt. Mott established his base on the Suwanee River accompanied by three youths. They were Victor Peterson, 25, of Moline, Ill.; Irving Rosenweig, 25, and Gerard John Doheny, 23, of New York City.

COMPANION DIED

On his return from an exploration voyage, Capt. Mott said he found his three companions ill from typhoid fever. Doheny died and Capt. Mott was detained by authorities at Tampa, Fla., for three days before being exonerated. He said:

"I explored the waters from the directions given by my father, Christian Larsen Mott, who had heard about them from his father. On November 16, I landed on the first island which I named 'Goodwill Island.'

"The day I set out alone in my small yawl, a sponge boat left from Tarpon Springs, Fla., and has never been heard of since. I fought a heavy gale for days.

"Then I found my first island and stayed there 10 days. It is 15 miles long and 12 miles wide. It was uninhabited.

"My father has told me there are 14 such uncharted islands. Some are in the Caribbean, some in the Pacific Ocean and some on the west coast of Africa.

"I visited three of these islands. I shall reveal their whereabouts after we secure recognition of my claim from some of the smaller neighboring countries such as Cuba and San Domingo. Then, perhaps, the larger nations may grant recognition without laughing at us."

POST HERE AIDS BENEFIT PARTY

Interest in the Roosevelt ball to be held in the William Penn Hotel January 30 was spurred yesterday with the arrival of Wiley Post, world circling flier, and Keith Morgan, close friend of the President, when they landed in Pittsburgh. They were met at the municipal airport by a committee headed by Joseph C. Wilson, Jr., Pittsburgh war ace.

The ball will be given at the same time that 5,000 other cities and towns are holding similar events. Proceeds will go toward the national crusade against infantile paralysis through the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, the President's favorite charity. It wa sestablished by Mr. Roosevelt in 1926 after he had discovered the beneficial effects of the baths at Warm Springs.

Septic Sore Throat Quarantines Hospital

SCRANTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—While all visitors were banned from the institution, Lackawanna County Medical authorites today continued investigation into the death of a patient and the illness of serveral nurses in the Mid-Valley Hospital at Olyphant.

Hospital officials declared that Mrs. Joseph Miller, 23, a patient, was stricken with what they believed to be septic sore throat. She died yesterday. At the same time a number of nurses fell ill with the same ailment.

Officers Elected By Architects Here

Officers elected by the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects, last night were: Harvey A. Schwab, president; Ralph M. Reutti, vice president; Raymond M. Marlier secretary; Harry Viehman, treasurer, and Charles M. Stotz, director.

The Pittsburgh Chapter will be hosts to the Pennsylvania Association, American Institute of Architects, at the annual convention here next month.

AUTO DRIVERS WARNED BY STATE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—An avalanche of mail—2,090,640 renewal application blanks for motor vehicle operators' licenses—will be sent out by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles tonight.

H. Richard Stickel, director of the bureau, warned motorists to be particularly careful in filling out the blanks this year. He said:

"The financial responsibility act requires that every person applying for an operator's license must answer—and answer correctly—several questions regarding his accident record.

"If involved in any accident, the operator must state the amount of damages awarded or claimed as the result of the mishap.

"If the questions are not answered, the applications will be returned. If the information given proves incorrect, the applicant is liable to a two-year suspension of his operating privileges.

"Those who delegate a friend or agent to apply for their license and fill out the required form take an unnecessary chance that the agent may set down incorrect answers. The fact that someone else made the mistake while doing what the operator is required to do for himself would not eliminate the danger of incurring the penalty.

"No operator should be willing to risk a two-year suspension merely because it is more convenient or a little bit faster to have someone else get his license for him."

Tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon and evening, "The Club Car Special" makes its debut over WCAE at 6; over WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., at 1:30 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15; WWVA, Wheeling, 5:15; WADC, Akron, 8; WHBC, Canton, 8:30, and WLBW, ERIE, at 9.

Lazy Listener Formidable Person

By AIRCASTER

The casual listener, that apathetic member of the radio audience, who leaps from program to program, remaining with none more than a few minutes, is a formidable person.

Such a formidable composite indeed that radio executives, and those who pay for broadcasting time, consider him not only the chief menace to the kilocycle scheme, but a personage who must be eliminated.

The recognition of him as a disturbing and threatening factor is behind the sudden quest by would-be patrons, and network officials alike, for an improved form of air drama.

I discovered this in an interview with William S. Rainy, manager of production at NBC, to whom I had gone for an explanation of the abrupt trend of commercial patrons toward radio theatrics.

NEED CONCENTRATION

Mr. Rainey quickly revealed the motivation behind the change in trend.

Drama, he pointed out, has all of a sudden been singled out of the welter of radio idiom as the one vehicle which eliminates the casual listener.

It is a form of entertainment that requires undivided attention, and if it is good drama, it permits of no apathy, once it has intrigued the audience.

"Moreover," cites Rainey, "the increasing favor being shown drama, both in front of and behind the scenes, is ample evidence that radio has at last overcome and even capitalized its greatest handicap—invisibility.

"Appeals to audience imagination, as exemplified by the play, together with the recent and current refinements in radio writing, indeed, have made imagination, grown out of invisibility, the most important of entertainment ingredients.

"It is now conceded, as you noted, that drama is the one expedient of engaging undivided audience interest, because the listener's own mind is called upon to make up the complete illusion.

"There is no doubt that drama will be the means of eliminating the casual listener."

4 NEW BRIDGE CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Four new champions of contract bridge were installed early today.

They were David Burnstine, Oswald Jacoby, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken, with Richard Frey getting much of the honor as a substitute who saw some of the hottest fighting. They piled up a lead of 6,000 points to win the first team of four championship of the newly-organized United States Bridge Association.

Leaders from the start of the 120-board finals, they had an even more impressive plus of 6,220 when last night's dinner recess was taken. The losers—Sidney Rusinow, Walter Malowan, Lee Langdon and L. Bachner—were still fighting, however, and in last night's final boards held even honors.

At one time, indeed, they had reduced their deficit by 2,500 points, whereupon the champions again put on the pressure, retrieving all except a bare 220 points. The final count was one of the largest margins in the history of major tournaments.

Seventeen teams originally in the field had been selected in hard elimination tournaments in every section of the country.

Electric Stairway Job For Westinghouse

Contract for electric stairways that travel 90 feet a minute and carry 8,000 persons an hour today had been awarded to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The contract was given by Marshall Field and Company, of Chicago. Special safety equipment will be incorporated in the escalators.

GLOBE-TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

Several Globe Trotters have asked why Traffic Court has been listed in the radio programs and not broadcast. Frank Mulloy, the WCAE information bureau, says that happens when the people of Pittsburgh are good.

When people are good they don't violate traffic ordinances and are not summoned to appear. Not having so many cases the Magistrate is through with his hearings before the broadcast is scheduled to start.

* * *

M. M. C. requested the name of that man who aided the girl who lost her voice. He is Frank Hipps, 239 Zara street.

Another globe trotter (I can hardly believe it) wants to know whether he can reverse the process. He would like to send his wife to him.

* * *

Officer Biggs mentioned here as a model policeman is now a director of the Police Board of Pensions, according to Henry Burman.

* * *

Ripley is being sent a design created by Charles Wike, Mead street, a 13-year-old Boy Scout from Troop 6. The design when elevated and scrutinized from an angle forms the letter of the Boy Scout motto.

* * *

Some of them admit that they don't want to reveal their softer natures but really they are interested in the woman, mentioned here, who wanted a husband. They describe themselves as kind, considerate and loving, and add, "but for goodness' sake, Louie, don't use my name; my friends think I'm tough and would pan me."

VETERAN QUITS HUNGER STRIKE

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 17.—The hunger strike of Eugene F. Everett, 43, former Army captain, lawyer and teacher, who said he would starve himself to death unless the government did "something for the veterans," has ended.

Everett, member of a prominent Springfield, Mo., family, has returned to the United States Veterans' Hospital here, where he started his fast 34 days ago, and is being given a liquid diet. He lost about 40 pounds.

Friends said Everett ended his fast when threatened with court action to subject him to forcible feeding.

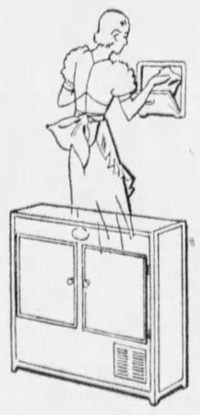
See How Much Comfort, Convenience and Cleanliness They Buy When You Use Modern Gas Appliances

DID you ever stop to realize how much you get in return for the few dollars you spend each month for Natural Gas Service? If you haven't, note the average costs, shown below, for operating modern gas appliances—and you'll get a new appreciation of what Gas Service means, or can mean, to you in your home. And incidentally, as you look at these low costs, you might congratulate yourself on living in this Pittsburgh district where Natural Gas, rich in heat units, is available at rates that are only one-fourth to one-half what they are in many other large centers not so fortunately situated.

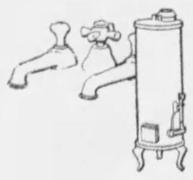
A MODERN GAS RANGE . . . . .

Smartly styled with oven control, insulated oven and many other convenience features that make cooking and baking a real pleasure. Will cook and bake for a family of four at a cost of.....ONLY 1 CENT PER MEAL.



A MODERN GAS INCINERATOR

Provides quick, economical and sanitary disposal of all garbage, and eliminates once and for all the unsightly, objectionable garbage can with its constant menace to health—at a cost of.....LESS THAN 2 CENTS PER DAY.



A MODERN WATER HEATER . . .

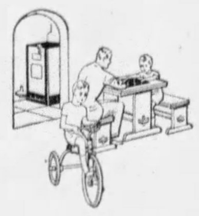
Will provide hot water—automatically and without waiting—for shaving, for bathing, for washing dishes, for washing clothes and for all cleaning tasks about the home for an average cost of.....ONLY 5 CENTS PER DAY.

A MODERN GAS LAUNDRY DRYER

The most sanitary method of drying clothes. Makes you entirely independent of the weather, and saves from two to four hours each wash day. Circulating warm air dries clothes quickly and keeps them fresh and white. Saves time, money, labor—and clothes. Average operating cost is.....ONLY ABOUT 10 CENTS PER WASHING.

A MODERN RADIANT HEATER . .

For auxiliary heating, for heating individual rooms, and for taking the chill off the house in spring and fall without using the furnace. Gives quick, cheery, healthful warmth at a cost of.....ONLY 1 CENT PER HOUR.



MODERN GAS HEAT . . . . . .

Completely automatic; frees you forever from the drudgery of furnace-tending; provides a constant uniform temperature that safeguards health—and comfort, convenience and cleanliness you can get with no other fuel. Costs, with modern efficient equipment, on either purchase or rental plan, are surprisingly low—and accurate estimates, based on your own individual requirements, are offered free of charge by your Gas Company.

A MODERN GAS REFRIGERATOR

Unquestionably the last word in automatic refrigeration. Absolutely silent because there is nothing in it that can possibly make noise—a tiny gas flame does all the work. No moving parts to wear out, vibrate or require servicing. Costs.....ONLY 2 CENTS A DAY TO OPERATE.

MODERNIZE ECONOMIZE WITH GAS

DO YOU KNOW?

That Gas Rates in the Pittsburgh District, based on the number of BTU's, or heat units, delivered per 1000 cubic feet, are only one-fourth to one-half the rates in many other large cities.

FRIDAY

"Greatest Thing of Its Kind in America"

If you're like thousands of other people you'll start to make plans now to be here Friday when the doors open at 9 A. M.! Twice a year, for more than half a century, Remnant Day has attracted more customers than any other event held during the year. Yearly it has grown in volume until today it is acknowledged the supreme event for phenomenal values in this or any other part of the country.

All over the store—from basement to roof—thousands of items of wanted merchandise are sacrificed at cost or less. Wherever broken lots, odd lengths, overstocks or surplus goods are found they are put to one side and a Red Ink price marked upon them. In every case they are rock-bottom prices—put there for one reason—to move the goods—with profit forgotten for this one day.

Originally planned to move "Remnants," today this sale includes plenty of new merchandise as well. Apparel, home furnishings, accessories—all style-right, useful and desirable—likewise ruthlessly cut in price to carry out the tradition of Remnant Day—lowest prices of the season.

An Easy Store to Reach!

BY STREET CAR—Just a few blocks over the Sixth St. Bridge from downtown. Crosstown transfers good from any city car entering the downtown district on these cars passing the store: Nos. 6, 7, 8, 13, 14, 15, 22. BY TRAIN—One block from the Fort Wayne Depot. BY BUS—Charleroi and Harmony district busses stop at the store.

ON FOOT—A few minutes' walk over the Sixth St. Bridge from downtown. BY AUTO—East Enders can cross the 40th St. Bridge and come in on Ohio Street. The North Side-West End Bridge offers a direct route to store for residents of Mt. Lebanon, Crafton and communities West. And FREE PARKING when you get here!

Man About Town.

The $18,000 Rolls-Royce of Mrs. J. J. Walker (Betty Compton) is for sale here at only 2 Gs . . . The next sensation in Washington will be an anti-trust action by the U. S. against one of the biggest-industrial combinations in the world . . . It's a boy over at the James (St. Moritz) Johnstons . . . Jack DeRuyter and Neva Lynn of the Ziegfeld tribe are 4-alarming it . . . Dempsey is to be presented with a bust of Tex Rickard with ceremonies acclaiming him as Rickard's successor as the world's greatest fight promoter, but he didn't know it—until just now.

The original Roxy, without him, will be reorganized this week with a theater chain taking control . . . The legend that Max Reinhardt will succeed him at the Rockefeller houses is up again . . . Joan English, who has midnight hair, was hurriedly operated on for appendicitis at the Park East hosp Satdee, and the Casino de Paree bunch are contributing to the bills . . . The Lieut. George Fletchers (Ruth Tara, ex-Ziegfeld lovely) anticipate their blessed event in May . . . Sherman Winchell, 22 (no kin) was jailed in San Bernardino for peeking thru keyholes—the big amateur! . . . Geo. Arliss has consistenttly turned down a natural characterization for him, the role of John D. Rockefeller, Sr. George is a friend of the family.

If you think Will Rogers' presidential aspirations are not on the level, just try to ring in a crack kidding them in his flickers! . . . The Stewart Haupts' heir will arrive on May 9 . . . Dick Hyland, groom of Adela Rogers St. John, is gunning for a Columbia Pictures prexy . . . It's a boy over at the Hilton Lamares of the Ben Pollock banjo department . . . Rosemary Sinnott, who also did time with Ziegfeld, has her kin worried. She blew to the coast without saying ta-ta—and may wed S. Timberg . . . Frances Williams now admits her marriage has curdled.

The George Verity Phillips (he was an All-American for Yale), who melted a year ago, are phoning. She was Helene Knickerbocker. The heart is J. Candullo, the band pilot . . . Tip to feature editors: Harry Lang, who dropped over a million in real estate, is now a Paradise restaurant waiter . . . The Teddy Hayes (Lina Basquette) baby is expected the first fortnight in April . . . Constance Carpenter of London will be Fontana's new dancing mate—replacing Miss Coles . . . Florence (Casino de Paree) Moore is suing a Richmond (Va) girlesk house for 50 Gs—for using her nude photos . . . Lanny Ross's manager is Olive White, too pretty for a manager . . . Ziegfeld spurned a million from Paramount for his name. His widow gets ½ of one per cent for it.

Orchids to Sheila Barrett's femme drunk at the Casino de Paree, a production in itself . . . Orchids to John Golden, the producer, who is casting his new play with members of his last two flopolas . . . Orchids to Phil Baker's new song title: "There's A New Spinning Wheel in the Parlor Since Grandmaw Took Up Roulette" . . . Scallions to Wilfred J. Funk's list of "ten outstanding Americans who contributed most to the language."

Herbert Bayard Swope's wire to Harpo Marx: "America's loss is Russia's loss" . . . Joan English of paragraph 2 can't decide between Ned Payne, the champagne man, and Cadet H. Carmichael of West Point and Texas . . . Mary Cole of the same ensemble and Ned Sattenstein, publisher, who almost married Irene Ware, may . . . Harry Bannister, Ann Harding's ex, is hearting with a Chicago lovely but her "twin" is always along . . . Alice Kerwin and Dolores Grant of "Vanities" sail on the 20th for the Monte Carlo circus . . . The James McGuinnesses of H'wood are now like a quarter after nine.

The Weldon Heyburns (Greta Nissen) are definitely phffft (not phttt, Time!) but definitely! . . . Lilian Harvey, whose real name is Pape, is worried about her money banked in Germany—her cables getting no response from her manager . . . Mrs. Victor Moore's new 12 G bracelet was banditti'd on New Year's—and no official squawk yet!

Chauncey McCormick's Florida estate, which cost nearly five million is now a public museum . . . Katharine Hepburn is using every influence to get out of "The Lake" because of the critics' ribbing . . . RKO is trying to pacify the feud between Kate and Connie Bennett . . . Aimee McPherson's newest enterprise is a honey. She purchased a vacant stretch near L. A. and turned it into a cemetery for her followers! Paying off the entire cost with her first 300 sales . . . No more burglary insurance for "that" family in town, who are robbed of their jewels practically every month . . . The Murray Langs are oop! . . . Roberta Wells (Leon Belasco's find) is really Marjorie Vascount, who inherits ten millions from oil this yr.

Charles Mack (Moran and Mack) predicted his death driving his car . . . W. C. Fields and Grace George (not the star) have spread. Grace drew 10 Gs and the Cadillac . . . The Max Hoffman, Jrs. (Helen Kane) are reaching a verdict . . . It's a girl at the Johnny Boyles . . . The Royal Copeland, Jrs. (the Senator's Son) will be a trio in May . . . Peter Arno, who answers no mail, is slated for space in March at the Chicago Art Institute if they can locate some originals.

Natural Color Scene In Arliss Film

The scene in which George Arliss is created a baron in "The House of Rotheschild," his first starring production for 20th Century Pictures, is being filmed in natural color. The set, which represents the Coronation Room of St. James Palace, covers a space almost a block in length, and was built expressly to be photographed in natural colors.

Big Bad Wolf To Star

The most famous villain in motion picture history is soon to become a star in his own right. Walt Disney, the master story-teller of the short subject field, has decided that the title of his latest Silly Symphony shall be "The Big Bad Wolf" instead of "Little Red Riding Hood," as previously announced. The Three Little Pigs will also be important members of the cast, Disney masterpiece, but the new picture will present all the characters from a different angle.

"The Three Little Pigs" and the Wolf changed moviegoers' whole outlook on animated cartoons, and now Disney's Silly Symphonies rival feature productions in importance. His "Three Little Pigs" not only chased away the gloom of depression but it chased away the Big Bad Wolf from the theater door.

The new symphony is centered around the nursery story of Little Red Riding Hood, who meets the Big Bad Wolf while she is walking through the woods to Grandmother's. She passes the house built of bricks on her way, and the two careless little pigs accompany her, while the practical pig warns them of the Big Bad Wolf, although he is only laughed at for his pains. What happens from that point on reveals Disney at his best.

'Voice of Ireland' Show Extended

Showing of the talk and sound film, "The Voice of Ireland," in the Catholic High School, Fifth avenue, has been turning many persons away, so it has been decided to continue its presentation tonight, Thursday and Friday nights at 8:30 o'clock. Scenic views cover more than 1,000 miles and there dramatized episodes of St. Patrick's life and other subjects.

Lenore, Sidney Talk, Remain Apart

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—After tactfully avoiding each other at Hollywood parties, Lenore Ulric and her divorced husband, Sidney Blackmer, finally met and talked it over at the RKO studio, where coincidence placed them in dressing rooms only two doors apart.

In a scene dramatic as a movie, Blackmer sent a mutual friend to ask Lenore if she would see him. She agreed and, for the first time since their separation in New York, the pair who once furnished Broadway with its most blazing romance, met and spoke.

Miss Ulric

It was a tense moment. Had either acted on first impulse, Blackmer believes there would have been a reconciliation, but the opportunity slipped away. They talked their affairs over sanely and agreed that divorce still is the best way.

And so Lenore goes back to New York, and then to London, while Blackmer remains in Hollywood to finish his current picture, "Transient Love," and to try to regain the screen chance he threw away two years ago when Lenore demanded that he choose between her and Hollywood.

"I am interested in my carrer so emphatically now that I'm afraid to look left or right," declares Blackmer.

Which apparently bears out Mae Clarke's assertion that wedding bells will not ring for her and Sidney.

Bing Crosby has just been invited to attend the birthday ball for President Roosevelt on January 30. Writing from Washington, Mrs. John Allen Dougherty offers to put a fast plane at the crooning star's disposal. It would leave here on the 29th, get Bing to Washington the next day and return him to Hollywood with equal dispatch.

Mrs. Dougherty

If there is any possible way, Bing will go. He feels highly honored by the invitation, and only the necessity of film work may cause him to send his regrets.

Is Maureen O'Sullivan planning to be married in the spring? The star has asked Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for permission to go to her native Ireland after she finishes "Tarzan and His Mate." Gossips whisper it will be a honeymoon trip with John Farrow. Both Maureen and Johnny evade questions and say:

"Nothing is definite."

But Maureen refuses to take off her engagement ring even to work on the set. She wraps adhesive tape around it and covers the tape with makeup.

Though he played it straight, the chances are Josef von Sternberg was having his little joke with the visiting lady at the Paramount studio.

Said Joe:

"My dear madam, I'm not important enough to give out autographed pictures. I make a practice of never doing it. However, I would be charmed to kiss the lady's hand."

Whereupon he did it with a flourish and the impressed visitor went on her way.

Rudy Vallee has walked off the set during several late sessions of the "Scandals," but George White had the laugh on him the other night. Vallee and the band were playing on top of a 20-foot high platform. At a late hour, the crooner suddenly stopped his music and called for the inclined ladder to be rolled up for the boys to get down. Nobody moved. Finally, Rudy called an employe of his and the fellow put his shoulder to the ladder but couldn't budget it. With everybody grinning broadly, the star had to return to his baton.

Lewis Stone is having the 15-passenger cabins on his schooner reduced to a roomy six. The star plans to sail from here in midsummer for a six months cruise in South America. He'll visit friends in Columbia, Peru, Chile and the Argentine Republic . . . Joan Crawford again has asked for Lew Ayres as her leading man . . . married two years now, Una Merkel writes two airmail letters a day to her husband, who is in San Francisco on business . . . Hazel Forbes, of the tooth powder millions, has been taking in the Cotton Club with Phillip Reed, Young Warner player . . . Alice White and Sy Bartlett are two other film celebs who have succumbed to the smooth harmonies of the Mills Brothers . . . Sandra Shaw made her first appearance with Gary Cooper at the Paramount studio Saturday. Both wore brown tweed sport outfits . . . . Look out, Europe! Zasu Pitts is going to take her fluttering hands across the ocean as soon as she can get time off from her film work.

Chatterton Diet Same For Five Years

Ruth Chatterton, the First National star of "Journal of a Crime," has held to one diet five years, and, by way of encouragement to other diet marathoners, she states that it gets easier to keep all the time.

"At the time of my arrival in Hollywood," said Miss Chatterton, "there was a great deal of publicity in the papers regarding a young actress whose contract had been canceled because she had become a little too plump. Right then I decided that an ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure, so I sought a physician's advice. He suggested the permanent elimination of a number of fattening foods, and a time schedule for all meals.

"After three months I decided to keep the diet indefinitely."

The Columnist Interviews Himself

IT HAS been many a long month since this desk interviewed itself. Suppose, for the sake of variety, that we try it again. Ready? Let's ride:

QUESTION: How are tricks, Mr. Hellinger?

ANSWER: Fair.

Q. What do you think of Billy Sunday's come-back?

A. Do I have to think of it?

Q. They need a theme song for Ex-Postmaster General Brown and his burned records. What would you suggest?

A. "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

Q. When do you contemplate your next trip around the world?

A. As soon as possible.

Q. Why do you enjoy traveling so much?

A. Because I like to come back to New York.

Q. What did you think of the "Three Little Pigs?"

A. You mean the Mdivani Brothers?

Q. No, indeed. But as long as you brought that up, did you hear the song they played at Barbara Hutton's wedding to the Prince?

A. Sure. "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia."

Q. No. You're wrong again. It was—

A. Don't tell me. Now I remember. It was: "I Found a Million-Dollar Baby After Grandpa Founded a Five-and-Ten-Cent Store."

Q. You're getting incorrigible.

A. Let's keep the interview clean.

Q. You're writing a lot about Ted Husing these days. What kind of a chap is he?

A. Let's keep the interview clean.

Q. Do you think people are drinking more liquor since repeal, or less?

A. Yes.

Q.—That answer isn't very good.

A. Neither is the liquor.

Q. Do you think Mayor La Guardia will find it hard to clean up things in New York?

A. Not at all.

Q. Why.

A. Tammany didn't leave much to clean.

Q. An army man is now police commissioner of New York. How do you think that will work out?

A. Excellent — unless they start blowing bugles.

Q. What will that have to do with it?

A. A great deal. Why should we wake up our policemen after all these years?

Q. What do you think is really the cause of Rudy Vallee's troubles with his wife?

A. She must have heard him singing.

Q. How long is the average life of a successful crooner?

A. Much too long.

Q. Let's get down to serious questions, Mr. Hellinger.

A. Okay with me.

Q. You have traveled all over the world. What's the best preserved object you ever saw?

A. Peggy Joyce.

Q. How old do you think Peggy is, Mr. Hellinger?

A. I know for a fact that she is 21.

Q. What makes you say that?

A. I want to square things for the other remark.

Q. Let's have some advice from you. What's the best way to write a story? Outside of using a typewriter, I mean.

A. Just a minute. Hellinger makes all the funny cracks in this column.

Q. Well, why don't you begin?

A. Oh, you're gonna get smart, are you? Well, just for that I'm bringing this interview to a close.

Q. All right, Mr. Hellinger. Just one more question and I'll let you go.

A. What's the question?

Q. What do you think of conditions in this country today?

A. I am happy to say, as Dave Murray points out, that we are back on our feet again.

Q. That's fine. You really mean that you think we're back on our feet again?

A. Positively. All we need now is a pair of shoes . . .

Goldwyn Film Gamble of Million

By MICHAEL SHAW

Samuel Goldwyn is in New York arranging for the premiere of "Nana," starring Anna Sten, on whom he is said to have gambled a million dollars.

Pittsburghers may remember Russian Anna as Grushenka in "The Brothers Karamazov," a German picturization of Dostoievski's great novel, which had at least two runs at the now defunct Avenue Cinema. Anna also supported Emil Jannings, if memory serves, in a later production in the Avenue.

She seemed then to be a very pretty girl, pronouncedly blonde and perhaps a little plump, who acted well enough the siren parts in which she was cast.

DISCOVERY

Mr. Goldwyn saw possibilities in her. He was convinced she would make a great star, perhaps even a rival of Garbo. So he brought her to this country. That was nearly two years ago.

Miss Sten arrived full of confidence. She knew two or three common English phrases and a bit of American slang. A native Russian, she had learned German in no time when she went with UFA, and she saw no difficulties ahead in the language line. But it took her six months to learn English, and all that time Mr. Goldwyn was paying her $1,500 a week.

"Nana" finally went into production, but it was a false start. When Mr. Goldwyn saw the first rushes, he scrapped the whole thing, had a new script prepared, and named a new director—Dorothy Arzner—and virtually a whole new supporting cast.

A NEW STAR

Now "Nana" is finished at last and Mr. Goldwyn has personally taken the first print to New York. Asked whether he thinks it a good picture, Mr. Goldwyn says:

"I'm not a judge of that."

But the word from Hollywood is that "Nana" is a marvelous show, that Anna Sten is due for another of those meteoric rises in the American public's favor—and that Mr. Goldwyn has created a new star and won his million-dollar gamble.

The premiere will take place next month. It is understood that plenty of liberties have been taken with Emile Zola's novel. For one thing, "Nana" appears as an actress from the first, instead of a lady of the pavements. But a film entirely faithful to Zola's naturalistic work would be impossible and probable undesirable.

REVIVAL

The last week or so has been an exciting time on Pittsburgh's Rialto.

We have had the somewhat belated boon of "Berkeley Square" and we have convinced ourselves that Garbo still reigns. We have enjoyed Eddie Cantor and John Barrymore in two meritorious films. And we have had the promise of resumption of stage shows downtown.

The Pitt has done very well with its "flesh and blood" entertainment, it is understood, and other theaters, apparently, have taken notice.

Perhaps this is all a modest reflection of the revival which has taken place on Broadway this season. Half a dozen smash hits, a respectable number of fine plays and brilliant acting performances, and a general feeling of electricity in the air have replaced the gloom of last year.

BACK TO BROADWAY

Movie stars returning from Hollywood have had no small part in this New York upturn. Helen Hayes as "Mary of Scotland" is impressing Gotham as favorably as she did Pittsburgh; Miriam Hopkins is keeping alive a rather bad play, "Jezebel," and Katharine Hepburn, in "The Lake," is packing them in despite a mixed critical reception.

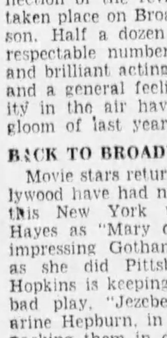
The transcontinental trek in the other direction has, in one case at least, proved less successful. Francis Lederer, the Czech who was Broadway's matinee idol last season, tried his luck in Hollywood, and the result, a picture just unfolded, has been found not so good.

MUSIC

The Children's Crusade

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir repeated its performance of Pierne's "Children's Crusade" in Carnegie Music Hall last night. The results last November were so gratifying that this concert came by popular request.



Mr. Lissfelt

The soloists were the same as in the previous concert. Margaret Stockdale in another beautiful performance, Mildred Cunningham, Letty Eifler, the excellent solo quartet—Helen Bell Rush, Margaret Garrity, Viola Byrgerson, Mabel King—Arthur Davis, F. H. Hammon, and Raymond Griffin. Earl Mitchell played organ accompaniments and Ernest Lunt directed.

The principals of the occasion, however, were the 200 school children who again conducted themselves like veteran performers and made us prouder than ever of the music in our public schools.

Paris in 1870 Film Locale

Nana, in Emile Zola's famous story, made a business out of love. And Anna Sten, in her American film debut, makes a business out of "Nana," a Samuel Goldwyn production for release by United Artists.

The rise and fall of a notorious streetwalker, in the fragrant, gay setting of Paris in 1870, provides the story for this production. Willard Mack and Harry Wagstaff Gribble wrote the screen play, basing their tale on the character and incidents in the adventures of Zola's scarlet heroine.

Gaslight had just been introduced into the French capital as a means of illumination. The city was rechristened, "The City of Light." Her new boulevards stretched out in every direction; the shining white face of the new Opera was a fresh delight; the music halls screamed with laughter and gaiety.

The picture presents an authentic revival of the can-can as it was danced in Paris to the embarrassment and horror of the blue-noses, and Miss Sten sings a caustic lament on love, written for her by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Like Popeye, Greta Garbo, whose latest characterization, "Queen Christina" is on view on the Nixon screen, says "I yam what I yam," the only difference being that she doesn't say it audibly, but in demeanor. She is the one foreign star who has remained just as she was, and has retained all her initial characteristics. "Queen Christina" has now settled into its routine of two shows daily.

* * *

The fifth play of the American Theater Society subscription season is now definitely set for January 29, in the Nixon. This will be "School For Husbands," with a cast headed by Osgood Perkins and June Walker. It is a rhymed adaptation by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langer of the Moliere comedy of the same title.

* * *

Earl Carroll, whose "Vanities," condensed to 20 scenes, running 75 minutes, featuring Ray Bolger, will be in the Penn, opening January 26, will tarry in Pittsburgh, his old home town, for a couple of hours next Monday night. With a number of girls he will be en route to Hollywood to assist in the filming of his current New York show, "Murder at the Vanities."

Ruby Spurns $50,000 Bid to Quit Screen

Al Jolson has admitted that he is openly attempting to bribe his wife to forget Hollywood and stardom.

"I told Ruby a short while ago," Jolson declared, "that I would put 50 one-thousand dollar bills in her stocking Christmas morning if she would quit this business cold.

Ruby did not accept the bribe. Her success in "42nd Street," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "Footlight Parade" has made her one of the most valuable stars on the Warner Brothers roster.

Jolson said being tied down interferes with his golf.

Robinson Is Slated to Go to France

Under a plan now being considered by First National, a portion of "Napoleon: His Life and Loves" will be filmed in France in actual Napoleonic neighborhoods, with Edward G. Robinson, star of the picture, and Frank Borzage, director, heading the troupe. The plan will permit First National to include many famous geographical places associated with the Little Corporal, adding to the verisimilitude of the picture and being an economy as far as the building of sets is concerned.

Bette Davis and Cortez To Be Co-Starred

Edward Everett Horton, who recently completed an important role with Genevieve Tobin, Adolphe Menjou and Mary Astor in "Easy to Love," has been chosen by First National as the second male lead in "Hit Me Again." Bette Davis and Ricardo Cortez are to be co-starred in the picture, which will also have Glenda Farrell and Frank McHugh in principal parts. The story of "Hit Me Again" is by F. Hugh Herbert.

Durante Coddles Lion He Is to Wrestle

Jimmy Durante has to wrestle with a trained lion in "The Hollywood Party" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. He has been feeding the animal, "Jackie," a nice thick steak every day.

"I just want to impress on him," says Jimmy, "that he's sure of getting steak, so why bother about Durante-meat!"

Miss Bennett Sings In New Picture

Constance Bennett's part in "Moulin Rouge" requires her to sing several times, and producers Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck registered considerable elation when they saw the first rushes of the picture in the projection room.

"I never thought of myself as a singer before," admits Connie, "but I have always hummed and sung catchy melodies to myself ever since my childhood. And I believe that popular songs must be sung from the heart—spontaneously."

COOKERY URGED AS STUDY FOR CHILDREN

We worry about teaching our children how to dance, to observe all the little niceties of convention, to get along with the people with whom they come in contact, yet many mothers, Prudence Penny has noticed, think it unnecessary to teach their children even the simplest rules of culinary art.

Your boy, as well as your girl, she insists, will benefit from a fsndamental knowledge of cooking. After all there are times when everyone must prepare a meal for himself, and with all the aids of modern food preparations and conveniences, no reason exists why a youngster should not have an adequate working knowledge of cooking.

Get your family to watch Prudence Penny's prize winners for any recipes that appeal to them and incorporate their selections in your menus for the week. Occasionally have them make one of the simpler recipes for themselves. Perhaps you can even get them to volunteer to prepare one or two meals a week, using Prudence Penny's recipes to aid them.

You, like the housewives who already have won prizes, must have any number of especially good recipes. Send them in to Prudence Penny, so she in turn may give them to her readers. A first prize of $5 and 10 prizes of $1 are awarded daily to the best recipes received. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

3111 Gaylord Avenue, Dormont.

SCALOPPINI WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

Select tender veal cutlets, and have them cut very thin. To serve six people adequately it requires 1½ pounds.
One medium sized green pepper.
2 tbsp. vinegar (or cooking wine.
One cup sliced mushroom (canned or fresh).
½ cup canned tomatoes.
Method—Brown meat in olive oil (2 t), and add the finely chopped pepper, onion, and mushrooms. Cook until all the vegetables are slightly browned, and the oil is all absorved or cooked into the mixture. Add the tomatoes and cover and cook until the meat is very tender. This requires about 35 minutes. If the gravy is not thick enough to suit add one tablespoon of flour to the broth and thicken. This should be served very hot, and can be nicely used as a substitute for spaghetti sauce.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

BERTHA S. ROSSMANN,
136 Linview Avenue, Carrick.

HALIBUT OR HADDOCK SUPREME.

Wash fish in cold water. Dry with towel. Place in baking pan ½ pound butter. Put pan in hot oven to brown. Important to let butter brown. When butter is brown immediately put fish in sizzling butter, sprinkle with a little salt and pepper. Baste hot butter over fish 15 minutes. Baste every three and four minutes. Remove from oven and baste until all liquid disappears into fish.

MRS. E. D. WILSON,

PECAN ROLLS

Two cups flour.
Four tablespoons white sugar.
One egg, well beaten.
One-half cup milk.
Coat the bottom of muffin cups with butter and brown sugar, allowing one teaspoon butter and one tablespoon brown sugar for each roll. Roll out the dough in one oblong piece one-half inch thick. Spread with two tablespoons of soft butter, sprinkle with one teaspoon cinnamon, mixed with one-fourth cup of white sugar and one-half cup coarsely chopped pecans. Roll like jelly roll, slice in one inch pieces and place them with cut side down in muffin tins. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven. This recipe makes from 12 to 16 rolls.

KATHERINE DAUM,
2817 Louisiana Avenue, Dormont.

APRICOT SOUFFLE.

One-fourth pound dried apricots.
One-half cup sugar.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon vanilla.
Six candied cherries.
Wash the dried apricots and soak for three hours in sufficient water to cover them. Cook slowly for 10 minutes in the same water in which they were soaked. Press through a collander, add the sugar and cook until very thick, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Add salt and lemon juice. Allow to cool. Beat the egg-whites until very stiff, add the baking powder, apricots and vanilla. Stir just enough to mix. Pour into well-buttered tin or aluminum molds until two-thirds full. Place the molds in a pan of hot water and bake 35 minutes in a slow oven. Turn off the fire and allow the pans to remain in a warm place so that they will not fall. When slightly cool, remove carefully and serve as quickly as possible. Place whipped cream and a candied cherry on top.

MISS M. E. NOAH,
7318 Church avenue, Ben Avon.

FRENCH BONBONS AND CHOCOLATES

Three cups sugar.
One cup water.
Pinch of cream of tartar.
Pinch of salt (may be used or omitted).
Combine ingredients, stir well, place on fire and boil to soft ball stage (do not stir while cooking). Set aside to cool to luke-warm stage. Then beat until syrup becomes a thick creamy mass.
Take this creamy mass from the kettle and knead with hands until it becomes soft and pliable. Flavor to taste and color. Roll out on table into a long rope about three-fourths inch in diameter and cut into pieces about one inch long, which may be made into different shapes.
This is fondant from which a great variety of candy can be made by the addition of nuts and fruits. Put the cut pieces in the refrigerator to cool and harden.
To dip:
Place a lump of fondant in a shallow pan or dish over hot water to melt. Put one of the cut pieces of fondant on a hat pin or skeleton wire spoon, roll in the melted fondant until smoothly coated and drop on heavy waxed paper. If melted fondant is too heavy add two or three drops of water until of right consistency.
To chocolate dip:
Place one-fourth pound of chocolate in shallow pan over hot water to melt (do not cut or shave and do not stir). Put one of the cut pieces of fondant on a hat pin or wire skeleton spoon, roll in the melted chocolate until coated and drop on heavy wax paper. Return to refrigerator as soon as possible to harden. Be sure the candy is very cold for this process.

MRS. STANLEY MALESKEY,
981 McKinley Avenue, Steubenville, O.

RIPE OLIVE AND EGG CASSEROLE.

Three tablespoons butter.
Five hard-boiled eggs.
One-half cup ripe olives, chopped.
One-fourth cup grated cheese.
One small minced onion.
One-half teaspoon prepared mustard.
One teaspoon salt.
Three-fourth cup milk.
Crumble crackers and brown lightly in two tablespoons butter. Slice eggs. Mix crackers, eggs, olives, cheese, onion, mustard and salt. Pour into a greased baking dish and cover with milk. Dot with butter and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Six portions.

MRS. N. D. McMILLION,
213 McKinley avenue, Avalon.

MACARONI WITH DRIED BEEF AND MUSHROOMS.

Elbow macaroni to fill a cup. Cook until tender in boiling salted water, drain and rinse. Make a sauce of three tablespoons full butter, two tablespoons flour, with salt, pepper and paprika to taste and two cups of milk. Cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add one-quarter cup grated cheese, one cup canned mushrooms, sliced, and the macaroni. Freshen one-quarter pound of dried beef in boiling water, drain well and add to the macaroni mixture.
Turn into baking dish, cover with grated cheese, sprinkle of paprika and brown delicately. Serve in baking dish.

MRS. DE LOS H. PARKE,
628 Ridge Avenue, New Kensington.

PEAR REFRIGERATOR DELIGHT

One can pears.
One orange.
One teaspoon pineapple extract.
One cup sugar.
One teaspoon gelatin.
One-half pint whipping cream.
Drain pears and chop very fine, adding sliced orange, sugar, extract and gelatin, whip cream very stiff and combine lightly; freeze in refrigerator tray four hours; cut in squares and serve. This amount makes 10 large servings.

MRS. JOHN N. EARLY,
958 Washington road.

JELLIED VEAL

Three hard cooked eggs.
Juice of one lemon.
One-half pound of salt pork.
Two tablespoons gelatine.
Seasoning.
Cook veal and pork together until tender. Cool and chop fine. Boil stock down to one pint. Season highly with salt, pepper and paprika, add lemon juice and pour over the gelatine which has been softened in half a cupful of cold water. Strain. Line a bread pan with waxed paper. Put a thin layer of meat and moisten with stock. Next place a layer of sliced eggs, then another of meat, moistening each time with the stock. Now a layer of strips of green pepper and pimento laid close together lengthwise in the pan. Continue with alternate layers, having the meat on top. Cover with wax paper, and weight with another bread pan. Seasoning is best obtained by salting meat a little and the stock very bigatly. When cut, each slice will show tiny strips of yellow and white with bits of red and green here and there.

MRS. OSCEOLA McCUNE,
Branch 16, Box 256, Crafton.

COFFEE JELLY DE LUXE.

Serves four.
One tablespoon granulated gelatine.
Two tablespoons cold water.
Two cups strong coffee.
Three whole cloves.
Cinnamon sticks.
Two tablespoons chopped nuts.
Two tablespoons preserved ginger.
Cooked cup sugar.
Method:
Soften the gelatine in cold water. Heat the coffee with three whole cloves, add one short stick of cinnamon and cook this slowly seven minutes. Strain out the spices and add sugar. Pour over soften gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add nuts and ginger, pour into molds and set set until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Regular Democrats Kick On Naming Henry

By MARK SHIELDS

Among officialdom of the regular Democratic organization there is bitter protest at Mayor William N. McNair's proposal to make John M. Henry public safety director. The protest is lodged upon grounds which are worth note and comment.

Mr. Shields

Mr. Henry is a Democrat, representative of a wing of the party which opposes the regular organization. Mr. Henry being a candidate for the mayoralty nomination against the Mayor in the primary last September.

However, it is contended now that in urging the Henry appointment Mr. McNair is wrecking the party, and as much displeasure is expressed toward him as toward Mr. Henry. The principle is raised that a strong Democratic party would be worth while for Pittsburgh, which is correct, as there then would be two strong political groups, one serving as a check upon the other.

But the vision the appointment of Mr. Henry as wrecking that principle is difficult to comprehend. It is true that in a raito of nearly 10 to 1 the registered Democrats some of them recent converts, voted against Mr. Henry in the primary. Mr. Henry lacked money for a campaign, and all the reins of organization were in the hands of his opponent.

It would seem, if a real desire to form a strong Democratic party is the sincere wish of the organization leaders, that they would be glad to have in their circle Mr. Henry, representative of the opposition. True, he would not concern himself with building a Democratic or any other political machine, founded on patronage and privilege through the authority of the police department.

But a party constructed on that foundation has just been repudiated in Pittsburgh.

The color of the complaints made against Mr. McNair for his switch to Mr. Henry in the event James F. Malone, Republican, is not confirmed for the post by Council, sounds more as though the protestants were incensed because he was not acting to strengthen a faction—at the expense of the party as a whole.

Philadelphians Talk of Maxey for Governor

In Philadelphia there has been some talk of Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey as a tentative candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. From time to time this story has been afloat, Justice Maxey being no neophyte in politics.

Not so long ago discussion touched three Supreme Court Justices, Mr. Maxey and Justices John W. Kephart and James B. Drew. Then Justice Kephart was recognized as perhaps as formidable as any man in the field, and his prowess as a foe was admitted by every man who had thoughts himself of entering for the position.

Senate revelations of the Morgan preferred list, however, reacted against Justice Kephart, and Justice Drew has disclaimed any desire to become Governor now. This leaves only Justice Maxey from the Supreme Court circle as a possible candidate.

From the anthracite regions, he would be expected to make some appeal to labor, and would have assistance from some organization centers.

Judge M. A. Musmanno of Common Pleas Court has some loyal and enthusiastic friends who are putting his name forth as the logical Republican candidate. They assert that he can meet every test of fidelity to a program of social legislation, the basis of the Democratic appeal.

In this contention they are absolutely right. Judge Musmanno when a member of the Legislature pioneered the social legislation field at a time when economic conditions were better, there was not so much restlessness and demand for social progress, and it was unpopular to declaim against the existing order.

* * *

Time Held Hardly Propitious for Musmanno

In those days you were branded "radical" for espousing causes which now have attached to their standards the most respectable elements of well-upholstered society.

To that extent Judge Musmanno is eligible, and it is a fine compliment that his friends should think so highly of him as to wish at this time to put him forward as a candidate for governor. It speaks, well, also, for their loyalty.

But the time is hardly propitious for Judge Musmanno, despite the immense vote he received in Allegheny County at the last judicial election. That can be said here, for this column admires the judge highly, and this newspaper has consistently supported him.

But it would be rushing things a bit should he enter the May primary, just four months after he has gone on Common Pleas bench. In 1931 he was elected to County Court. Some of his friends—especially those who ultimately desired to see his public career take another course than the bench—thought he was being a bit too hasty by running for a higher court with less than two years of service in the lower branch. However, his big vote was complete answer to that.

The governorship, nevertheless, would be a different proposition, a much different fight, and it is doubtful if Judge Musmanno, while appreciating the sentiment of his friends, is giving serious thought to a primary campaign this year. His first aim must be to serve so capably on the bench that later urgings of the same nature, in other years, may be met more than halfway, if he so desires.

MALONE STILL FIRST CHOICE OF M'NAIR

Mayor Determined to Submit His Name To Council

James F. Malone is still Mayor William Nissley McNair's first choice for public safety director—according to McNair's latest statement.

McNair said last night that he will submit Malone's name to Council Monday.

If Malone"s name is rejected, he said, he will send in that of John M. Henry, who ran against him at the primary.

McNair declared:

"I'm still committed to Malone. I'll send in his name first, of course."

Malone's confirmation is considered nopeless, Henry's certain.

'DON'T MEAN A THING'

That, at any rate, is what he would have you believe as he says:

"When I recommend a man to a director it means just as much and no more than if a private citizen recommended him.

The question came up yesterday after Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., of the Public Safety Department, revealed, McNair had asked him to replace Fire Chief Richard L. Smith with John Heinz, former fireman and recent defeated Democratic candidat for sheriff.

DENNY'S PROTEST

Denny said he'd rather resign than appoint Heinz, four times cited for discipline before the Trial Board, at the expense of Smith, with an outstanding record for fire prevention and control.

McNair admitted taking Heinz's name to Denny, but said:

"It's up to him if he turns my names down. That's happened to lots of my recommendations."

Asked if he had taken to Denny the name of Joseph (Bozo) Lavery, fighting former policeman, McNair laughingly said:

"No, I didn't take the name to Denny—I took it to Ben Marshall and Denny caught me there.

"Denny caught me going over his head."

Lavery doesn't have a job—yet.

EXPO PROPERTY UP FOR HEARING

The ordinance granting the Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society a 50-year grant on the exposition property at the Point was scheduled for a hearing in City Council next Wednesday.

Two groups now want the exposition site. The society wants to build a building, costing at least three million dollars, for conventions, sporting events and exhibits. A number of hotel and businessmen want to remodel the present building for the same purpose at comparatively low cost.

The society is willing to pay the city 3 per cent of its gross annual revenue. Councilman William A. Magee spoke yesterday of the $30,000 a year which the city has been paying the Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society for the use of the building, and declared the city should protect itself against any similar occurrence in the future.

M'NAIR, WESOKY TALK AT LIONS' MEETING

Mayor Holds Out Job Lure in Wilkinsburg Annexation Bid

Mayor McNair and his shadow, J. M. Wesoky, spoke at the Lions' Club meeting in Wilkinsburg today. he Mayor's was a surprise visit, but Wesoky was expected. In fact, the Mayor had arranged for the speech by this young man who is going to get that non-existent $4,000 job advertising Pittsburgh or know why.

The Moyar ate early and alone at the meeting, spoke while the others were eating, then departed for another speech. He defended his plan of giving city lots and materials to the homeless and complained:

"But who takes it up? Young (Playboy) McCready. And it gives him such a headache he goes out and gets drunk."

URGES ANNEXATION

The Mayor suggested Wilkinsburg might do worse than join the city. He promised:

"All the jobs aren't filled yet, and we could wait until Wilkinsburg comes into the city."

The Mayor, awarded a placque by the Pitt Panther just yesterday for possessing what was described as a sense of humor, said this of the depression:

"This isn't a crisis. It's just politicians' boloney . . . The only way to get out of depression is to have ideas, but if you get an idea don't take it as aspirin; let it work."

Wesoky was no less scintillating. He proclaimed:

"Pittsburghers are suffering from an inferiority complex

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Looks like we can take a timid look over the tops of our rose-colored glasses.

President Roosevelt has made history. He is the only President who has had two campaigns. One before election. One after inauguration.

They can't stop Postmaster Farley from galloping around the doubtful states. Jim sees that each postcard is delivered personally. He is always in the mail.

They claimed that elastic currency meant you were down to the rubber band on your bankroll. Now, they have stopped that and are singing, "Brother, can you spare a six-cent dime?"

Permanent Registration for Whole County Would Save Taxpayers $117,000 Annually

City's Expenditure Of $57,000 Cut By New Bill

The permanent registration bill for Pittsburgh which will eventually bring about a saving of approximately $57,000 for registering voters in the city, is but one step along the road to permanent registration for the entire county, which would bring about a saving of more than $117,000 each year.

Once the permanent registration setup has been complete in Pittsburgh, it will eliminate the necessity of spending approximately $57,000 each year. The Pittsburgh Registration Commission spends approximately $65,000 on even numbered years and more than $48,800 on odd years. The registrars, 1,628 in the city, draw $10 a day and they sit three days in odd years and four days in even years.

The recent session of the Legislature approved permanent registration for Pittsburgh and the bill now awaits the Governor's signature. The same Legislature turned down a bill of State Senator W. D. Mansfield, which would have permitted permanent registration in McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton.

ELECTION DISTRICTS

The three third-class cities have 54 election districts, four registrars to a district. These registrars draw $10 a day from the county. They sit the same number of days as do the Pittsburgh registrars, necessitating the outlay of $6,480 one year and $8,640 the next.

In the 53 townships and 66 boroughs there are 480 election districts, but instead of having registrars each district has an assessor, who makes a personal house-to-house canvass to register the qualified voters. This assessor is permitted 19 days to make his canvass, an additional two days to sit and receive corrections, and one extra day for bringing his book into the county elections department. He is paid at the rate of $5 a day, which gives each assessor $110 a year.

It is very seldom that any assessor is paid anything less than the $110 allowed for the entire 22 days' work. This would mean an outlay of $52,800 a year for the assessors in the boroughs and townships.

The table printed with this article shows that it costs the taxpayers of Allegheny County $117,340 each year for registering the voters. In 1930 there were 488,933 qualified voters in the county. This means that its costs approximately four cents and a fraction to register each voter.

ADDITIONAL EXPENSE

The figures contained in this article are only for the payment of registrars. The cost of maintaining the Pittsburgh Registration Commission is not given, nor is the expenses of the county elections bureau broken down to show how much is spent for transcribing the books of the registrars.

However small the cost may be for registering each voter, it could be virtually eliminated by permanent registration.

The financial saving is but one feature of permanent registration. No one will deny that more people would vote if it were less trouble to do so. Political leaders throughout the county expect to see a heavy registration this spring when the permanent registration records are to be set up.

Advocates of permanent registration also point out that another savings will result. This is in the work of jury investigation. Investigators cost the county more than $45,000 a year. In many cases it is found, after much investigation, that the person is a phantom, or one who has been dead for many years.

With a master file, it would be very easy to furnish the Jury Commissioners with all the names and street lists they might require. The investigation would then be cut down materially. All the registration office would require would be the co-operation of the State Department of Vital Statistics in furnishing the names of local residents taken by death.

(Tomorrow the Sun-Telegraph will publish an article dealing with the fee offices.)

Elected Engineer, Then Fired By County

Elected borough engineer of Oakmont, Norman A. Abel has been fired by the county. He was a junior assistant county engineer.

The motion was passed. McGovern informed his colleagues that Abel had been elected Oakmont borough engineer on Monday.

Mine Homes Project To Aid 100 Families

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The subsistance homestead project to be established in Mt. Pleasant Township, Westmoreland County, is designed to provide a livelihood for about 100 coal mine families.

Plans announced last night by Secretary of the Interior Ickes disclosed that the homestead community of 1,800 acres will be thrown open to families left stranded by abandonment of soft coal mines.

It will be patterned after the one now in process of establishment at Arthurdale in West Virginia and will care for 500 persons now on relief rolls. The Secretary announced:

"The homesteads will make it possible for them (the miners' families) to produce vegetables, poultry and other produce for their own needs.

"The project contemplates a gradual development of the movement from mining camps to homesteads, covering perhaps a year's time, with the homesteaders themselves to do most of the work incident to the construction of the houses."

A corporation known as the Westmoreland Homesteads, Inc., is being formed to handle the details.

PAYROLL DELAY KEEPS MEN ON TWO ROLLS

Only 2,000 Taken From List Despite 21,000 Works Jobs

The cost of direct relief in Allegheny County will be little affected by the Civil Works employment program unless there is closer co-operation between CWA offices and relief headquarters, Relief Director George P. Mills said today.

Mills disclosed only 2,812 names have been removed from the relief rolls since the CWA program began. On January 11 there were 21,000 persons on the CWA payroll, half of whom were supposed to be drawn from the relief list.

The assertion of Ralph W. Gibbs, employment director for the CWA, that half of the 21,000 actually are relief cases left the assumption that many of these are receiving relief money as well as CWA pay.

PAYROLLS DELAYED

Mills explained recipients of relief cannot be taken off the relief roll until they are checked from a CWA payroll. He said payrolls have been two weeks late in arriving at his office, the one for January 4 being received only yesterday.

Gibbs said he will attempt to aid the welfare office in cancelling relief orders after workers have drawn wages.

Robert Kelsoe, CWA field agent who was reported due in Pittsburgh to investigate civil works activities, will not be here before January 30, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

In Boston, yesterday, Kelsoe said he knew nothing of an inquiry to be made in Allegheny County, and added:

"I don't plan to be in Pittsburgh before the end of this month, unless I receive orders to the contrary."

PROBE UNLIKELY

It appeared doubtful that there would be an investigation of complaints that the CWA employment program is dominated by politics or of agreements required by labor unions that CWA workmen assign large portions of their pay to the unions to pay up delinquent dues.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern yesterday voiced objection to treatment of ex-service men and charged exploitation of county material. He said:

"We're giving out heavy road building equipment to the unlimited control of the CWA. All these people the county got rid of have clustered around into the key CWA postions. The county ought to have a representative on those jobs."

He said it was a "shame" ex-service men were not given a break by "the political hacks" in charge of CWA jobs.

Banker Quits, Incident 'Closed,' Says Biddle

HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Eric H. Biddle, state CWA administrator, said today that, so far as he is concerned the controversy over his hiring of David W. Charles as assistant CWA comptroller, is "closed." He said:

"Mr. Charles has resigned and is no longer in Harrisburg.

"His resignation closes the matter and I do not expect to have anything further to say about it."

Charles' removal was ordered by Harry L. Hopkins, national administrator, after Hopkins learned that Charles had been convicted of misusing funds of a bank in Narberth, where he had been assistant treasurer. The bank is closed.

In his letter of resignation, made public at Biddle's office last night, Charles said he was unwilling to permit his chief "to make any further sacrifices" in his behalf. The letter was dated January 15.

Engineers Ending Canvass on Smoke

CWA engineers working under the Bureau of Smoke Regulation of the Department of Public Health will complete their survey of smoke and dust conditions in three East End areas today, according to H. B. Meller, director of the bureau. They will next study conditions in Darlington road, Bartlett, Beacon, Atwood, Bates, Oakland, Sennot, Boomer and Duff streets.

M'NAIR TO PUSH HOUSING LOAN FIGHT

If the Public Works Administration's housing division fails to make a $1,000,000 loan to George E. Evans for his housing project here, Mayor William N. McNair will "go down to Washington to see what the trouble is." That's what the Mayor said today a few hours before the "zero hour" for announcing the loan by the Public Works Press Bureau.

Public Works officials, meanwhile, explained that the ruling yesterday by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl on the unconstitutionality of the Emergency Housing Corporation would not affect the $48,000,000 advanced from PWA funds to limited dividend corporations, such as Evans' project for building 200 houses in Pittsburgh.

A truce between McCarl and Public Works Administrator Ickes was apparent in Washington today and the entire 100 million dollar program's release was said to be imminent.

According to Mayor McNair, Robert D. Kohn, head of the PWA housing division, agreed last Friday to obtain the $1,000,000 loan for Evans if the city administration would pledge itself to demolish 200 houses in slum areas. McNair contends that this agreement will not be affected by the McCarl housing ruling.

The government's plan for a large housing project at Cleveland, O., will be at a standstill, together with all other slum clearance plans under the Emergency Housing Corporation, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

M'NAIR, WESOKY ADDRESS LIONS

(Wesoky did not specify whether he included himself). They think they live in a helluva place. An uninteresting and unromantic place."

URGES FREE TICKETS

Proponents of the graded tax sighed with relief when Wesoky placed his stamp of approval on this tax. And if there had been any theater operators present they would undoubtedly have applauded his suggestion to give free tickets to theaters to attract out-of-towners.

On the single tax the daring young publicist declared:

"The Mayor's been studying the single tax for 20 years and maintains he doesn't know anything about it. I've been studying for a week and know all about it. . . . As to a personal opinion in the single tax, I'm sorry I can't give that at present."

This was Wesoky's second meeting with the Mayor in two days. Last night the Mayor looked over a second quiz Wesoky had given himself (he wrote the questions and answers) and said his protege was still:

"All wrong."

M'Nair's Speech Leaves Pitt Students Befuddled

Student members of the Pitt Inquiry Club are still wondering what Mayor William N. McNair's answer is to his address today entitled, "RepealWhat Should the Students' Attitude Be?"

Reason No. 1 for not using tobacco or liquor:

"They both are taxed. We should have single tax and keep our wealth in Pittsburgh."

Reason No. 2:

"Pinchot has tied up the whole legislative program. He won't sign a bill and he won't veto one. What's he doing in New York, anyway?"

Reason No. 3:

"Thomas McMahon is the best city assessor in the United States. That's why I kept him on the board, but I couldn't make him chairman."

Reason No. 4:

"I didn't know anything about McCready when I made him Pittsburgh's homemaker."

7 FLEE FLAMES IN HAZELWOOD

Seven persons, members of three families, were forced to flee when fire swept through the first floor of the home of Michael Connors, 5148 Blair street, Hazelwood, last night.

Connors, his wife, Mrs. Anna Connors, and their two sons, Jack, 15, and Bobby, 10, fled to the street when the flames were discovered in the dining room. Heavy clouds of smoke routed Mrs. Margaret Comer and her son, Charles, Jr., 5, from their home at 5146 Blair street, and John Schwartz, 16, who was alone in an adjoining house at 5150 Blair street. His parents were absent at the time, as was Mrs. Comer's husband.

Two alarms were sounded when it was feared that the flames would spread to other brick houses in the row. However, the blaze was confined to the first floor of the Connors' home.

STATE BONUS AIDES NAMED

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 17.—Four regional contact men to assist Col. Arthur C. Colahan, Philadelphia, in distributing the $50,000,000 soldiers' bonus were appointed today by Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis, administrator of the bonus. The appointments were:

First Lieut. J. Guy Griffiths, Pittsburgh, for Allegheny, Lawrence, Butler, Beaver, Washington, Greene, Fayette, Westmoreland, Indiana, Armstrong, Clarion, Jefferson, Cambria, Blair, Bedford and Somerset counties.

Maj. Ralph B. McCord, Erie, for Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Venango, Clearfield, Center, Clinton, Lycoming, Tioga and Potter counties; Maj. John V. Dallin, Philadelphia, and First Lieut. George A. Davis, Scranton, were assigned to eastern counties.

Gen. Davis said the first of the 600,000 application blanks would begin going forward about February 1, with the first bonus payments coming probably about two months later.

Homestead Man Hurt By Hit-Run Autoist

A hit-run driver today struck Edward Gillespie, 28, of Amity street, Homestead, at Eighth and Amity streets, Gillespie, taken to Homestead Hospital, was not believed in a serious condition.

PARK SHAKES UP DETECTIVES

At the first of a series of monthly meetings he told the 24 sleuths that, instead of hanging around the bureau waiting for something to do, all but six would daily be sent out to assigned districts for which they will be responsible.

Park announced:

"I shall expect them to know of any gambling houses or other violations. And if the district detectives fail to report violations there would be no necessity of keeping an incompetent man at work as a lot of good detectives have applied for appointments.

"It would be easy to replace any man on the force."

To the detectives Park emphasized his warning that there have been reports that the racket guys, ousted from the city, have been moving to the county.

MAGEE URGES SUBWAY MEET

The ordinance repealing the city's $5,880,000 subway bond issue has been held over by Finance Committee of Council pending a conference with the City Transit Commission and other citizens who may be interested.

Councilman William A. Magee suggested the hearing. He said:

"My tendency is to repeal it, but I'd like to hear what the Transit Commission has to say."

Magee said he thought the material gathered by the Commission over more than eight years of study should be put into one report.

Councilman Robert Garland, discussing the advantages of repeal of the bond issue, referred to the improvement in the city's credit and the reduction in expense. He declared that "the necessity for a subway has gone by."

COUNCIL VOTES PAYROLL CASH

Police and firemen will begin receiving their belated pay for the last two weeks of December, tomorrow.

Council in special session this afternoon approved an ordinance transferring $85,205 to payroll accounts. This with other funds will permit the treasurer to meet the $148,000 police and fire payroll.

Controller James P. Kerr said paying will start as soon as the ordinance is signed by Mayor McNair. He cannot legally sign the ordinance until tomorrow.

Union Wages Paid On Rum Store Job

Union wages were paid men employed in reconditioning the state liquor store at Forbes and Atwood streets, E. E. Soxman & Sons, general contractors, said today in denying that wages lower than the union scale was paid.

William J. Kelly, business agent for the carpenters' district council, said yesterday complaints were sent to Gov. Pinchot charging several contractors violated contracts by paying less than the union scale.

Johnston Holds County Building Is 'Snake Nest'

E. J. Foley, chief clerk of the Bureau of City Property, has been named superintendent of the City-County Building by Leslie M. Johnston, Public Works Director. He replaces William Abercrombie.

A drive to clean up the building was announced by Johnston in making the appointment. He said:

"The condition of this building is terrible. It looks like a snake nest."

The crowds of jobseekers which have jamed corridors and offices at City Hall have added greatly to the work of the cleaning force, Johnston referred to the littered hallways and tobacco-stained stairways and declared that Foley has been given full responsibility to improve conditions in the city's half of the building.

Foley is to supervise the work in addition to his own job, it is understood. The condition of the City-County Building, along with the cost of attempting to keep it clean, has frequently been criticized by civic organizations, among them the Building Owners' and Managers' Association.

Johnston announced that he has made a personal investigation of the cribbing which collapsed in Dawn avenue between West Liberty avenue and Waltham street, and that he believes the failure of the retaining wall was due to a treacherous clay condition found at the base. The city engineers were not negligent, he believes, but said he will investigate further.

JAILED TWICE IN FEW HOURS

George Devlin, of 1808 Jane street, was arrested early today while police were raiding a place on the second floor of 2804 Carson street. It was the second time within a few hours that he had been arrested, police said.

Earlier, South Side police said they held him under bond as a material witness in connection with the seizure of the automobile of his brother, William Devlin, of Kentucky avenue, which, police said, contained several gallons of contraband whisky when it burned in the South Side, December 10. George was arrested when he made inquiries concerning the machine.

Police reported Devlin was toting a can of whisky into the Carson street address when they raided it. Besides Devlin, John Phillips and Omar Forrest, of 412 Bristol street, were charged with violating the state liquor laws. Three visitors also were arrested.

RODGERS FIELD COST BARED

The reasons why Allegheny County must dispose of Rodgers Field will be explained tomorrow noon by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern at the luncheon meeting of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh.

Without maintenance, according to Commissioner McGovern, the auxiliary county airport costs the county $2,680 a year. This sum represents interest of $2,000 on the county's investment of $40,000 and $680 lost in taxes. If the property were sold to private interests, Commissioner McGovern points out, it would again be taxable and the county would not have the principal tied up.

A counter proposal to lease the field to private aviation interests also will be discussed at the luncheon. It has been suggested that the county might better lease the field for $1,200 or $1,500 a year than sell it at a sacrifice.

HOPES TO GET NURSES' PAY

George P. Mills, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board, announced today that he is drafting a plan to make it possible for public health nurses to receive authorization slips entitling them to payment for services from state relief funds on maternity cases where the doctor is paid by the city.

Mills was informed by Dr. Harold I. Miller, medical director of the State Relief Board, that nursing service on this class of cases is eligible for payment under the state relief board's medical care plan.

BULLET IN BRAIN, BOY LIVES

In Hospital Month, Removed to Home

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 17.—With a bullet still lodged in his brain tissue, 13-year-old Luther Lamb, a school boy, went to his home this week after a month in the hospital. Because of the danger surgeons decided not to probe for the bullet.

The boy was shot mysteriously December 12 while en route to his home from school. The shot entered the back of the head behind the right ear, passed through the brain tissue and lodged on the left side back of the ear. The brain was paralyzed at first.

PITTSBURGH SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH

SCHOOL MERGER URGED HERE BY EDUCATOR

Consolidation of overlaping governmental agencies, including the work of the several thousand school districts in the state, was advocated by Miss Jessie Gray, president of the National Educational Association in an address last night at a dinner of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association.

Some of the vital facts pointed out by Miss Gray were:

City schools throughout the country employ 18,000 fewer teachers now than in 1930. Two hundred thousand certified teachers are unemployed.

Seven hundred and seventy schools are now closed with no provisions for 175,146 children; 1,540 schools will have terms of three months or less and 10,982 schools will have terms of three to six months.

More than 45,000 teachers will receive less than $300 this school year (if paid).

She urged that small school districts be eliminated in favor of county or even larger districts, where uniform educational facilities can be offered and where teachers' salaries can be standardized.

She declared there should be more state aid for districts unable to keep their schools and teachers' salaries up to a level comparable with the approved districts.

Miss Gray during the day visited several schools. In the afternoon she attended the reception of the Civic Club of Pittsburgh for Mayor William N. McNair and his cabinet, and last night attended the dinner, held in the Woman's City Club.

PURSE GRABBER SLUGS WOMAN

A woman was slugged and another who answered her cries for help had her purse snatched early today by a young unidentified white man in Walnut street, according to a police report.

Miss Mary Scanlon, of 924 South Aiken avenue, reported to police she was struck on the head with a blackjack when she refused to yield her purse to an assailant who attacked her near her home.

She screamed, and to her rescue came Miss Lorraine Hunnel, of 5253 Ellsworth avenue, who reported the thief grabbed her purse upon her arrival at the scene. Her papers and vanity case were in her purse, she reported.

RECOGNIZE FAIR CONTRIBUTORS

Allegheny County recognizes today, with cups, ribbons and certificates, the services of all contributors to last summer's county fair.

Former Commissioner E. V. Babcock, one of the founders of the county parks, was to officiate at the ceremonies, to be held in the Gold Room.

Some 800 trophies were to be given out, the bulk of these being framed certificates which will be presented to all contributors to the South Park County Fair. Cups and ribbons will award winners in various competitions.

M'CREADY FUND HEARING SET

Arguments in the case of Harrison R. McCready, the Pittsburgh playboy, attempting to upset the $150,000 trust established for his first wife, Margaret Long McCready, will be heard by Judge Frank P. Patterson February 2.

McCready claims that he did not know what he was doing when he arranged the deed of trust for the benefit of his wife and daughter, Margaret Luella McCready, and wants the entire fund returned to him. The trial of the case in December lasted for nearly three weeks.

ATTORNEY SUED FOR DIVORCE

Attorney Joseph B. Weddell, recently cited for disbarment by the Allegheny County Bar Association for misbehavior in office, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Annette Weddell.

Mrs. Weddell, of 1308 Murtland avenue, charges cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities. They were married October 3, 1903.

Weddell has on file in court a denial of the Allegheny County Bar Association's charges. The disbarment proceedings have not been listed for trial.

Reorganized Bank Opens at Freeport

FREEPORT, Pa., Jan. 17.—The Old Freeport Bank, succeeding the Freeport Bank and Trust Company, opened today, the first reorganized state bank in this district to open on an unrestricted basis since the bank holiday of March 4, 1933.

A. M. Johnston, president, stated that under a unique arrangement all depositors had waived one-third of their deposits and had taken out that amount in stock. All school savings and Christmas savings have been paid in full, he said. The bank is capitalized at $50,000.

School Board Lauds Pageant by Students

Dr. Graham Launches History Program In Classrooms

"The Challenge of the Ages," Pittsburgh's colorful public school centennial pageant, presented last week in Syria Mosque, was acclaimed a fine success by the Board of Public Education, which sponsored the production, at its regular meeting yesterday.

In token of its appreciation, the board arose enmasse in an unprecedented gesture to thank personally a score of educational leaders who directed the undertaking.

DEPICT GROWTH

The pageant, given by 180 pupils of the city's 12 high schools in observance of the founding of Pennsylvania's public school system 100 years ago, consisted of 12 episodes depicting historical highlights in the growth of education in Pennsylvania. Features were re-enactments of the purchase of the Keystone State by William Penn and the conception of the idea of public education by Benjamin Franklin.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent, said:

"Pittsburgh public schools have embarked on a program to give due place to Pennsylvania's contribution to early history and its present place in national life.

"The new text, written by Dr. Smith Burnham, former Pennsylvanian, now teaching at Western State Teachers' College, deals adequately with Pennsylvania's history.

"With the new text proper emphasis will be given by teachers to the honor Pennsylvania deserves in the history of the nation."

EDUCATORS HONORED

The educators honored by the board yesterday were Thomas G. Arnold, of Westinghouse High; Sarah M. Collins, of South High; R. O. Hughes, of the department of curriculum study; Chester B. Story, of Schenley High; Elizabeth P. Howe, Maude Rowley and Robert Blakslee, of Allegheny High; Anna A. Houston, of Allderdice; Harry M. Black, of South; Josephine Hammond, of Peabody; John C. S. Hull, of Perry; Mary E. Cook and Erma C. Jones, of Fifth Avenue; Lottie C. Scott, of Oliver; Irene E. Williams, of Langley; Matildo K. Bachman, of Carrick; Stella A. Price and Robert Arthur, of South Hills, and Grace Dickey and Esther Cook, of Westinghouse High School.

The board deferred action on the proposed closing of the Beck's Run School and transfer of its 35 pupils to Wickersham School. Recommendations for cancellation of coal contracts as asked by the contractors due to increased production costs under the NRA and awarding of contracts on the basis of higher prices were passed. Similar action was taken on contracts for the removal of ashes.

The board also passed motions to replace 18 of the present 22 truant officers by home and school visitors as vacancies occur.

Flush Poisons and Acid From Kidneys

Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent. The right and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic right from Haarlem in Holland.

TOWNSHIP FIRE CHIEF OUSTED

New officers of Volunteer Engine Company No. 2, Stowe Township, were announced today. The reorganization followed the election of the new chief, A. T. Smith.

Max Homer, the former chief, said he had been re-elected chief, but that the township commissioners had refused to approve him.

Officers of the new company are Alfonso Caputo, president; Jerry Pettrilla, vice president; Mario Victor, secretary; Joseph Mancini, treasurer; Nick DeAngelis, captain, and James McDaniel and Vallee Eggie, lieutenants.

Ben Franklin Fete Joined by Roosevelt

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—The President of the United States, representatives of foreign nations and even Admiral Richard E. Byrd, in the Antarctic joined with Philadelphia today in celebrating the two hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birth.

President Roosevelt sent a wreath to be placed on the simple grave of the famous printer, statesman, scientist and philosopher. Old Christ Church, where Franklin and George Washington worshipted while living in this city, was the scene of the day's memorial service.

HIT THAT COLD

WHERE IT LIVES—

in the System!

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold in an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

First of all, it is distinctly a cold remedy, and not a "cure-all." Secondly, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

No Bids for Bottomley. Grid Change Opposed. Hood After Ring Title.

The paring down of the Pirate squad in preparation for the spring training trip on which the crew will embark five weeks from next Monday, is not likely to stop at the dropping of Outfielder Leo Nonnenkamp and Infielder Tony Malinosky, who have been turned over to the Little Rock club under option. Though he has not made known the proportions to which he plans to cut the Buccaneer troupe for the training tour, Manager George Gibson hardly will carry as many players as are still on the roster.

George Gibson

The official list, following the release of Nonnenkamp and Malinosky, shows 32 men, the total being made up of five catchers, 13 pitchers, eight infielders and six outfielders. Such a squad would be slightly top-heavy, the excess being in the battery department. Gibson usually has leaned to the policy he saw Fred Clarke follow for many years, that the best training results always can be obtained by avoiding a congested camp. Besides, the Buc pilot will not have to do a great deal of experimenting this year, as with the exception of second base, his lineup is definitely set. Accordingly, if a deal doesn't reduce the size of the squad before the advance guard entrains on February 26, it won't be surprising if Gibby cuts the crew to 30 members by cutting loose two more players, probably a pitcher and a catcher.

FABER HAS JOB FOR LIFE WITH CHISOX

When Urban Faber has delivered his last pitch in competition, the spitball race will have become extinct, but at least a memory of the famous tribe will remain in the major leagues. For the White Sox owners say their decision again to offer the 45-year-old hurler a player's contract this spring for his twenty-first season on the team is only part of the story. They mean to keep him on the club in some capacity even when his pitching days are over, promising to give him a job for life.

This is by way of rewarding Faber for his long and faithful service. In 20 years with the Chisox, the old flinger has pitched in 633 games, with a total of 4,086 innings, and there are 252 victories to his credit against 210 defeats for a percentage of .545. He has struck out 1,461 batsmen and given 1,213 bases on balls. Baseball has seen few records to surpass that one. It was only because the Pittsburgh club had a more promising looking youngster that Faber did not spend his major league days with the Pirates. The locals obtained him from Dubuque for a trial in 1910 and sent him back to that club for further seasoning. He was recalled for another test in the spring of 1911, but Claude Hendrix was in camp that year, looked like a great prospect, and as there wasn't room for both recruits on the staff, Manager Fred Clarke decided to keep Hendrix and part with Faber. Urban was released to Minneapolis and came back to join the White Sox in 1914.

BOTTOMLEY ON BLOCK, WITH NO TAKERS

What's going to become of Jim Bottomley? From present indications, he'll have to stay with the Reds, for the repeated offers of the Cincinnati management to trade the veteran first baseman have failed to bring a response from any of the other clubs. The Reds thought they were getting a big bargain a year ago, when they obtained Bottomley by sending Owen Carroll and Estel Crabtree to St. Louis and shipping nine other players to Cardinal farms. But Jim didn't prove the tower of strength expected. In justice to him, it must be said that he knocked in more runs than any other first baseman in the National League, and ranked eighth in the loop with his total of 83, but in general hitting he slumped all the way to .250, the only rival first sacker with a lower average being Charley Grimm, with .247.

Jim Bottomley

For weeks the Red owners have been trying right and left to trade Bottomley, but none of the other clubs appears to be interested. Following rejections by the Braves and Phillies, the latest offer was a proposal to trade Jim to Brooklyn for Sam Leslie and Walter Beck, or for Leslie, Owen Carroll and a young catcher named Ray Berres. The Dodgers declined, like the rest. All admit that the new ball may rebuild Bottomley into a dangerous hitter, but they argue that even if the veteran, who will be 34 in April, were to go well for one season they'd have to start right in looking for a younger man.

CROWELL OPPOSES MOVING GOAL POSTS

Wilmer G. Crowell, veteran football official, doesn't believe that many changes in the rules will result from the recommendations made by the coaches. Discussing the subject with Stoney McLinn and Harvey Harman, the Penn mentor, he said that for one thing he does not expect the goal posts to be returned to the goal line for college games.

Crowell expresses the opinion the view it would be a mistake to move the posts in. He thinks it would interfere with forward passes into the end zone, though no such effect has been observed in professional games by fans in Pittsburgh or elsewhere. The official points out that when a team has the ball on the enemy's six-yard line, fourth down and six to go, the obvious play is a pass, and he says situations might arise where it would be impossible for the passer to throw the ball without the hazard of having it graze one of the posts.

EUROPEAN CHAMP SEEKS M'LARNIN MATCH

Old Charley Harvey is trying his luck at an undertaking that has baffled everybody else—that of smoking out Jimmy McLarnin for a fight in defense of the welterweight championship. Harvey is acting for Jack Hood, of England, champion of Europe in that class. The Englishman has fought himself out of opponents on the other side and wants to come to this country if he can get a match with McLarnin. Hood thinks he has as good a claim as Jimmy to the world title, but even so, he is willing to waive that part of the argument and take the challenger's end of 12½ per cent if necessary to induce McLarnin to meet him.

Charley Harvey

Unless McLarnin shows a sudden change of front, however, Hood isn't likely to succeed. Jimmy persists in demanding terms which promoters say are impossible. He has been idle ever since he won the crown by knocking out Young Corbett III almost a year ago. McLarnin wants a guarantee of $30,000 to risk his laurels, but in fistic circles the belief is strong that if he waits until some promoter gives him that much money he will never fight again. Jimmy's latest act was to turn down the offer of a match with Vince Dundee for the middleweight championship at Miami in March, because he knows that Dundee naturally would want the big end of the money.

He Supervises Busy Athletic Program for Local Grade Schools

CHARLES W. NETHAWAY, DIRECTOR OF VARIED INDOOR AND OUTDOOR SPORTS CARD FOR 121 GRADE SCHOOLS IN PITTSBURGH

One of the finest athletic programs of any school district in the country has been developed for the Pittsburgh elementary schools by Dr. Harry B. Burns, Department of Hygiene director, and his supervisor, Charles W. Nethaway. The extensive program calls for inter-school games throughout the year. The plan was adopted in 1914 when the late R. Stanley Burleigh was supervisor. Nethaway took over the work in 1921. This is Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Sports in Grade Schools Show Rapid Growth

By JULIUS LEVIN

This slogan exemplifies the purpose behind the extensive and varied athletic program arranged for the Pittsburgh elementary schools by Dr. Harry B. Burns, director of the Department of Hygiene, and ably carried out by Charles W. Nethaway, supervisor of athletics in the Pittsburgh grade schools.

Little has been said about the athletic program involving virtually every elementary school in the Greater Pittsburgh district, yet this important field of athletic activity compares favorably with the best in the country.

CAPABLE SUPERVISOR

Taking into consideration the number of schools operating under the banner of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, the problem of conducting athletics in an efficient maner is a tremendous one, yet the local schools have carried out their programs in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of efficiency and smoothness, thanks to the efforts of Supervisor Netaway.

Athletics are sponsored for all students, both boys and girls, in the seventh and eighth grades. The program calls for soccer, basketball, swimming, volleyball, baseball and track and field events.

The Pittsburgh grade schools, approximately 121 in number, have been divided into four districts, namely Central, East End, North Side and South Side. Each district has been divided into groups of from four to eight schools, depending on the topography and facilities. This plan enables the grade schools to conduct their games without traveling expenses inasmuch as schools are grouped to permit athletes to participate in games at schools within walking distance from their own schools.

Thus the question of transportation does not become a problem until the inter-group or inter-district games are played.

OVERCOME HANDICAPS

When the program was first introduced in 1915-1916, almost 1,000 inter-school events were scheduled in soccer, basketball for boys and girls and baseball, but the program was curtailed considerably through the lack of needed facilities. However, under the able leadership of Dr. Burns and Supervisor Nethaway, the grade school officials have brought about a program that is almost perfect in its purpose.

The success of the grade school program can be traced back to 1914, when Dr. Burns and his supervisor, the late R. Stanley Burleigh, realized that something would have to be done if grade school athletics were to prosper. As a result of their efforts, athletic leaders were chosen at the various schools, the appointments being given to boys in the upper grades. These athletic leaders made monthly reports to the supervisor, at which time the work was outlined to the leaders. This policy took the work out of the hands of the teachers and enabled the Department of Hygiene to keep an accurate check on all activities.

With the passing of Supervisor Burleigh in 1921, the task of conducting grade school athletics was turned over to Nethaway. Supervisor Nethaway took up the work where Burleigh left off and none will deny that his efforts have not borne fruit. As a result of his excellent program, thousands of boys and girls participate in the varied athletic programs being conducted in the local schools.

SOCCER POPULAR

One sport that has made rapid strides in the elementary schools has been soccer. Played at first with only five boys on a team, the policy was modified in 1921, when all teams were required to play 11 boys. As a result of the success attained in this sport by the grade schools, soccer has been adopted as a major sport in the junior and senior high schools.

Despite the dearth of swimming pools, the water sport plays an important part in grade school athletics. Of the 25 pools in the Pittsburgh schools, only five are owned by grade schools and these five serve children from nine additional schools. Championship meets during the past season brought entries from the seventh and eighth grades of 26 of the 37 schools having students in the upper grades.

Basketball, the popular winter indoor sport, for years was ignored by local schools because of the lack of suitable facilities. Today, however, virtually all schools have courts of their own and as a re-

UANSA TO QUIT AS COACH

By TOM BIRKS

The Rox Rangers, district lightweight football champions for the sixth consecutive year, were honor guests at the annual banquet of the football leagues under the jurisdiction of Steve Cox at the Show Boat last night. The acceptance of the championship trophy marked the last official act by Toby Uansa as coach of the Rangers.

The former University of Pittsburgh star, who has coached the now famous McKees Rocks aggregation into the undisputed leadership of lightweight football in Western Pennsylvania, told the writer that he was through coaching sandlot football and was going to devote his time in the future to business interests.

The banquet was one of the most successful football affairs ever to be held in the city. The various league champions to receive trophies, aside from the Rangers, were St. Rosalia Preps, Bloomfield Civics, Shady Side Locklins, Twenty-third Ward Traders, Paramount Club, St. Rosalia Prep Juniors, Irwin Merchants, G. A. Streibs, the Brighton Club and Aliquippa Indians.

The grasp of Pitt's Golden Panthers of the court on the top position in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference is a game more firm today and their chances of gaining at least a share of the city honors brighter today as a results of a decisive 44-to-35 triumph over Carnegie Tech's varsity passers on the Stadium Pavilion floor last night.

What is more, they have now run their string of consecutive triumphs over the Plaid to 18 and have annexed their forty-first victory out of 47 starts against Carnegie quintets.

Coach Red Carlson elected to start his second team against the speedy charges of Max Hannum last night. The reserves didn't fare poorly, but they proved early that they were not going to cause the Skibos much trouble. By the time the Pitt regulars went into action, with four minutes left to play in the first half, the Techs were out in front by a score of 21 to 13. At the half they were leading, 23-21.

The Panthers showed more offensive strength than they have at any time this season, and gave promise of offering Notre Dame's unbeaten warriors a highly exciting evening here Saturday.

In the preliminary, the Pitt freshmen rallied in the final quarter to nose out the Tech Plebes, 26 to 23.

Correct Early Development Important to Boxers

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

A severe beating received by the author as an amateur boxer back in 1894 gave birth to his chimerical Idea that—if an apt pupil could master boxing without receiving hard blows and avoid other severe punishment for two or three years while absorbing ring technique—he probably would become a genuine champion. The author is describing that fantastic Idea which was to be realized years later with Carnera . . . .

By LEON SEE

CHAPTER TWO.

The idea took a long step in my mind the day I made the following reflection:

Let us suppose the existence of two boys of the same age, the same mentality, equally endowed and with the same intelligence. One, the son of wealthy parents, kind and intelligent, is encouraged in his studies in all possible form. He is surrounded with affection and is aided by his parents and his professors, physically and intellectually. He is not troubled in any way, his faults are corrected with patience, and, thanks to his natural gifts, his progress is remarkable. Confidence comes to him; he is always at the head of his class and when he comes to the final examination he is the first.

Primo Carnera

The other boy, belonging to a poor and ignorant family does not receive any special care. Poorly dressed, badly fed and lodged, frequently scolded without reason and sometimes hurt, often ill and consequently missing his classes, without the necessary money to buy books or copy-books, compelled to repeat his class, wasting the most precious years of his youth, his entire career would be irremediably compromised. Disheartened, he will probably abandon his studies.

EARLY DEFEATS WORST

This image, very often found in reality, reflects with the greatest exactitude the circumstances that may prevail in the debuts of many boxers. Unfortunately, the second example that I have cited is by far the most frequent. Young amateurs, directed in their debuts with intelligence and prudence, are very rare.

Very few are the managers who understand that exaggerated punishment, especially in debuts and particularly when the man who receives it is unusually courageous, can compromise all the future.

Still more rare are those who know that a knockout usually leaves indelible traces, something like a fissure that gets larger and larger with every new knockout, just as the crack in a fragile vase, invisible at first, increases at the slightest shock.

A wise and conscientious manager should formally prohibit new boxers in his charge from engaging in serious fights before one year of lessons, at least. Unfortunately, only a pupil with money can afford to practice boxing steadily, with all the necessary facilities and without remuneration whatever. On the other hand, the pugilistic science of the fighter cannot be acquired but in the ring. A beginner does not learn to fight with timing and precision unless he is facing an adversary who ducks and dodges. In the same manner, he does not learn how to avoid the blows unless it is before a man who uses them. The best lesson cannot take the place of experience. We cannot learn how to swim lying face down on a sofa; how to drive an automobile by reading a manual of the perfect driver or how to play billiards by watching even the greatest of players. Practice only gives us the indispensable reactions.

CARNERA FORTUNATE

So the problem, at first sight insoluble, is to fight frequently against scientific adversaries without being hit!

I wanted to prove that it is possible to become a great champion without being compelled to be beaten, disfigured and diminished in intelligence under the blows that not even a beast would accept.

Carnera is today the world champion; his face does not show a scar, his ears are not "cauliflowered" as most pugilists' are, and his nose — ah, that was not broken in the ring as many suppose. I will tell of that nasal surgical operation later.

Physically, Primo is infinitely superior to the state in which I found him. Thanks to a reasoned physical culture, he has acquired precision in his movements, grace, elegance, the speed and the resistance that he once lacked.

HIS METAMORPHOSIS

Intellectually, I think I can say that I have metamorphosed him . . . From that awkward and uneducated being that he was, I have made of him a man comparatively educated, who speaks three

'Pig on Pants' Superstition Of Primo

American sports writers have been intrigued somewhat by the "pig" that Primo wears on his "pants;" that is, the wild boar figure sewn on his boxing trunks, which insignia is that of my stable of fighters. I adopted it years ago because many of my boxers came from the Ardennes section of France where, in the wooded hills, fierce boars abound. That wild boar, by the way, is one of Primo's pet superstitions. He won't enter a fight without that "pig" on his "pants."

DUQUESNE FRAY HIGH SPOT OF HOME CARD

By JESS CARVER

A nine-game schedule, four games of which will be staged in the Pitt Stadium, including one opponent entirely new to Tech football, has been arranged for Howard Harpster's 1934 Tartan squad.

The program is featured by the scheduling of the Dukes, who have given Pitt a pair of merry battles the past two campaigns. The Tartans and the local Irish will clash November 17, the game to be played in the Stadium.

The Skibos will open their campaign September 30, taking on Geneva College's Covenanters at Beaver Falls. The affair will mark the first time in history that a Tech team has played in the Beaver Valley.

MEET MIAMI

Following the date with the Covenanters, the Plaid will meet Miami U., of Oxford, O., here in the Stadium, the Ohioans returning to the city after a lapse of a year. In 1932 they were in town to take a licking from Pitt.

The first major test of the campaign will confront the Tartans October 13 as they travel westward to meet Michigan State at East Lansing. Michigan State won on the schedule last fall, the teams struggling to a scoreless deadlock.

Notre Dame will be played at South Bend October 20, and the week following Purdue is to come here. New York University is to entertain the Plaid in New York November 3, and the team will invade Philadelphia the week following to meet Temple.

Carnegie and Duquesne will resume football relations in a regularly scheduled game November 17. The Tartans and Dukes played a scoreless tie in a charity tilt three years ago.

After an 11-day respite, the Skibos will battle their true and tried rivals, the Pitt Panthers, on Thanksgiving Day. They'll get a rest the Saturday before the Pitt game this year. Last fall they had to meet he rugged Panhers four days after playing a tough game with New York University in Gotham.

XAVIER DROPPED

Miami replaces the tough Xavier eleven, which gave the Skibos plenty of trouble the past two seasons. The Temple game will be played on a Saturday again instead of on a Friday night, as was the case the last time the Owls and Skibos met in Philadelphia two years ago.

There's an interesting angle to the Geneva booking. Two years ago, in the opener, the Plaid defeated the Covenanters, 7 to 0. At that time Howard Harpster was coaching at Beaver Falls. Now he's at Tech and a former Tartan star and one of Harp's closest friends is at Geneva, Jimmy Robertson.

The Tartans lose six star members of last fall's varsity squad. All three of the regular guards are through, including Bunny Burzio, Henry Dreshar and Clyde Heinzer. Jerry O'Toole, veteran center, and Capt. Red Stewart, one of the best ends in Tech's football history, and Bevevino and Sayles, from the backfield, also are lost.

October 6—Miami (of Ohio) at Pitt Stadium.
October 13—Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich.
October 20—Notre Dame at South Bend.
November 10—Temple at Philadelphia.
November 17—Duquesne at Pitt Stadium.

DUKES' RALLY BEATS GENEVA

The Dukes' mentor had his third in a row last night as his charges, unbeaten now in 22 consecutive starts, faced Geneva College's doughty Covenanters on the Bluff gymnasium floor. Unable to get going in the first half, the Dukes found themselves on the very short end of a 17-8 count at the half. They rallied to win, 33-25.

Last week, first Westminster and then Pitt added grey hairs to the noble Davies dome.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE SAINTLY BACHELOR—Jekisiel Laib, of Grodno, Poland, who just died at the age 52, was called "the Saintly Bachelor" for his austere mode of living. For 30 years, he fasted six days a week from midnight to sunset. On Saturday, when fasting is a sin, he took a little nourishment consisting of bread and water. He always slept on the hard ground, distributed his meager earnings as a tailor to the poor and recited the Book of Psalms every making moment. He was held in high regard as a Saint by his fellow townsmen of every faith.

TOMORROW: A REMARKABLE MEMORIZATION

BLAIK NAMED HEAD COACH, ANDY AIDE

Andy Gustafson

Ellinger and Blaik both are West Point graduates, while Gustafson was a star fullback at Pitsburgh. Ellinger will have charge of the line, and Gustafson the backfield men at Hanover.

SALARIES NOT REVEALED

The amount of salaries the three will receive was not made known.

Before going to West Point, Blaik was a star high school player at Dayton, O., his home town, and later at Miami (O.) University. He has been one of the Army high command for six years and given a large share of the credit for Army successes during that time.

Blaik succeeds Jackson Cannell, who resigned.

GUSTAFSON IN VIRGINIA

Andy Gustafson played as a varsity fullback at Pitt in the seasons of 1923, 1924 and 1925. He was accorded honorable mention on the 1925 all-America team. After being graduated at Pitt, Gustafson became head coach at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, remaining until 1930, when he returned to Pitt as backfield coach.

Gustafson at present is at the home of his wife's parents near Roanoke, Va. He has made his home in Virginia for several years, coming here only for the duration of the football season.

SNAVELY AT 'CAROLINA

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Jan. 17—(AP.)—Carl G. Snavely, head football coach at Bucknell University for the last seven years, last night was elected by the University of North Carolina athletic council as head coach to succeed Charles (Chuck) Collins, whose contract expired the first of the year.

The council announced Snavely had accepted a three-year contract, the terms of which were not disclosed, and would report here in a week or 10 days.

County Parks Golf Fee Is Unchanged

The Commissioners agreed yesterday to charge $20, the same as last year, for an unlimited permit to play on the courses in North and South parks. In addition they voted a $12 permit enabling the holder to play any time but Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Green fees on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays will cost $1. On other days it will be 75 cents.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Al Rossi, who boxes Billy Holt in the windup at McKeesport next Monday night, meets Red Affinite in a six-round preliminary to the Bob Olin-Lou Brouillard bout in New York's Madison Square Garden, Friday night. Olin has recent victories over Charley Massera, Unknown Winston and Al Gainor to his credit, and has shown much improvement over his early form.

Local sports scribes and A. A. U. officials will be guests at a dinner at the Keystone A. C. tonight preliminary to the staging of the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. bouts in the downtown club's gymnasium.

Mose Butch, who boxes Rosy Grier at Canton, O., next Tuesday night, also is matched with Ross Fields at Wheeling, January 29.

Jim McGirr plans to run professional shows every week at McKeesport if his reopening card next Monday catches on; if not, every other week. Al Rossi meets Billy Holt at 160 pounds in the 10-round main bout and Joey Bazzone and Dominic Mancini meet in the eight-round semi-final.

The tickets for the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith fight at Motor Square Garden, February 2, are expected to arrive from Philadelphia today, and the reservations will be filled first, after which the box office sale will begin, probably next Monday, Matchmaker Lew Raymond said today.

SPORTS GROW IN SCHOOLS

sult basketball is one of the major sports in the elementary schools.

FAVOR MUSHBALL

Baseball, while not played on as large a scale as basketball and soccer, nevertheless occupied a prominent place on the grade school program. This year, however, the diamond sport is being side-tracked to permit the playing of mushball, a game that is meeting universal favor.

Like soccer, volleyball is conducted on a major scale. This popular sport, which can be played either indoors or outdoors, depending on the weather, involves not only pupils in the seventh and eighth grades, but boys and girls in the lower grades.

Track and field sports likewise are being given a lot of consideration. That these spring sports are popular with the boys and girls is borne out by the number of entries competing in the annual City championships. Last season's meet drew boys and girls from 121 schools, more than 1,500 boys and girls vieing for honors in the seventh and eighth grades. The meet for sixth grade pupils this year is expected to draw 4,500 entries.

Besides the extensive program carried out in the grade schools under his supervision, Dr. Burns also is in charge of the athletic programs in the junior and senior high schools, which are carried out by C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor.

McNaugher is the defending champion in basketball, having defeated the Frick School for the title last spring. Brookline holds the baseball crown, Rogers is the track and field titleholder, Forbes is champion in swimming, while Greenfield and Stevens are co-champions in soccer. No volleyball champion has been crowned

A new individual scoring for a single game was written into the books yesterday as the City League high school quintets continued on their championship campaign. The new record supplanted another fine mark established last week.

Performing at center for the crack South High quintet, defending champions, Ed Spotovich dropped in 13 field goals and four fouls as his team walloped Taylor Allderdice, 49 to 31. Spotovich's 30 points beat the mark of 27 set last week by Fountain, of Schenley, also against Allderdice.

TEAMS IN TIE

South's victory enabled the 1933 champions to remain in a tie with Connelley for the Section I lead. Connelley also won yesterday, downing Peabody, 33 to 26, after a tough battle. In the other Section I game, Schenley downed Westinghouse, 33 to 25.

In Section II, Langley went into a tie with South Hills for the lead by beating Perry 38 to 20. South Hills won over Vocational, 48 to 16, scoring at will. Carrick nosed out Oliver, 17 to 16.

Favorites came through with triumphs in the W. P. I. A. L. battling, the program being featured by the comeback of Bill Campbell's Homestead quintet. Defeated last week by McKeesport, the Homesteaders played brilliantly last night to down Clairton, 40 to 31.

ALIQUIPPA WINS

Other leading teams to win included Aliquippa, which defeated Rochester, 39 to 14; Ambridge, which won over Freedom, 31 to 10; New Castle, which toppled Beaver Falls, 20 to 16; Duquesne, which took over Munhall, 32 to 21; Greensburg, which scored at the expense of Norwin, 28 to 21, and Sewickley, which scored somewhat of an upset by nosing out Avalon, 26 to 25. Arnold School defeated Shady Side Academy, 22-19. The City League lineups:

Squash and tennis split honors in contest for the attention of the local club athletes today as Class A performance of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association loop clash in tussles originally billed for next Saturday and aspirants to laurels of the fourth annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation indoor men's doubles net event put in final session of practice prior to inauguration of hostilities at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

League squash competition has been moved ahead to avoid conflict with the special three-way inter-city play slated for the Keystone inclosures Saturday and Sunday. Buffalo, Cleveland and Pittsburgh quintets are set for the Steel City racquet classic of the winter. Cleveland and Pittsburgh will open the show at 11 a. m. Saturday, with Cleveland repeating against the Bisons at 3:30 p. m. Buffalo and Pittsburgh will clash at 3:30 o'clock Sunday

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

If the figgers are truthful, Julius Solters has earned his chance to play in the outfield for the Boston Red Sox. The 200-pound Pittsburgh sandlotter can skip through the dew like a sprinter, 'tis said, and his bat was feared by the pitchers of the International as he shone for the Baltimore Orioles. Don't be surprised to see Julius in a regular Red Sox berth next season, and you needn't be amazed if the rejuvenated club cuts a pennant swath . . . Bucky Harris can deliver when he has the players and Bucky will start from scratch with a good country ball nine.

It certainly is news when Bill Shakespeare, of the Notre Dame football squad, slips up in his English, yet Bill has a lot of unique company. Ty Cobb's son flunked in baseball, the shoemaker's kids generally have the worst brogans in the neighborhood and the lad living next door to the schoolhouse often comes up with a bad record for being tardy.

George Gibson and Lloyd Waner tangled in that golf battle yesterday on the blizzard-swept links of the Edgewood Country Club. . . . Jack Frost's hurricane failed to scare the athletes until the sixteenth green was reached. . . . The cutting winds became so cruel at th's point the contest was called off with the Oklahoma jackrabbit out in front with a comfortable margin. . . . Gibby and Lloyd each had a card of 50 going out, but Lloyd was breezing along with a 34 for seven holes of the second nine at the windup. . . . The Edgewood staff decorated the players for bravery after thawing them out. . . . Dr. George Gibson, Jr., son of the Pirate manager, and A. K. Anderson, of the East End, were the other half of the mid-winter foursome.

Golf, by the way, is likely to enjoy a bigger and better season this year . . . Many clubs have reduced their membership fees with the idea of encouraging additions . . . John Burke, public links representative on the U. S. G. A. for many years, visualizes many new high lights for the Scotch game in the neighborhood . . . Burke says the North Park public layout will be the talk of golfers in a few years . . . The roll of the terrain and many other natural advantages give it unusual luster, he says.

L. J. Loughner, of Braddock, asks this column to announce that Bill Benswanger, Sam Watters, George Gibson, Honus Wagner, Lloyd Waner and Rosey Rowswell will be featured speakers at the father and sons dinner of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, of Braddock, tomorrow night, so Braddock seems to be in for a treat. Benswanger is doing pretty well in the banquet league. Bill says he is all dressed up like a can of coffee until the day of the departure of Bill and his Buccos for Paso Robles . . .

Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets and the Chicago Blue Ribbons played "sudden death" lacrosse at Motor Square Garden last night, and at the finish the members of both teams were so exhausted that they felt like passing in their checks.

The locals won the battle, 9-8, on a brilliant goal by Albert Vincent after 12 minutes and 3 seconds of overtime battling. Three thousand fans witnessed the fastest and most keenly contested fray the season has offered, and the lads and ladies spent the last 20 minutes or more cheering lustily while standing on their chairs.

LOCALS BOOST LEAD

The triumph enabled the Jackets to increase their lead in the North American Professional Lacrosse Association race to four points, the Ribbons being their closest rivals for the top rung. The game marked the Chicagoans' first appearance here. They will be back for Pittsburgh's next home battle—on February 1. Coach Suds Sutherland's stalwarts are to play in Milwaukee next Sunday and Wednesday, and in Chicago next Tuesday, before making another home appearance.

Quirie, an agile forward who was here with Milwaukee last week and who was traded to Chicago only yesterday, scored two goals to lead the visitors' attack as they swept to a 5-3 lead in the first period. The Jackets forged to the front in the second stanza as they tallied three times while holding the Ribbons scoreless, and then held their edge as each found the net once in the third canto. Harry LaFrance, a key man in Pittsburgh's attack throughout the game, boosted the Jackets' lead to two goals after nine minutes of action in the last regulation period. White then sent the game into overtime by pumping in two tallies in only slightly more than two minutes.

VINCENT PENALIZED

The Jackets were hard pressed to stave off defeat when Vincent was penalized for slashing Baldwin during the playing of the first of the extra periods. The black-helmeted forward showed his appreciation of his teammates' game stand by getting home a winning thrust on a brilliant unassisted effort while the second extra stanza still was in its infancy.

The game, which featured fast, accurate passing and remarkable defensive play, was virtually free of bloodshed. The few contestants laid low were able to return to action after receiving first aid.

One of the contest's finest features was a duel between Goalies Bruce Cordick, of Pittsburgh, and Bill MacArthur, of Chicago, generally regarded as the two most accomplished net guardians in the game. Cordick matched the Ribbons' ace with brilliant save for brilliant save, and his cool, competent work in the overtime was one of the battle's high spots. The lineup:

AIR PROGRAM FOR BOWLERS

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Duckpin and tenpin bowlers in Western Pennsylvania will have their innings on the air tomorrow night, when the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will be devoted to the popular alley sports.

Walter E. Bisler, second vice president of the Pittsburgh Bowl-Iron City team in the Metropolitan League, will speak for the tenpinners, and Lou Golvash, veteran local duckpin star, will represent the duckpin game. Both will be interviewed by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph. The program will be heard at 7 o'clock over WCAE.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Iroquois defeated the Emerson team, 2,482 pins to 2,245, in a special duckpin match on the former's alleys. Zero Ferry, one of the leading local bowlers, starred for the Winners with a total of 585. Tomorrow night the two teams will meet in a return match on the Emerson alleys.

Eight teams make up the Mt. Oliver, Knoxville and Carrick Business Men's League. Forty players have an average of 140 or more. Bill Densmore with an average of 175 is setting the pace. He is being closely pressed by Maloney, Henn, Walz and Lesser. The Mt. Oliver Bank team is leading the league with the Schreyer team only a game behind. Joe Lesser has high one game score of 258, while Walsh holds the top honors for three games with 651. The Bees have high team score of 960 and also high three-game team score of 2,661.

Anna Kramer, who recently missed a perfect score when she bowled 267, Ann Bayles, Elizabeth Hood, Mary O'Brien, Violet Peterson and Pec Brickner make up the Cue Brothers Ladies' team which defeated a picked men's team. The Nuss Girls have several open dates, and would like to hear from leading teams in the district. For games write Mrs. Fred Bayles, 1200 Ann street, Homestead.

SEE'S AMAZING STORY OF CARNERA

From a timid man devoid of self confidence and without ambition, I have made a man with a sure step, conscious of his courage, who has arrived at the summit of glory in sport.

Today Carnera is a virtuoso of boxing. He is the endowed pupil aided in all possible manner in his march toward success, acquisition of ring science and the certainty of the result. I arranged it so he would avoid the dangers of the blows that destroy the intelligence during the course of the first three years of apprenticeship.

He is probably the only heavyweight in the world whose face does not bear any fighting deformation.

DISCOVERY OF CARNERA

It has been commonly reported that the man who discovered Carnera, and who first presented him to me, was the ex-heavyweight, Paul Journee. That detail is not exact.

In reality, about two years before Journee had chanced to meet Primo at Arcachon, Carnera had been called to my attention by another boxing promoter, a Monsieur Bonnelli.

At that time (1926), I was conducting a training camp for boxers at Rueil, near Paris. One day, I received a letter from Manager Bonnelli informing me that in a wrestlers' booth installed at the annual fair of the little town of Lorient, in Brittany, there was a sort of giant, 19 years old, of remarkable strength and measuring almost 2 meters (6 ft. 7 in.) in height. Bonnelli attached to his letter a photograph of Carnera which I have been able to find and of which a reproduction accompanies these lines.

Interested, I wrote immediately to the Commissioner of Police of Lorient, begging him to put me in touch with the young giant in case the latter should be disposed to become a boxer.

YOUNG GIANT TOUTED

By return mail I received a reply to the effect that a young Italian of very tall stature had been stopping in the town, with a number of wrestlers in a fair booth, but that the troupe had left for parts unknown.

As I was about to start then for Australia on a voyage of several months, I was unable to have the necessary searches made to rediscover the young phenomenon mentioned by Bonnelli.

But it must have been destined that I would become the manager of Carnera because, on my return from Sydney, finding myself in London with a group of American boxers whom I had brought back from New York, I received a long letter from my former pupil, Paul Journee, informing me that he had (in his turn) discovered Carnera, now around 20 years old.

Paul Journee wrote me:

"Dear Monsieur See, I have met by chance in the street at Arcachon a man of remarkable strength, a giant measuring more than two meters and weighing around 120 kilograms. He seems to me most interesting and, as I have found him without resources and in dire distress, I have signed a provisional contract with him for several years with a view to transferring him to you because I have not forgotten all the services which you rendered me at the time when you were my manager. I would be glad if you would come at once to Arcachon to take stock of the qualifications of this phenomenon."

PERSISTENCE WINS

In general, giants make disappointing fighters. They are slow, lacking in reflexes, possessing an intelligence below average, and they are frequently very fragile. So the letter of my old pupil left me skeptical.

I replied to Journee:

"Your protege is too big and too heavy; even if he has the natural qualities, which I doubt, it would require four years at the least to make him a boxer. Thank you for having pointed him out to me, but he does not interest me."

Journee insisted. He wrote me that he had already given two or three lessons to the giant and that the latter showed true aptness. And he closed his letter telling me that a quick trip to Arcachon ought not to be a task. In short, his insistence was such that (in reality more to please him) I took the train to Arcachon.

PIRATES FARM ROOKIE PAIR

Two impressive rookies were missing from the Pirate squad today, but the youngsters were still held by strings. Outfielder Leo Nonnenkamp and Infielder Tony Malinosky have been turned over to the Little Rock club, of the Southern Association, under options. The Pittsburgh club recently established relations with the Little Rock outfit.

Nonnenkamp and Malinosky were both in the Dixie League last season. Nonnenkamp played with Eldorado and Malinosky played with Pine Bluff. Nonnenkamp worked out with the Pirates at the fag end of last season after being recalled by the Pirates. Malinosky has not been in a Pittsburgh uniform as yet.

By placing the two youngsters, the Pirate officials cut the Pittsburgh squad to 32 active players.

Uncensored PICTURES OF THE WORLD WAR

BEGINNNING next Sunday the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will present Laurence (What Price Glory) Stallings' story of the WORLD WAR in PICTURES. In subsequent issues there will be more graphic and sensational UNCENSORED PICTURES OF THE WORLD WAR from Floyd Gibbons' book on the war.

In these UNCENSORED PHOTOGRAPHS you will see the greatest upheaval in history as it actually happened—amazing pictures that show the horrors of war never before published.

Before your eyes millions of men march to the tremendous conflicts in history's mightiest adventure. You see life in the trenches as it was actually lived—both in the lull between battles and in the burning moments of hand-to-hand death grapples.

You will see the artillery hurl tons of steel; you see ships sunk by the torpedoes of those silent, deadly sea-serpents—the submarine; you see planes hail down their terrific bombardments from the skies.

Every picture will stop you . . . fascinate you . . . drive home an impression you will never forget!

The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will print a special supplement of these UNCENSORED PHOTOGRAPHS every SUNDAY, with vivid explanations by Floyd Gibbons, foremost war correspondent, and Laurence Stallings.

Every man and woman—and even your children—should see these horrors of the World War. Be sure to watch for them every Sunday.

President Roosevelt: "War by Governments Shall Be Changed to Peace by Peoples."

STOCKS TRAVEL IN NARROW GROOVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Speculative sentiment in financial markets was almost as mixed today as Wall Street's interpretations of the government's new fiscal program.

Stocks churned about a little less actively than in the previous session, with many of the leaders holding to a rather narrow groove. There were a few obviously easy spots, but the list, as a whole, did not give very much ground and strength was displayed by a number of specialties. Grains rallied moderately after early declines, but cotton and other commodities were a trifle soggy. The dollar pointed moderately upward in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were fairly steady.

Shares of Celanese and Armour preferred got up 3 points each and gainers of around 2 included United States Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol and Western Union. Among others up fractionally to about a point were Allied Chemical, Chrysler, Case, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, National Distillers, International Harvester and Commercial Solvents. American Telephone was unchanged, while General Motors, United States Steel and New York Central eased.

With inflationary psychology apparently indecisive as a result of the administration's steps toward dollar stabilization, both traders and investors were beginning to study the position of stocks of companies which may be expected to benefit by the government's huge spending program. Earnings, both current and potential, were being analyzed for clients by the various investment services.

A possible currency war between Great Britain and America continued to be a market factor which engendered caution in some trading circles. Banking opinion on this question was varied. In some quarters it was believed dollar values would be maintained at a relatively high rate because of a certain amount of repatriation of American capital, covering of heavy short dollars' sales abroad, expanded purchases of American securities by foreigners and the probability that the balance of payments will be increasingly in favor of America.

On the other hand, certain foreign exchange dealers were inclined to expect a sort of status quo in the threatened dollar-pound battle until further feelers are put out by Washington and London regarding a currency conference. Advices from abroad seemed to indicate that the British do not intend to intervene immediately. It was pointed out, however, that if it comes to monetary warfare between the two countries, operations of both probably will be in French francs which are changeable into gold. The outcome of such a contest might conceivably dislodge France from the gold base, it was generally conceded, after which new world currency alignments would be in order.

Notwithstanding the fact that the dollar, in terms of domestic gold and the French franc, has for a number of weeks been around the 60-cent level, the National Industrial Conference Board reported that the decline in the cost of living of industrial wage earners, which began with a drop of 3-10 of 1 per cent in November, continued in December with a further decline of 6-10 of 1 per cent. Living costs, it was found, were 22 8-10 per cent lower than in December, 1929, but 2 9-10 per cent higher than in December, 1932.

GRAINS SUFFER SETBACKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—New setbacks in values distinguished grain trading early today. A reason assigned was reported congressional opposition to presidential monetary plans. Opening ¾@⅞ down, wheat later recovered. Corn started at ⅛@⅛ decline, and subsequently held near the initial range.

Although the wheat market at times rallied to about even with yesterday's finish, the upturns were not well maintained.

Downturns of wheat prices were to below 90 cents in all deliveries. Most of the selling came from commission houses, and was in small lots. Corn and oats duplicated the course of wheat, much of the time hovering around yesterday's closing figures. Provisions were easy, responsive to hog market declines.

Pittsburgh Packard Shows Profit for '33

The Packard Motor Company of Pittsburgh reports a net profit for the year 1933 of $41,772, after reserves for taxes, depreciation, bonuses, etc. The company has no bank obligations, bonded indebtedness or loans of any kind.

It enters the new year with a normal inventory of $104,274 new cars and $3,453 used cars.

Ira L. Berk, president, states that the retail motor industry is decidedly on the upturn, and, with the retail code in effect, the coming year should prove a profitable one for motor car dealers.

Dollar Still Worth 100 Cents

By B. C. FORBES

AN OLD LADY wailed excitedly:

"I have been saving what little money I could all my life, and now I read in the papers that I'll get only 50 cents or 60 cents for each dollar that I have in the savings bank and the building and loan. It's an outrage! Can't something be don to stop it? I never though Mr. Roosevelt would do anything like this."

Mr. Forbes

Other people have expressed complete confusion and have asked for explanations.

Without pretending to fathom the depths of President Roosevelt's ultimate gold policy, without claiming ability to foretell exactly how his latest action will work out at home and abroad, I have been doing my best to remove some misconceptions and to allay some of the alarm created in lay circles.

I ASSURED the frightened old lady that she would get back, not 50 cents or 60 cents for each dollar she had saved and deposited, but 100 cents, that she would get 100 dollars for each 100 dollars she had saved.

That partly relieved her anxiety.

SHE NEXT asked:

"Does it mean, then, that when I go to a store to buy something or when I pay my rent that I'll be credited only for 50 or 60 cents for my dollars, and will have to pay nearly twice as many dollars?"

I replied:

"No. You will have to pay the same number of dollars for your rent, and when you go to a store and buy something priced at a dollar, you will have to pay only a dollar for it.

"But one purpose President Roosevelt has in mind, by what he is doing, is to raise prices, especially prices for the things which farmers raise, bread, beef, pork, cotton and so forth.

"However, the prices of what you and I have to buy are not likely to jump up terribly, all at once."

I went on to explain that, as a matter of fact, the value of the American dollar had fallen throughout the rest of the world during the last year to below even 60 cents at one time, and that for quite a while it had been worth less than 65 cents, so that Mr. Roosevelt's new plan hadn't really changed the value of the dollar very much, that it was still reckoned by other countries as being worth a little over 60 cents.

THEN THE woman asked.

"If they are going to make food and everything else dearer, if it's going to cost more to live, are wages to be increased, too? Can President Roosevelt do that?"

"President Roosevelt cannot raise everybody's wages the way he can reduce the value of the dollar, simply by decreeing that each dollar in future will buy so much less gold. But, as a matter of fact, one main purpose of the NRA has been to shorten work hours so to give employment to more people, and also to bring about higher wages.

"SO, MY SAVINGS won't go as far after this, will they? Will my rent go up, too?"

To which I replied:

"I'm afraid you're right.

"Prices are likely to creep up. And rents in course of time are also likely to be raised. But if nothing had been done to stop the terrific decline in business, in real estate, in stocks and bonds, in the soundness of our banks, you would have run the risk of not getting back your money from the savings banks or from your building and loan associations.

"As it is now, your money should be safe."

The President's action evokes a thousand thoughts. One that persists in my mind is:

"Will it be possible to keep the international value of the dollar down to 60 cents or less?"

Livermore Predicts Era Of Great Prosperity

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Jesse L. Livermore, well remembered for his spectacular operations in Wall street a decade ago and still in the ring in a modest way, according to his own acknowledgement, issued a statement which declared "that history will record President Franklin D. Roosevelt as being the greatest industrial leader the world has ever known."

Before issuing his statement, Livermore discussed the whole range of economic affairs, traced the recovery from the dark days of early 1933, and asserted that the foundation had been laid "for the greatest era of prosperity" the country has ever witnessed.

Livermore said his decision publicly to express his views for the first time since 1923, had nothing to do with his position in the market. He has no long speculative position in stocks, but is interested in commodities, he said.

The President's plan for revaluing the dollar, presented to Congress yesterday, was in Livermore's judgment the only thing needed to remove all fears of uncontrolled monetary inflation and to infuse the necessary confidence to put recovery in its full stride.

The devaluation program, he thought was destined to be the first link in a chain of events which would lead ultimately to international currency stabilization, removal of trade barriers, the building of purchasing power to a new peak, and resumption of world commerce and trade on a record scale. He said:

"In this new era, the workers, the masses, the people who participated in but a small way in the previous cycles of prosperity, will receive a larger and just proportion of their efforts.

"With the rewards of industry thus more evenly distributed, capital will have to be satisfied with smaller profits. At the same time industry will be able to finance itself more economically because credit will be both plentiful and cheap.

"In my opinion the security markets will be constructively affected by the new deal, but not in a way which will be attractive to the 'short swing' speculators. The larger opportunities will be open to investors who are willing to wait for a reasonable increment in values as the tide of business rises."

"Did Mrs. Paige have many phone calls from men?"

The maid hesitated.

"Why, yes, sir," she said finally. "I suppose she did. The men were all crazy about her, of course, and they used to call her up and joke and tease her and ask her and Mr. Ranny to go places."

"Did she have any —?" Anderson paused, at a loss to supply the word which would question the honor of the dead girl.

"They were all friends, sir," she said, quietly, and not without a certain dignity. "Miss Sunny loved her husband and nobody else."

Anderson nodded quickly. "I'm sure of that," he said. "I thought there might have been somebody who admired Mrs. Paige but whom she didn't like —someone who might have killed her because he was jealous."

The maid shook her head.

"There is also another angle to this investigation which is very serious. I want you to tell us all that you know about the pearl and diamond pendant belonging to your mistress—the one which was around her neck when she was found. It is possible that someone was here after that."

Mrs. Deane thought for a minute. "There wasn't any secret about that, sir. It belonged to an English princess—no, a Russian princess, I think. Her father gave it to Miss Sunny when she married and she simply adored it. She was a great one for that Russian business anyway; read everything she could get her hands on."

Many Visitors

"You knew its value?" probed Anderson.

"Not exactly. Miss Sunny used to say that it had no real value except that it had belonged to the Russian queen. She wore it all the time."

"Yes, sir."

"Foolish girl!" exclaimed Anderson to the two detectives. "I'm afraid her indiscreet talk has cost her her life!"

"Wasn't she afraid to keep it here, Mrs. Deane—such a valuable jewel?"

"No, sir. You see most of the time, there's always somebody here. If I went away, Mr. Ranny was at home. And if we were both away, the gardener, who is the caretaker for the big house, used to come up and keep an eye on things. Then generally Mr. Murray and his family and Mr. John Paige are all here. The big house is occupied by Col. Paige, and he just closes it in the winter. Most times there are plenty of people around."

"You knew where she kept the jewel?"

"Oh, yes, sir. There was a little wall-safe in her bedroom, but half the time she never troubled to put it away. She used to go to bed with it on —said it made her feel so close to that Russian queen."

"Now you say that you were not here on Monday evening. Where did you go?"

"Into Towson to visit a friend, Mrs. Johnson, on Allegheny avenue. She has three little children and it's hard for her ever to get away at night. I offered to come in and stay with them if she and her husband wanted to go in town to the movies. I was in the habit of doing this."

"You walked?"

"No, sir. Peter, the gardener, drove me, in the automobile. That was just like Miss Sunny, always thinking of the comfort of those around her."

Judson Returns

"When did you first learn of the murder?"

"When I returned at 7 yesterday morning. Mr. Ranny came down to the kitchen and told me that Miss Sunny had killed herself."

"Well, you have helped us a great deal, Mrs. Deane," said Anderson, ending the interview. "That's all for the present."

Then he turned to us. "Any questions any of you want to ask?"

But the two detectives were satisfied. As for me, I had a ream of notes — a mysterious letter—a strange telephone call —a jewel belonging to the late czarina! And Ranny Paige had retained Kirk Judson to solve his wife's murder!

I drove over to Towson and telephoned Reynolds, tipping him off to Kirk Judson's entrance into the case as well as giving him the story related by the housekeeper.

"He's in there," he said, jerking his thumb toward the library.

I followed his eye and caught a glimpse of Inspector Anderson talking to Kirk Judson. Anderson had his back to me, but Judson was standing on the rug in front of the fireplace, his hat on the back of his head. In his hands he held a paper, and every once in a while he thrust this under the Inspector's nose and pointed a skinny finger to some section of it.

"What's up?" I asked.

"Got his court order to run his own investigation," explained MacNalley, gloomily. "that's what he did, the dirty ————," and he ended with a volley of expletives.

MacNalley spat venomously before replying.

"He's a dirty crook," he said at last. "But not that I'd call him one in print," he added hastily.

"Or to his face?" I ventured.

"What's he done that's crooked?"

MacNalley contented himself with a venomous look in Judson's direction, and seemed to consider no answer necessary.

This feud between the police department and Kirk Judson had always been a mystery to me. To me personally, he had appeared a fellow somewhat vulgar and as unscrupulous as they are made but smart as a steel whip. In fact, so great had his reputation for shadiness become that to engage his services was almost the equivalent of a sealed, signed and delivered confession of guilt. For my own part, I should have been afraid to employ such a man—afraid that if he helped me out of some scrape that I would spend the rest of my life paying him blackmail.

Activities Legal

The quarrel between him and the police department had become practically an inheritance. Inspector followed inspector, commissioner followed commissioner, but the hatred of Kirk Judson, like some ancient Corsican vendetta, was handed down from official to official.

That Judson, as a matter of fact, was as straight as a die—legally, I mean—I had no doubt. The police had turned his life, past and present, inside out and upside down in an effort to get something on the man. Detectives from time to time had spent many weary months on his trail, only to admit that Judson's activities were entirely legitimate.

There had been many hints that Judson was a "fixer"—the term applied to a man who arranges a good many convenient little alibis or who buys off witnesses who have identified criminals as participants in some crime. Certainly Judson had an amazing facility in discovering who made these same identifications which are commonly a dead secret in the bosom of the grand jury, but which only too often "leak out."

But all this was rumor and nothing more. I shrewdly suspected that nothing but common ordinary jealousy of the garden-variety lay at the back of the whole thing. Judson, connected with the Department, would have been an invaluable aid. His knowledge of the underworld was truly amazing. He seemed on excellent terms with gangsters and criminals of every description. He understood their lingo and their methods and he knew where to turn for information of any nature. As a criminal lawyer, he would have been superb—and understandable.

Commendable Ability

But Judson was not a lawyer. He was a detective and a high-priced one at that. And even although it may have been true that he prospered by blackmailing the criminal world, he nevertheless had a number of excellent convictions to testify to his ability as a sleuth.

Time after time, when the police had been forced to admit themselves completely baffled and at their wits' ends, Judson had sailed in and emerged with the criminal in one hand and all the honors in the other. I was acquainted, more or less superficially, with several of the cases he had solved, but I must acknowledge that his success had struck me as being the result of nothing but good headwork.

There was, for example, the Tanyhill murder. Mrs. Tanyhill told a circumstantial and convincing story of how she and her venerable husband had been waylaid on a lonely road on the outskirts of Baltimore, robbed, and the old man shot to death.

And while the police were running their legs off, Kirk Judson took cognizance of exactly one fact in the lady's story, namely, that although she claimed to have been roughly handled and her stockings forcibly torn from the garters which she wore, these same stockings, although of the sheerest and finest silk, showed no marks whatsoever of having been pulled from the fasteners —a fact, concluded Judson, which indicated clearly that they had not been dragged down, but carefully rolled down. Hence the story was not true.

Synopsis

PRESIDENT POLK, GEN. TAYLOR—MEXICAN WAR DECLARED

Under President James Polk (1845-1849), succeeding President Tyler on the Democratic ticket, Texas was admitted into the Union (1845). It was agreed that slavery should not extend north of latitude 36° 30', and also to carve out several states if necessary. The border with Mexico was not clearly defined. President Polk offered $5,000,000 to Mexico for the disputed Texas border territory, and about $25,000,000 for California but was refused. Thereupon Gen. Zachary Taylor closed in the Rio Grande with his troops (1845). Mexico announced a state of war in April, 1846, attacking Taylor unsuccessfully. On May 13, 1846, Congress declared war against Mexico, appropriating money, ordering recruiting. (U. S. History)

GUTENBERG READING HIS FIRST PROOF (1456)

Johann Gutenberg's invention, the practical printing press, influenced European civilization deeply. Aided by the discovery of paper manufacture, it made available accumulated knowledge, science, art, philosophy, law, religion, etc., to the great mass, preparing the way for public libraries and daily press. It stimulated the Renaissance, the period of the revival of art and learning already flourishing, gave impetus to research and exploration, the latter assisted by the invention of the marine compass. Printing was a mainspring in the progress of mankind and a harbinger of a new era. (World History)

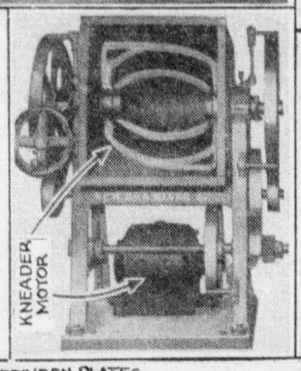
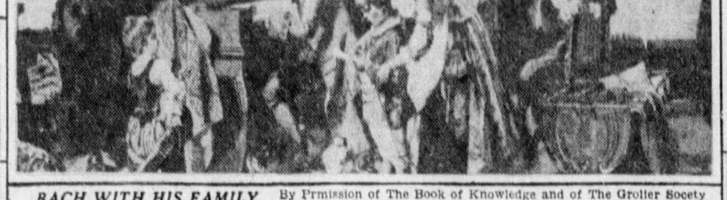
BREAD—OUR CHIEF FOOD

Bread is made of flour, a finely ground cereal containing gluten (a mixture of proteins); chiefly wheat flour is used.

Flour mixed with water gives a viscid, sticky dough which can be raised (making it light, porours), by air, CO2 or any other gas and finally set by baking. The raising of the dough is attained by fermentation caused by added leaven or yeast, by using baking-powder or water charged by CO2 (aeration). Above: Bread from mixed flour. Right: Mixer to knead dough. (Foods)





BACH WITH HIS FAMILY

Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750) presided over a household with music a familiar language. This language is universal, understood, appreciated by all who still have smiles and tears. Expressing passion and sentiment, music, linked to words, becomes a beautiful illustration of language.

The little songs (right) were written by the 5A grade pupils of Holmes School, a charming proof of the impressionable heart and right spirit of the tiny composers: a credit to their teacher. (Character Building)

X-RAYS—BOON TO MEDICINE, INDUSTRY

Roentgen discovered (1895) that when cathode rays (electrons emitted from cathode in vacuum) struck a solid, invisible but penetrating rays resulted, affecting photographic plates. Above: X-ray photo of a hand and how it was obtained.

Powerful X-ray tubes have a filament heated by electric current as cathode. The hotter the cathode, the more electrons are emitted, hence the greater is the X-ray production. Reducing vacuum in tube (1/15,000,000 atm. and less) results in "harder" X-rays (greater penetrating power), apparently identical with the gamma rays given off by radium. By employing very high voltage (millions of volts) it is hoped to substitute X-ray for the expensive radium in therapy (destruction of malignant cells, cancer). X-rays are used to find foreign bodies, internal injuries, tumors in body, flaws, cracks in castings, welds, etc. (Chemistry)

RADIO WAVES—ELECTROMAGNETIC VIBRATIONS—GENERATED BY OSCILLATING CIRCUIT

A condenser (1) consisting of metal plates of different polarity separated by insulators (air, etc.) can hold electricity as a vessel holds a liquid. If the charge becomes so great that electric tension overcomes the resistence of insulator (air) between the plates or between their conductor-extensions forming a gap, the electricity unites through the gap with a spark.

If the circuit (2) contains also a coil of wire in series, the electrical discharge will be oscillating, surging back and forth through the gap. The oscillations will have diminishing amplitude (3).

These oscillating currents generate electromagnetic waves in the ether, called radio waves, expanding through space with the velocity of light (about 186,300 miles or 300,000,000 meters a second). Generated waves are illustrated at (4).

Frequency (number of oscillations a second) times wave length = 300,000,000 meters (the distance traveled in a second). So wave length = 300,000,000/frequency. E. g., 500 kilocycle frequency (kilo = 1,000) corresponds to 300,000,000/500,000=600 meters wave length. (Communication)

Those Were the Snappy Days

The man who sorts the weather in Washington claims our winters are getting milder than damp snuff.

That's so. We go back farther than a librarian on the top shelf. And we can remember when the winters started in October and wound up in April. In those days we had only two seasons. Chilblains and sunstrokes.

Now, the winter of 1890 was a real binger. Snow was so high it frapped your vest buttons. We had hoss cars then. There was a stove in the car. Every passenger brought his own shovel. We would strike that coal burner until it threw off sparks like the queen's tira.

About every five minutes the driver would come in, take off his mittens and count his fingers.

It got so cold that pennies looked like nickels. When the car got caught crossways from the track in a drift we would all pile out and walk. The driver would have to give you your money back.

We don't recollect the winter of 1888 so well. But Aunt Ella tells us that it sure was a zimduggler. The drifts ran 15 and 20 feet high.

Those were cold days. When you heard sleigh bells in July you knew the moths were shaking your last winter's ear muffs.

Everything froze up tighter than a bonded warehouse after dark. You had to pour scalding water down the pump to get it started. After three hours work you might get a handful of cracker dust.

The kids today are very fortunate. We used to wear red pompoms on our woolen caps so the rescuing parties could locate us in the snow. It was only a mile to the schoolhouse but every step was a ton of pig iron.

The only good thing about it was that you could pick up some Christmas money shoveling off sidewalks. If the lady of the house didn't come through with a dime we put the snow back on her sidewalk again. And plenty more to boot.

Gutters were complimentary. We always cleaned off about a foot outside the curb. The NRA scale for those days was 15 cents an afternoon. Say, even in those days we had a racket. If the lady of the house refused to have her sidewalk cleaned off by skilled, juvenile labor, we sent Chalker Brown around to the station house to report her. We worked hand in hand with the law. We always got the job.

Banking for Everybody

Threat to Small Depositors Is Argument for Liberalization Of Postal Savings

For years postmasters general have been urging Congress to raise the limit of deposits for postal savings from $2,500 to at least $5,000.

There is a special reason for affirmative action at this particular time when the American commercial banking system is in the process of repair.

The situation was recently brought to a climax when Pittsburgh banks, under the terms of the NRA code, published an onerous "metered service plan" to lay new burdens on small depositors, including monthly charges for carrying small accounts, as well as fees on checks cashed and deposit slips used.

Through the intervention of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, the proposed heavy service charges have not been permitted to go into effect. New schedules, however, are to be submitted by February 1.

The banks have, nevertheless, made it perfectly plain that they are no longer hospitable to small accounts on the established basis.

If private bankers are to be permitted to throw out small depositors, the American credit system will be impaired.

Such a backward step would entail a reversion to the Old World banking setup under which only persons of affluence have checking accounts.

The net result of driving the funds of individuals in moderate circumstances back to their socks would be to decrease the availability of loanable funds for financing business and employment.

In 1910, the postal savings system was established as a bank for the forgotten man.

It was intended for obscure persons without banking contacts.

It also formed a medium for giving limited savings bank facilities to small rural communities, which were without banks.

It was an instrumentality for liquefying frozen funds, which otherwise might have been hoarded.

Until the recent epidemic of bank failures, the postal savings, which pays 2 per cent on deposits, was patronized chiefly by residents of foreign birth, who did not understand the subtleties of ordinary banks.

But in recent years there has been a swing of funds of apprehensive native-born depositors from outside banks into the postal savings system.

Such diversion of funds did not weaken the banking system because the postal savings system usually redeposited 95 per cent of such funds in the banks in communities whence they came.

But the $2,500 limit on deposits circumscribed the usefulness of this safety valve at a time of impaired public confidence in banks.

Logically, the limit on deposits should be raised to at least $10,000 or even $100,000, or better still, as Carter B. Keene, former director of the postal savings system, has suggested, the limit should be vested in the discretion of the board of trustees, which, with the approval of the President, might raise or reduce the amount that may be accepted from a depositor to meet the reasonable demands of the hour.

In connection with the current need of the federal government to find a market for huge amounts of its bonds to finance the recovery program, the postal savings system offers an excellent outlet. By executive order, the postal savings system may be authorized to invest all but 5 per cent of deposits in government securities instead of redepositing the funds in regular banks.

If bankers through their opposition block permanent insurance of deposits in member banks which is to go into effect on July 1, there will be an added demand for the guaranty offered by the federal government on funds deposited in the postal savings system.

Likewise, if regular banks are to penalize small commercial depositors, the next logical step would be to offer the privilege of drawing checks against deposits on the postal savings system, on which no interest would be paid.

This would meet a growing popular demand for giving special safety in one way or another to the non-borrowing depositors of banks.

President Roosevelt has urged the development by the government of certain power facilities as a "yardstick" with which to measure the charges of private utilities.

By analogy, logical development of postal savings might become a "yardstick" and a "birch rod" in the realm of banking, heightening the ability of the government to supervise banking effectively and to regain for itself the constitutional prerogative of controlling the currency, most of which is now created at credit mints.

Mental Cases Increase

Serious Congestion in Pennsylvania Asylums Points to the Need of New Construction

The State Department of Welfare reports that state and county mental hospitals in Pennsylvania closed their books for the past year with 28,537 patients listed as inmates and 3,351 listed as on parole—a total of 31,888, against 30,462 at the end of 1932. Dixmont, a state-aided hospital, reported 1,230 patients.

The steady increase in admissions to mental hospitals, the Welfare Department says, has served to aggravate serious congestion in many of the institutions. An investigation made by the Sun-Telegraph several years ago showed patients sleeping in corridors in the Warren Hospital.

The Federal Public Works Administration, which has agreed to help the Allegheny General Hospital complete its new building, should come to the aid of our mental institutions, also. It is particularly desirable that help should be given in the construction of the State Psychiatric Hospital, for which the University of Pittsburgh has donated a site at the corner of O'Hara and Desota streets.

Mine Sealing Mistakes

The Work Should Be Done On the Headwaters of Streams With Few Operating Mines

Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, reports that CWA workers have already sealed 168 openings of abandoned mines in Pennsylvania and are working on 142 others. The purpose is to prevent acid mine drainage from reaching the streams.

Satisfaction over the progress made is lessened by the fact that the mines are in many cases on streams where there are many operating mines; consequently the effect of sealing the abandoned mines will not readily be perceived.

A mistake was made, as Kenneth A. Reid, of Connellsville, a leader in the stream purification movement, has pointed out, by not concentrating on the sealing of abandoned mines at the headwaters of streams on which there are few working mines—the Casselman River, for example.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—There's a tense jostle to the West 30's shortly after sundown when jobbing and wholesale trucks are being loaded. Private detectives are every few steps and the police quota augmented to check raids of sidewalk snatchers, known as "bundle guys."

Even with such careful guarding, thefts are frequent. Spurious vans, exact duplicates of a famous firm, once drew up and carted off an entire pavement pile. Sidewalks of the 30's continue to be stands, too, for fake fur salesmen, costumed as truckmen and giving impression they have stolen their wares.

Barber shops in the area are the brightest in town. So are the quick lunchrooms. Truckmen and handlers like to top off a hard joust with a shave and cup of scalding java. The district roars with burly shouts and now and then they stand toe to toe for a slugging fest.

The late George Luks liked to prowl this robust section to give pastiche to his charcoals of brawny types. Many preliminary boys of the prize ring are recruited out of the ruff-scuff. In daylight streets of the 30's become a collective Petticoat Lane. At night—rough, sinister.

A subway train, rocketing through darkness, is a flying net of human emotion. Each passenger is temporarily dominated by an intention—a definite desire to get somewhere, to see someone. This feeling was heightened last night in a ride with Billy De Beck to the Battery. Across was a woman sitting still as a stone, totally absorbed. At 14th street she edged over to permit a strange woman to sit next. They fell into talk. Above the screech, I heard her tell the stranger: "I have not seen him in 11 months. His freighter arrived off Sandy Hook this morning. He'll be waiting."

LISTEN, WORLD!

Yes, You Can Believe in People!

Ever find yourself at a zero hour, doubting everybody, everything? Ever catch yourself asking:

"DOES IT PAY TO BELIEVE IN PEOPLE? ARE THEY EVER REALLY UNSELFISH AND LOYAL UNLESS IT SUITS THEIR OWN INTERESTS? OR ARE WE ALL, AT HEART, COLD, COWARDLY, GREEDY?"

Cruel questions those, and they pounce on us all, sooner or later, and claw our faith to rags. Where's the answer that can defeat them?

Here's an answer—just one out of millions that are being made hourly in this bewildered old world. The story of two "common" people and of a transaction so obscure that few will ever know it.

The names, for obvious reasons, we'd better omit. But these are the true facts, as taken from the court record. Five years ago, a month-old baby was abandoned on a doorstep in a western city. A tiny fellow, wrapped in a ragged blanket without a scrap of identification. The Juvenile Court took him over. Eventually he was placed in the care of a young married couple who perform such services, for the Court, for a slight compensation.

However, before three months had passed, that which had been a paid service became a labor of love. Childless, their hearts went out to this little waif. Soon every thought centered about him.

Two years—three—four. Now they knew their minds, beyond a doubt. He must be their son—their real son. They would adopt him! Yes, it is true, they did not have much money. The man was a carpenter. Jobs were scarce. But one could always manage, if one loved.

So the papers were drawn. They went before the authorities. How complicated it all was! So many things to sign! And now, most foolish of all, the child must have a mental examination. A baby of 4 with a mental examination? Absurd! But, if it was the law—. Smiling, they watched him led away.

It had been a long time, waiting. But it was a much longer time before those who had to tell them could make them understand. Patiently, gently, they explained and repeated, but still the man and woman could not believe.

It couldn't be! It was all a terrible mistake! Their little boy "not right in the head!" Their beautiful, healthy baby, so quiet, so good, never to be like other little boys? Big and strong, yes. But still—no, no! They could not say that word. Never would they say that terrible word "idiot," or even that kinder word, "moron."

Pityingly the others looked on while the protests faltered to silence and the heart-broken sobs died away. At last the room was still. Then, gently but firmly, the doctor and matron began to move toward the door. Now it was late—so perhaps they had better go. Just quietly—without seeing the little boy again. Yes, it was terrible—but it was better so—so the child might be sent at once to the Institution.

They stopped. Staring, incredulous with horror, the man and wife faced them. Leave the little boy! Abandon a little, helpless baby who had nobody but them!

But did they not understand what it meant? Did they not realize that he would be a helpless burden all their lives—never able to learn and play like other children, to work and marry like other men? They were young yet—their lives before them! Think of the drudgery—the mounting horror—perhaps, some day, the danger!

"Yes, yes," came the impatient, contemptuous answer. But what did all that matter? THEY LOVED HIM. HE NEEDED THEM. THAT WAS ALL THAT MATTERED. "GIVE HIM BACK! GIVE HIM BACK!"

He was given back. Not without more argument—more heartbreaking proof—but they could not be shaken.

Tenderly, radiantly, as once another Mother lifted Her Boy—and with Him the sword that was to pierce her own heart—that woman and man took that nameless baby back to their home. Today, as I write, the state is giving him to them—to keep as their son.

You sometimes wonder if you dare believe in people? Sometime doubt if there still is decency on earth? Don't! Somewhere those two are standing by that little child.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Marrying Moments

The trouble with these questionnaires among college students is that they give too much leeway to the imagination.

* * *

In the old-fashioned fairy story, the princess was given only THREE wishes. But, in the average symposium, a gal can let her imagination run riot and wish for a husband possessing every desirable quality she can think of, from wavy hair to a poetic soul, or a million dollars.

This is not a fair test—because you will seldom meet a normal human being of either sex who possesses more than three or four of the qualities you most admire.

* * *

No doubt, if the average girl were asked to name, off-hand, the three vital requisites of the ideal husband, she would answer brains, good looks and money. Yet, Reno is filled with sad-eyed women, who have discovered that this combination doesn't always make for happiness.

* * *

Personally, I regard three other characteristics as far more essential to any nice man's makeup. Character (which includes capability) is the primary requisite of a husband, as well as the first element of charm. Loyalty is as necessary to happiness as breath is to life. And to be lovable is far more important, in the vicissitudes of marriage, than to be rich or brainy or handsome.

* * *

Every woman will admit this—yet, alas, there are so many weak and foolish moments in her life, when she simply shuts her eyes and reaches for the most interesting, the most comfortable or the most attainable man at hand and marries him "just because."

* * *

There are lonely moments when she feels that a man's character and honor wouldn't matter a penny if only he would take her in his arms and tell her how wonderful or how beautiful she is.

* * *

There are weary moments when all her theories go smash and all she yearns for is somebody to take her job and her worries off her tired shoulders.

These are our dangerous moments, when anything of the opposite sex looks just like the answer to prayer, because she happens to respond to our mood. The poignant moments when we NEED somebody to help us feel sorry for ourselves or proud of ourselves or to help us love ourselves.

* * *

Economic Slavery

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL, Financial Authority

PRIOR TO the Eighteenth Century, the few banks of England and America were strictly private enterprises—little or no supervision. Any banking firm could issue as many banknotes as the public would accept. Frequently they failed.

The unrest in Europe was nearly always due to the extravagance of the monarch and his governmental machinery, and the consequent heavy taxes levied on the people.

In 1694 the English crown needed £1,200,000 to carry on the French War. The Bank of England was organized to take the government's obligations and issue circulating banknotes for it.

Successive extensions of the charter were granted, and the capital was increased at subsequent times when the government needed funds. Gradually through the Eighteenth Century all other banks were prohibited from issuing banknotes.

MAYER ANSELM ROTHSCHILD (1743-1812), founder of the great Jewish international banking house, was perhaps the first man to fully realize that growing unrest in the European monarchies could be completely circumvented by yielding to the social measures demanded, at the same time tightening the hold of the aristocracy upon the issuance of money.

He and his sons became eventually fiscal agents for every civilized country excepting Spain and the United States.

Their formula was simple: To organize or obtain control of a central bank jointly with the aristocratic group, and, by a progressive series of laws, gradually lodge the sole power of the issuance of money in this central bank.

In the ignorance of the masses relating to money, this procedure built up an invisible government which held the populace in the equivalent of slavery.

The bank of issue could expand the banknote currency, promoting greater freedom of the exchange of goods and services, and rapidly increasing the wealth of the nation.

After a prosperous period, the central bank ceased issuing its notes; taxes were increased and money was gradually withdrawn from circulation, producing depression and bankruptcy.

BOTH the First and Second National banks of the United States were privately owned central banks of issue. The banks of the national banking system under the act of 1863 were privately owned banks of issue, dominated by the large reserve city banks, who today dominate the Federal Reserve system—a privately owned central bank of issue which in effect, places the banking system of the United States under the domination and control of the same Rothschild-Belmont-Morgan confederation, who with their network of banking ramifications, have for two centuries dominated and controlled the money and banking systems of Europe and America.

They preserve this control by a subterranean system of conspiracy and stratagem and intrigue of satanic ingenuity and effectiveness which will pause at no duplicity.

It is a genuine unlimited monarchy of avarice which holds both England and America in economic slavery.

(The foregoing article is the second in a series of four on "Economic Slavery." The third will appear in an early issue, probably tomorrow.)

Human Side of the News

The King of Siam to Visit America Again—His Country Shows a Democratic Trend

By Edwin C. Hill

HIS diminutive Majesty, the King of Siam, is about to pay us another visit. The last time he was here, two years ago, he had a cataract removed from his left eye, looked over New York from the top of the Empire State Building, with Al Smith pointing out the sights, and enjoyed himself hugely, as did his pretty little queen. He returns, now, for a cataract operation on the other eye, and possibly for a much needed vacation from his turbulent little country.

Siam has displayed a disposition recently to go democratic, for even in the old East the king business is not what it used to be. King Prajadhipok rules over a quaint and colorful land—a land of porcelain temples and very ancient gods; a land of rosewood, teak and ebony, where elephants do the work of oxen and the steaming jungles are the lair of the rhinoceros, tiger, leopard, water buffalo, flying fox, gibbon and crocodile; and in those steaming jungles magnificent ruined cities of a vanished people.

Picturesque and colorful as modern Siam may be, it cannot compare with the glory and the splendor of lost Angkor, wrapped in the hot solitude of the Cambodian forests. It is one of the riddles of mankind, one of the baffling mysteries of science.

Centuries before Europe emerged from barbarism, when the ancestors of almost every modern people of the Western world were painted savages dwelling in caves, these lost people, the Khmers, arrived at a pitch of culture and magnificence which was unsurpassed even in Asia, the cradle of civilization.

* * *

Chinese Account Of Their Splendor

THESE people, the Khmers, established themselves in Cambodia, Siam, and made Angkor the center of their mighty empire. Throughout Asia they were envied for their wealth and their splendor, for the amazing luxury in which they lived. We know something about them from the account left by the Chinese chronicler, Tcheou-Ta-Kouan. Seven hundred years ago he was sent by his Emperor to pay a visit to the people of Khmer and to make a report on the wonders of their golden cities.

Familiar with wealth and luxury, the Chinese visitor was dazzled by the utter magnificence of the Khmers and their gleaming cities of gold and marble. He tells us of a tower of solid gold which rose up from the exact center of Angkor, the capital. He mentions the gold-framed windows of the marble palace, windows, from which the king spoke to the people.

He speaks rapturously of the gold chariots of the Khmer warriors and the gold statues which decorated their cities — gold everywhere, from the solid gold statues of the gods to the tinkling banglets on the wrists and ankles of the dancing girls of the palace. Gold and precious stones. Diamonds and emeralds and rubies.

If the account of the dazzled Chinese is even moderately authentic, the vanished Khmers and their cities must have been the richest people and the most luxurious communities the world ever knew. And then, for no reason that science has ever been able to fathom, they vanished—disappeared utterly. Their splendid cities were strangled and swallowed by the jungle.

Discovered By French Expedition

FOR seven hundred years the Khmers and their glory were a legend—a myth—their existence doubted. An then, in modern times, a French expedition, toiling through the forests of Cambodia, stumbled upon the ruins of Angkor, the Magnificent. But like the vanished Mayas, the ruins retain their secret and their mystery. We do not know what fate befell a proud and war-like people.

Like the Mayas, the origin and the end of the great Cambodians is one of the most baffling and fascinating mysteries of history. Their secret is lost in the mists of time. We have a brief glimpse of them between the cradle and the grave, and then they disappeared and no man knows whither or why.

There is no mystery like it except, perhaps, the riddle of the Mayas—the Mayas of Central America and Yucatan. No one knows from whence they came, though romantic tradition brings them from lost Atlantis, across a land bridge which existed from Atlantis to Central America, before Atlantis was overwhelmed and sank to the bed of the Atlantic Ocean.

But they had a great empire and a fine culture before the Pyramids of Egypt were raised up. They followed the procession of the stars and gauged time so accurately that their calendar today is the admiration of mathematicians and astronomers.

Their history is a closed book, for such writings and records as existed were cast into flames by fanatics. No man has been able to read the tale of their rise and fall, of the tragedy of a great people, in the carvings of their temples and monuments—temples and monuments buried now in the inaccessible jungles of Central America—jungles where the old gods, half buried in the soil of the jungle, leer menacingly at the timid, stupid peoples that carry a few drops of the ancient blood. We do not know their origin. We do not know their end. Their cradle and their grave are invisible in the fogs of time.
